B-36 Probers Clear Johnson, Top Air Chiefs

Inquiry Adjourned Until October 5; Worth Confesses A 'Great Error'

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

High Air Force officials and Defense Secretary Johnson yesterday were completely exonerated by a House investigating committee of any wrong-doing in the B-36 procurement program.

The group reached its decision after the Navy official who started the whole thing publicly recanted and confessed he had made a "great error."

After the announcement, Navy Secretary Francis Matthews named a board of top-rank officers to determine whether anyone else in the Navy "participated in, instigated or had knowledge of" the preparation of the sensational anonymous document which formed the basis of the probe.

Takes Full Responsibility

Cedric R. Worth, suspended special assistant to Undersecretary of the Navy Dan Kimball, Wednesday assumed full responsibility for writing and distributing the document on Capitol Hill.

It contained charges and insinuations the Consolidated-Vultee B-36 global bomber was a billion-dollar failure foisted on the Nation through political influence and collusion.

The names of Secretary Johnson, Air Secretary Symington and Floyd Odlum, millionaire chief owner of the company making B-36's were linked with the "plot."

Worth, however, while retracting completely his charges of corruption and political influence, stuck by his guns on one point. He said he'd been motivated by patriotism alone, but had "gone about it wrong."

"I feel strongly there is need for a congressional committee or a group of objective people to give serious consideration of our defense structure, particularly related to the B-36," said Worth.

After stating that all accused have come through the inquiry "without the slightest blemish," the House Armed Services Committee adjourned its probe until October 5.

Sources to Be Traced

Then the group, Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.), announced, will proceed with other points on the probe's agenda.

They include:

1. Determination of who else may be responsible, with Worth, for the anonymous charges.
2. An evaluation of the characteristics of the B-36 to determine if it is a satisfactory weapon.
3. Whether undue emphasis is being placed on strategic bombing.
4. Whether cancellation of the super-aircraft carrier United States was a sound decision.

Some members of the committee have opposed going very deeply into these latter questions.

Truman Says He Swung Service Ax

Asserts Complaints Won't Deter Drive For More Efficiency

Defense Secretary Johnson was following instructions from the President when he ordered 147,000 civilian and military personnel cut from the Military Establishment, Mr. Truman said yesterday.

The President told his news conference the country had been promised that reorganization of the military services would result in economies. He intends to have an efficient Military Establishment, he said, and complaints from members of Congress whose districts suffered most would not deter him.

Then he went on to remind the reporters, amid much laughter, that it was a solid rule in Congress that economy should be in the other fellow's district.

When he was a Senator, he said, he was always careful to see that Missouri wasn't gypped.

When Secretary Johnson announced Wednesday that 135,000 civilians and about 12,000 Reserve officers would be dropped, a few members of Congress praised the move, but many more cried out against it. Johnson said the firings should result in savings of 200 million dollars in fiscal 1950 and 500 million a year thereafter.

In addition, the Defense Department already had set up an efficiency committee whose operations, Johnson estimated, should save another billion dollars a year.

Commissioners Notified Of Navy's Planned Cuts

District Commissioners yesterday received official notice of Navy Department plans to reduce staffs of units in Washington.

Undersecretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball wrote the Commissioners that civilian personnel ceilings have been ordered reduced materially during the fiscal year 1950, which began July 1.

The city heads took no action on the notice.

Truman a '52 Possibility, He Implies

Not in Coolidge's Position, President Declares; May Take Stump Next Year

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

President Truman said yesterday he might campaign next year for a Democratic Congress and repeated an implication that he would not be a candidate in 1952.

Immediately, however, he modified the latter statement by making it plain he was not binding himself to step out of the Presidential picture.

Asked at his news conference if a speech earlier to an organization of teen-age girls implied he would not be a candidate in 1952, Mr. Truman said that was the implication intended. He had told the girls he could not promise any appointments five years hence because "that is a year or two beyond the time when my term will expire."

Not in Coolidge's Position

When reporters pressed for a definite answer on his probable candidacy, the President smiled and said he was not in the same position as President Calvin Coolidge, who said he did not choose to run again. He would answer questions about his future plans, he said, at the proper time.

Mr. Truman's statement that he might take the stump for Democratic candidates in 1950 came after he had been asked whether he would campaign outside Missouri. He said he wouldn't necessarily limit his campaigning in 1950 to his home State, but that he would not take part in the campaign until after the primaries, when the chips were down.

The President would not say whether he intended to go into Ohio, where Republican Senator Robert A. Taft is expected to be facing a stiff fight for reelection.

Asked to comment on the possible candidacy of former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman for Senator in the New York Democratic primaries, the President said he would be glad to see Lehman in the Senate. But, he added, that was up to the people of New York State and he wasn't in politics in New York.

Peace Bid Fizzles

Within his party, the President's peace offering of Wednesday night to rebellious Southern members appeared yesterday to have had little effect in closing the Fair Deal-Dixiecrat rift. Southern members who came here for a meeting of the Democratic National Committee, only to be read out of the party, said Mr. Truman's offer was no offer at all and offered to meet him halfway.

The President had invited the Southerners to come into what he termed a Democratic "national party." He insisted, however, that they must accept the 1948 Democratic platform with its civil rights plank which brought about the Dixiecrat revolt.

Former Judge Leander Perez of New Orleans, head of the States Righters' Bureau, said the President's terms were contrary to the "Jeffersonian principles of real Democrats." He added:

"States Righters will be glad to meet President Truman halfway. More than that they will not do.

"Meeting the President halfway could not be on his terms. His terms are not based on Jeffersonian principles, which are the principles of real Democrats and of the Democratic Party.

"If the President will adopt Jeffersonian principles, we will come into the Democratic Party again."

Louisiana, along with Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina, bolted the Democratic Party in 1948 to give their electoral votes to a States Rights slate headed by

ECA Reports Its Progress Is Faltering

It Tells Congress Recovery in Europe Is Slackening, But Goal Is Yet Feasible

By The Associated Press

The pace of European recovery is slowing down, the Economic Cooperation Administration told Congress yesterday.

The agency simultaneously said, however, that the Marshall Plan has enabled most countries to make marked progress toward financial soundness.

Reporting to Congress on the first year's operation of the European Recovery Program, ECA tempered optimism over accomplishments with concern about the future.

Number one obstacle to recovery, the agency said, is that Europe cannot yet pay for necessary imports from the Western Hemisphere and other so-called dollar areas.

Accomplishments Listed

The 134-page document listed the following among the accomplishments achieved during the Marshall Plan's first 12 months ended in April:

1. Industrial production in Western Europe hit a postwar crest due largely to a constant flow of materials and improved production facilities financed by ECA dollars.
2. Inflation was halted in virtually all Marshall Plan countries as prices in inflated money generally remained stable or declined slightly.
3. Foreign trade by European nations showed substantial improvement as exports increased over previous postwar years.

"Difficult but Attainable"

"This was the critical problem which the participating nations faced as the European Recovery Program entered its second year," the agency declared. The report added, however:

"The ultimate objective of a healthy economy independent of extraordinary outside assistance remains as a difficult but attainable goal."

Pointing out that Congress outlined three aims for the Marshall Plan when the recovery program was established, ECA said progress

President 'Interested' In Perfume Flight to Italy, Aide's Letter For Passport Said

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan was shown yesterday to have invoked the name and power of President Truman to help his "good friend," John Maragon, fly to Italy on perfume business in 1945.

The White House military aide, it was brought out at the Senate's 5-percenter inquiry, wrote to Mrs. Ruth B. Shipley, chief of the State Department's Passport Bureau, on August 3, 1945. He asked her to arrange with the proper authorities (the Army) for Maragon to get into northern Italy. Later he called her on the telephone.

"Personally Interested"

A penciled notation in the left-hand corner of Vaughan's letter, written by one of Mrs. Shipley's subordinates, said:

"Colonel Vaughan informed Mrs. Shipley that the President is personally interested in Maragon's trip to Italy—Col. S. agrees that he is I D. JFS 8/28/45."

A civilian going into northern Italy at that time, it was explained, could only get an Army "1 D" permit when "authorized by the President."

President Truman, with Vaughan standing behind him, was asked at his 4 o'clock news conference yesterday if he was aware in 1945 that the State Department was told he was personally interested in getting Maragon to Europe. He told reporters that his reply had to be the same as last week—that he would answer such questions as soon as Vaughan has testified, not before.

Favors for Bennett Shown

It also was brought out yesterday that General Vaughan did something to win comforts and courtesies for David A. Bennett, who later was to give him seven deep-freeze units for himself and his friends.

Bennett, president of the Albert Verley Co., Chicago, dealer in perfume oils, left for Europe on an Air Transport Command plane three days after Germany surrendered. With him Bennett took a note from General (then Colonel) Vaughan, written on White House stationery, which said he was "entitled to the courtesies of American officials abroad."

Senator Mundt (R., S. D.) said that he had heard from a former Army flight sergeant who was aboard the plane that brought Bennett and an associate, Otto Baptiste, back from Europe. Mundt, in an angry voice, said:

"His curiosity was aroused by these civilians riding the plane while his buddies were left behind in the hospitals of Europe.

"He further wondered at a letter giving these gentlemen the

The name of the perfume: Shocking.

Mundt said he got the information from Walter E. Rhodes of Baltimore, a crew member who is credited with helping the Senate's "Five-Percenter" investigators pin down facts on Bennett's European trip.

Quorum Not Present At 5 of Committee's Last 6 Meetings

Chairman McMahon (D., Conn.), of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee yesterday announced the committee's investigation of the Atomic Energy Commission had closed after 44 hearings, both closed and open.

McMahon said the decision to close the hearings was made after six meetings in executive session to discuss personnel security cases, at five of which a quorum was not present.

Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), chief critic of the commission, said he did not think the investigation had explored all phases of the situation.

Many senators, he said, felt they could examine summaries of security files in their own offices more adequately than in a committee session.

There were several aspects of the Atomic Energy Commission inquiry, Hickenlooper said, which were left for executive session consideration and never reached, and "a lot of data" requested but not furnished.

In his formal statement, McMahon said he wrote Hickenlooper more than a month ago, on July 9, asking the Iowa Senator to let him know what matters he wished to take up in executive session. He asked also whether or not he desired to examine any additional documents to be furnished by the commission.

"To date I have received no reply letters," McMahon declared, "although last Tuesday night Senator Hickenlooper did suggest that

Miami in Path Of Storm With 100-Mile Wind

Hurricane Due to Hit Today, After Increase In Force During Night

Miami, Fla., Aug. 25 (AP).—A weird hurricane twisted toward the South Florida coast tonight several hundred miles from Miami.

The Weather Bureau said the tricky, still-forming storm was east-southeast of the resort city, moving west-northwest at about 15 miles an hour.

It passed slightly to the north of San Salvador or Watlings Island with winds estimated at more than 100 miles an hour.

Cat Island, Bahamas, reported winds of 50 miles an hour while the center of the doughnut-shaped hurrican was 60 miles away.

Chief Storm Forecaster Grady Norton ordered storm warnings along the Florida coast from Melbourne to Key West.

The winds felt on the coast resulted from an interplay between the approaching doughnut-shaped hurricane and high pressure pushing in from the north.

"Winds will steadily increase during the night and the outer fringe of the hurricane will be felt within the next 24 hours," Norton said.

Meanwhile, another blow called "Harry's Hurricane" because it coincided with President Truman's visit to Miami Monday, was moving rapidly eastward through the Atlantic. It offered no further threat to any land area.

Problem Handed to Senate

$3.75 Billion on Housing Bill Passed, Minus Rights Clause

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Already behind the legislative eight-ball, the Senate yesterday was handed a fresh problem by the House—a choice of two housing measures.

First the House reversed its action of the day before, killing an antisegregation amendment, and then passed a bill providing $3,750,000,000 additional mortgage insurance to aid home building.

The measure overwhelmingly approved by the House, however, was a compromise that struck out not only the antisegregation amendment but also 300 million dollars in direct 4 per cent housing loans for veterans.

Because Titles I and VI of FHA expire September 1, the House also passed a separate "stopgap" measure continuing FHA in case the Senate does not have time to act on the long-term bill. But the recessing House expected the Senate to act yesterday on the stopgap.

Chairman Sparkman (D., Ala.), of the Senate Banking and Currency Subcommittee considering housing, said it had not yet been determined what course the Senate would follow.

He said he did not believe it would do any harm to have a temporary lapse of the FHA provisions until September 21 when the House returns.

On the other hand, Sparkman said, he believes the Senate will eventually pass the full Administration measure which he introduced, incorporating veterans' direct loans and loans to cooperatives. A temporary FHA extension might give the Senate more time to work on its own bill.

When House leaders feared a snarl over the civil rights issue and direct loans might kill the long-term bill, Ranking Committee Chairman Spence (D., Ky.) presented a substitute measure eliminating both topics. Leaders told the House this was the only way to get any bill at all.

But two attempts were made to put into the substitute a civil rights amendment that was written into the original bill yester-

1500-Unit Apartment Project Planned by Casey at Bethesda

Eugene B. Casey, Montgomery County real estate operator and former executive assistant to President Roosevelt, is planning to construct a 1500-unit, 10-million-dollar apartment house project adjacent to the Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, he said yesterday.

The project would rise eight stories high on a 46-acre tract bounded on the west by the Medical Center, on the east by Connecticut ave., on the north by Rock Creek and on the south by Jones Bridge rd.

Construction could begin within 60 days, Casey said, if the Montgomery County Council grants a petition to rezone the land from residential A to residential C.

The rezoning petition has been filed by Casey's daughter, Miss Virginia K. Casey, who owns the land. The County Council has scheduled a hearing on it for 7:30 p. m., September 21 in the Bethesda County Building.

Casey said no commitments had as yet been made in the matter of financing the construction, but if the rezoning is approved, he expects to be financed by a number of "large insurance companies." Casey's firm, the Casey Engineering Co., will handle the construction, he said.

He said the petition filed by his daughter would retain 150-foot strips along Connecticut ave. and Jones Bridge rd., which would remain restricted to residential A, or family-type houses.

Casey, who has just about completed a $200,000 apartment house at Clarendon rd. and Bethesda ave., Bethesda, said his newest project would be ideal for housing personnel of the public health center on Rockville Pike.

At the same date set for the Casey hearing, the County Council will hear a petition by the Chevy Chase Land Co. requesting commercial rezoning of about 6500 square feet at Connecticut ave. and Manor rd., Chevy Chase.

President William S. Farr said the company wants to construct a two-story building on the property to house a drug store, food store and offices.

Postmistress Is Found Dead Under New Car

Stanardsville, Va., Aug. 25 (AP).—Miss Arnette P. Texada, for 25 years postmistress at St. George Postoffice near here, was found dead yesterday under the new automobile she had purchased the day before.

Dr. M. D. Foster, Greene County Coroner, said the death was accidental. He placed the time of death at about 10 p. m. Tuesday.

The coroner said Miss Texada apparently saw her car rolling downhill in front of her home, where she had parked the car. Apparently, she tried to hold the car on the hill with her body and was carried to the foot of the hill, some 100 feet from her home.

The car struck a tree and pinned her beneath a rear wheel.

Living Costs Ease; Further Drop Seen

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

A year ago this month the cost of living reached an all-time high in the United States. Today it is down about 5 per cent from that peak with prospects of a further decline this fall.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics' Consumers' Price Index for July, to be released today, is expected to show a moderate decline from the June figure. Since July there has been a further moderate decline, the economists say, in estimating the 12-month drop at about 5 per cent.

The price of food, which reached a peak last July, a month before the over-all high, is down about 7 percent in a year. Food now counts for about 42 per cent of the total family budget, as computed by BLS for moderate income families in large cities, including Washington.

Miscellaneous Increases

But the food price decline has been partly offset over the nation by rent rises and by such miscellaneous increases as higher streetcar fares.

The prospects of a further decline this fall, the economists report, is based on the huge pork crop due to reach the butcher shops in October. Although the beef supply is about the same as last year, competition from much cheaper pork is expected to reduce some beef prices.

Clothing and house furnishings, both on the decline in retail stores, will continue cheaper. The experts say fall clothing this year will be from 5 to 10 per cent cheaper than last fall.

Rents and Taxes Going Up

These happy consumers prospects are marred by two things—rents are definitely going up all over the country, either by ceilings being lifted entirely, as in Texas, or by increases granted landlords for higher taxes or other reasons. In Washington the sales tax is expected to raise the overall August cost of living figure in the face of a general national decline. The recent one-cent-a-quart rise in milk prices here also will keep the food index from as large a decline as is expected elsewhere.

When the OPA was knocked on the head in June, 1946, amid statements that prices would soon straighten themselves out, the BLS index stood at about 135. The peak of last August (maintained in September before a decline began) was 174.5. The last published figure, for June 15, was 169.6 with a decline of a point or two in the past two months. Today's price level is still about 25 per cent above the OPA figure.

The food index, which stood at 216.8 in July, 1948, now is down to about an even 200. Some of the decline in July and August is seasonal—people buy less meat in the summer, for example, bringing lower prices.

On the wholesale level, prices for all commodities in the BLS wholesale index were down 10.6 per cent last week over a year ago. Farm products and foods were down about 16 per cent while all other products—textiles, fuels, metals, building materials—were down slightly more than 5 per cent. Some of these declines have been reflected at retail levels, especially in foods. But bread has not declined although grains have, and shoes have not reflected the drop in hide prices. Higher labor and distribution costs are part of the reason.

day by a 77 to 57 vote. This amendment would have made unlawful any segregation of white and colored persons in housing aided by the legislation.

These attempts were beaten 108 to 84 and 101 to 36. An effort to put the veterans direct loans into the substitute was turned back, 103 to 76.

The House then tentatively approved the substitute 142 to 39, and later shouted its final approval without a record vote. The bill now goes to the Senate.

The legislation would provide about $3,750,000,000 in additional authority for the Government to insure mortgages made by private lenders for the construction and improvement of homes. The Government does not make direct housing loans to individuals, but the insurance protects private lenders against any large losses.

Horse Stirs Wild West Visions

COULD IT BE FEITELBAUM?—Elly Jeane Stuart, 3, of 5603 N. 8th st., feeds a sunflower to Arlington's stray horse

The Wild West had nothing yesterday on the back yard of Arlington policeman John Kadel.

Grazing calmly on sunflowers and wild grass at 5638 N. 8th st., Arlington, was a handsome brown saddle horse, "arrested" by Kadel Wednesday night in the 900 block of Patrick Henry dr.

Kadel, who was a farm boy himself, corralled the horse while on scout car duty about 9:30 p. m. Wednesday. He picked it up after a surprised citizen called to say he'd trailed the animal down Lee hwy. and into the Old Dominion Hills section.

Not quite sure where he'd put the creature in police headquarters at the Courthouse Building, Kadel dropped it off in his own back yard.

His two youngsters, both fierce Western fans on television, could scarcely believe their eyes yesterday morning. Judy, 3, and Ernest, 6, spent the day begging endlessly for rides.

Thirty to 40 gaping neighbors also appeared to eye the acquisition. Roused to sympathy by brush burns on the animal's hoof and forehead, one woman supplied oil of sol, insisting it worked fine on children.

2000 Requests For Rent Hike Filed Here

More than 2000 applications for increase in rents of an estimated 8500 housing units in Washington have been filed with the District Rent Control Administration, it was learned yesterday.

The applications are based on the increase in city property tax rates which went from $2 per $100 valuation to $2.15 on July 1.

Rent Administrator Robert F. Cogswell said several large housing developments sent to the District Building for their annual bills rather than wait for the mailing. Most large developments already have filed for the boost which averages from 30 to 35 cents a month per unit, Cogswell said.

The rush of applications began early this week, but has been snowballing, he reported. Some requests were for boosts as low as 12 cents a month, he added.

The city tax assessor's office has mailed 151,000 bills for the 1950 fiscal year, which began July 1. Payment, in general, is due by end of next month and the second half by the end of March, 1950.

Cogswell's staff prepared a form similar to that used in 1947, when the tax rate also was boosted, for use by landlords. These require the landlords to swear to the amount of tax increase and copies of the form may be checked by tenants at the landlord's office or at the development office.

Tenants who question the figures submitted may file a letter with the rent administrator and the report will be checked at the assessor's office. The increase will be effective as of the date of filing the form and if the submitted figures are found faulty, adjustments will be ordered.

Dawes 84 Saturday

The Senate yesterday voted to send birthday greetings to former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, who will be 84 Saturday.

Senate Refuses to Concur in House Recess

Despite the unprecedented refusal of the Senate to concur, the House yesterday voted to let most of its members go home and stay there until September 21.

The House unanimously approved a resolution under which token sessions will be held each Tuesday and Friday until the Senate can clean up its heavy backlog of work.

No business will be transacted and the two-a-week sessions will be that in name only. The House will meet and immediately adjourn.

Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) worked out the procedure after the Senate Wednesday by a 55 to 28 vote refused to give its consent for the House to quit.

When Rayburn announced the passage of the resolution, the House broke into prolonged applause. Some members, waiting coats in hand near the door, rushed to make connection with transportation on which they had reservations.

Rayburn noted tersely that it would have been possible for House members to take an outright vacation—"without the necessity for leaving a few members here for a meeting every three days" if the Senate had given its cooperation.

Earlier, Rayburn had made it clear that the House would act on its own, even though under the Constitution it is impossible for either body to take more than three-day recesses without the consent of the other.

The action, he added, was "the first time in history," so far as he knew, that one chamber refused to agree to procedure approved by the other in respect to meeting.

Rayburn said he agreed with House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.), that the procedure does not promote comity between the two branches of Congress.

The House is away ahead of the Senate on its legislative business. The Appropriation situation admittedly is in a mess with some 20 billion dollars in money bills still in controversy, although they were supposed to be out of the way by July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year.

In addition to money bills, the Senate still must act on the Administration's foreign arms program, farm legislation, minimum wage, displaced persons and several other measures.

Senators are becoming increasingly irked over the slow progress of legislation.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), who wants to get back to Ohio for a county-by-county tour, said he "suspects" Lucas deliberately is trying to keep Congress in session indefinitely in the hope it will approve some of the Administration's programs.

Senator Arthur V. Watkins (D., Utas) voiced the suspicion the Senate was being kept in session until after the British monetary conference here early in September.

Still other Senators privately said they believed that Senate Administration leaders were faced with a demand from President Truman on the one hand for enactment of his program and on the other hand with a stubborn Democratic-Republican coalition that has no intention of enacting it.

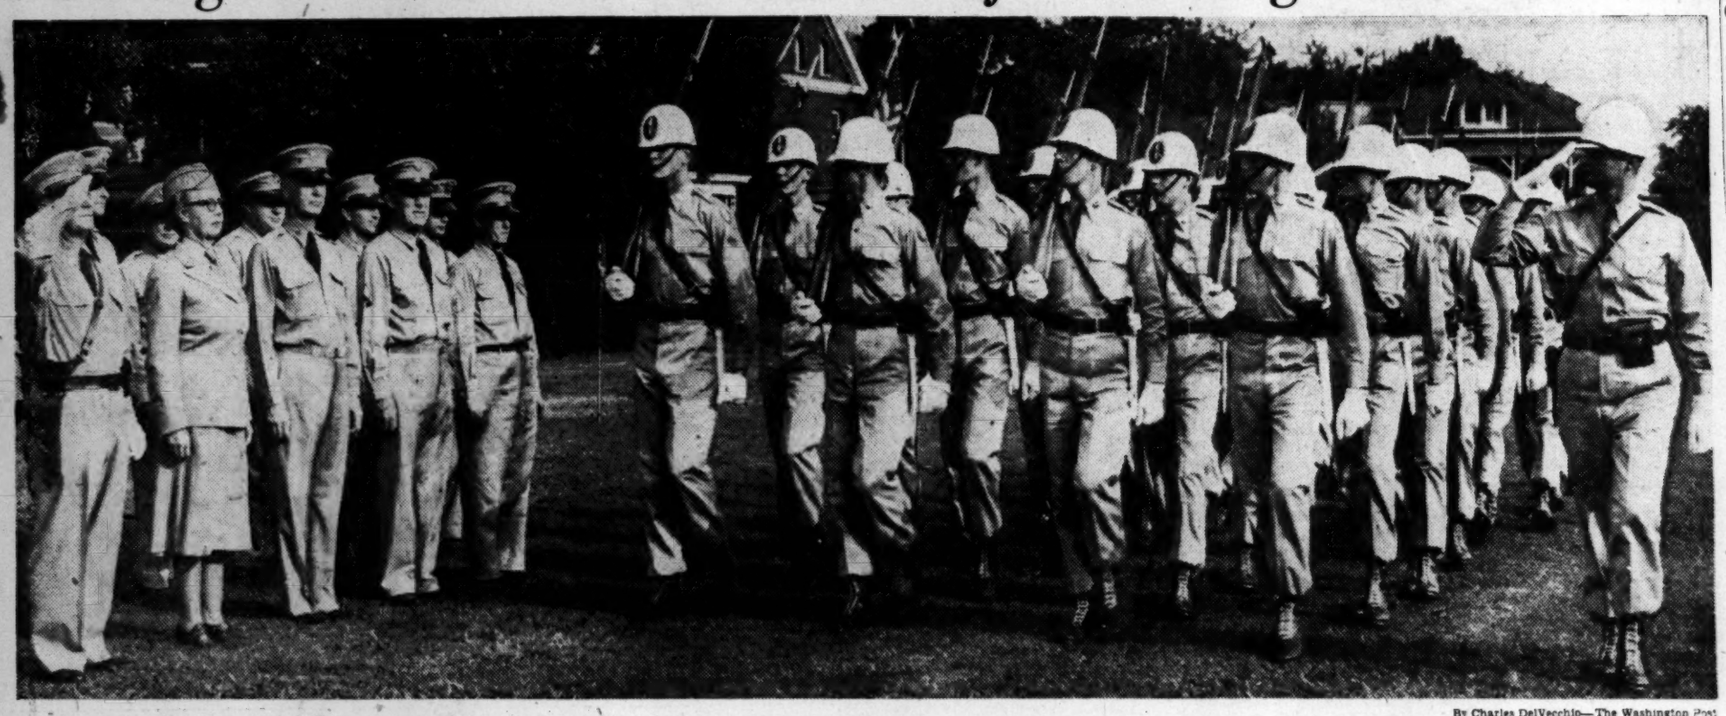
Washington's Own Passes in Review for Retiring Foursome



By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

"EYES, RIGHT!"—The crack drill platoon of the Third Infantry passes before three retiring servicemen and one servicewoman yesterday in a retreat parade at Fort Myer. Col. James V. Cole (extreme left) returns the platoon's salute. Those leaving the service are (left, from Colonel Cole), Lieut. Col. Sara E. Williams, who served 20 years as an Army nurse; Warrant Officer Marion G. Brashear, an overseas veteran of two World Wars with 33 years service; Master Sergt. Walter C. Wolf, 31 years with the Army Engineers, and Sergt. First Class Francis R. Murphy, who served more than 25 years in the Medical Corps. The public was allowed to attend the ceremony for the first time since the end of the war

Ohioan, 50, Drowned Trying to Win $50 Bet

Cincinnati, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Otis Malcolm, 50, gambled on a $50 prize and lost his life trying to prove he could swim the Ohio River if a schoolboy could swim the English Channel.

Members of the Hod Carriers Union today said Malcolm offered to negotiate the river during a discussion of Philip 'Mickman, 18-year-old English schoolboy who swam the Channel yesterday.

Robinson J. Smith said he offered a $50 prize if Malcolm could turn the trick.

Hospital Gets Mail, No Raffle Returns

Cincinnati, Aug. 25 (AP).—Normal mail deliveries were being received at St. Mary's Hospital today—but not mail described by postal authorities as involving a raffle.

In a postal bulletin, circulated to postmasters, the Post Office Department announced it had stopped mail deliveries to St. Mary's because it has been conducting a charity raffle.

The bulletin said the department ad evidence circulars and "lot-ery tickets" had been sent through ne mails by the hospital soliciting onations and giving the donors hances on prizes to be drawn at he institution's annual festival \ugust 27-28.

Postmaster Charles J. Bocklet eceived written orders today pro-ibiting delivery to the hospital of the special raffle envelopes.

For a time yesterday all mail addressed to the hospital was held up on telegraphed orders from Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson. His department ruled mailing of the stubs a violation of the lottery laws.

Later yesterday, however, Bocklet released all but the raffle envelopes.

Bandit Gets $45 From Flower Shop

The Washington Post
INEZ FENDER
Reports robbery

Showing a nickle-plated revolver, a youth robbed Miss Mary Hammond of some $45 early yesterday afternoon in the Savoy Flower Shop, 3032 14th st. nw. She is a coproprietor.

The young, blond bandit entered the store with a gun in his hand and ordered her to "open up the cash register."

Miss Hammond, 47, of 3112 14th st. nw., handed over the bills. Then she offered him the change, amounting to about $2, which he spurned.

Snatching the bills, he ordered her to "get in the back room and stay there for five minutes."

Miss Hammond went into the back room and stayed for five to eight minutes before telephoning police.

She described the bandit as about 5 feet 10 inches tall, 25 years old and weighing about 165 pounds. He was dressed in a brown shirt and blue dungarees, she said.

Police Still Seeking O'Donnell Grill Bandit

Police last night were still investigating the robbery of the cashier at O'Donnell's Sea Grill, 1221 E st. nw., early yesterday.

Miss Inez Fender, 2335 18th st. nw., told police a man with his hand thrust menacingly in his pocket robbed her of $174.85 while she was on duty at the cashier's booth, just inside the restaurant entrance.

The bandit was described as a white man about 30 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, and weighing about 135 pounds. He was dressed in a white shirt and dark blue trousers.

Five suspects picked up in the early morning hours were released after being questioned. The cashier stayed at police headquarters for about two hours attempting to identify rogues gallery pictures.

Patterson Estate Sued For $4245 for Fixtures

A New York lighting-fixture firm yesterday filed a $4245 suit in District Court here against the executors of the estate of the late Eleanor M. Patterson, owner and publisher of the Washington Times-Herald.

Irwin Bolotin, attorney for the firm of Rudolph Wendel, Inc., 730 Fifth ave., New York, said the money was for lighting fixtures provided during Mrs. Patterson's lifetime for her home at 15 Dupont Circle, and for their installation.

Helping Hands

Heifer Stuck In Silo to Be Liberated

Osceloa, Wis., Aug. 25 (AP).—Snoopy, the mischievous silo-imprisoned heifer, may regain the freedom she loves so well by Saturday. But it's going to take a little luck and a lot of hard work by her owner and neighbors.

Snoopy

Snoopy placed herself and her owner, Everett Lampman, farmer near Osceola, in a predicament Wednesday. She hurled her 650 pounds through a silo opening 20 inches wide and 30 inches high, a feat like that of Grady, the famous Oklahoma cow.

Snoopy went Grady one better, however. Snoopy plunged 12 feet below the surface; Grady was at ground level.

The only way to get Snoopy out, Lampman has decided, is to raise the level of the silage to the small opening. So he's going to start filling silo ahead of schedule, Friday. Neighbors have volunteered their help.

Snoopy is going to do the tromping to help pack the shredded corn stalks.

Outing Set Saturday

Man, 21, Jailed In Snapshot Blackmail Case

Stafford D. Lowry, 21, of 808 Xenia st. se., yesterday was sentenced in District Court to a 1-to-4-years term, in jfiail after pleading guilty to attempting to blackmail a State Department employe whom he forced to pose for obscene pictures.

Lowry was arrested July 7 when he fell into a carefully-laid police trap arranged with the cooperation of the Government-employed victim, Gail G. Burnett, 31, of 20 Chesapeake st. se.

Burnett said he was forced to Lowry struck up an acquaintanceship and at Lowry's request went to the home of John A. McConaty, 23, and Thomas E. McConaty, 20, of 3705 Eastern ave., Mount Rainave., Mount Rainier, Md., now under bond for a grand jury hearing on the case.

There, Burnett said, he was forced to disrobe and indecent pictures were taken of him. Then on threat of disclosure of the pictures, he said, the three forced him to agree to sell his car and give the proceeds to them.

Hungry Buzzard Takes Rap For Causing $1000 Smashup

A hungry buzzard breakfasted on skunk on a Prince Georges highway yesterday and caused a smashup that is going to cost about $1000.

The scavenger, startled during his meal on Powder Mill rd. near Beltsville, flew against the windshield of an automobile. The driver, Donald J. Christenson, 24, of R. F. D. 1, Berwyn, couldn't see where he was going. He swerved into the wrong traffic lane.

Joseph H. Hyde, 26, of Brandywine, operator of a county dump truck combing from the opposite direction, also swerved into the wrong lane to avoid hitting Christenson's car.

The buzzard slid off the windshield and flew away. Christenson, swerving back into the proper lane, plowed into Hyde's truck, still in the wrong lane.

Christenson's head was bruised. Both men told it to the police—Corp. Lee Pumphrey, in this case.

Corp. Pumphrey decided the "responsible party" was the buzzard, which had escaped unscathed. No charges were pressed.

Woman Judge Puts Rapist, 15, In Training School Till He's 21

Within 24 hours after he was arrested and charged with the rape and robbery of a 27-year-old woman, 15-year-old William Leach, jr., was sentenced to the National Training School for Boys.

In her first major decision, newly-appointed Judge Edith Cockril took just 20 minutes to assume jurisdiction of the case, read the youth's confession and impose the maximum sentence within the court's power.

Under the rules governing Juvenile Court procedure, Judge Cockril had the option of waiving jurisdiction to District Court where Leach would have faced a possible death penalty for the capital offense of rape.

In less serious offenses, the Juvenile Court judge may waive jurisdiction only after the defendant has passed his sixteenth birthday. Leach will be 16 September 27.

Judge Cockrill later told reporters she had kept the case because the defendant had no previous police record. Assistant Corporation Counsel Richard Barton had recommended Juvenile Court jurisdiction for the same reason.

The offense took place last Saturday at 13th st. and Pennsylvania ave. se., where the victim, a Marine sergeant's wife, was asleep in a parked car which she thought was locked. She later told police she was waiting for her husband to arrive from Camp LeJeune, N. C.

Leach was traced by a laundry mark on a handkerchief found near the scene and was arreested at his home, 1021 7th st. se., Wednesday.

The youth, who attended Randall Junior High School until last February, gave his occupation as a laborer.

Plan to End Deadlock on China Believed To Aid Non-Reds, Not Chiang Specifically

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

A compromise plan to break the deadlock over the inclusion of China in the Administration's arms-aid plan is expected to be offered today to the combined Senate Foreign Relations-Armed Services Committee.

It will provide, it is believed, that non-Communist China—but not specifically the Chinese Nationalist government—may be eligible to receive military aid from a new Far East section of the bill.

About 100 million dollars would be made available for the Far East under the compromise offer, expected to be presented by an Administration leader in the committee.

Discretion Granted

The authorization would carry with it the clear understanding its use or nonuse would be subject to the discretion of the President and would follow a yet-to-be-formulated policy for the Far East.

This offer would be a limited victory for pro-China forces in the Senate, led by Senator Knowland (R., Calif.), who may choose to reject it and hold out for stronger coverage of China.

Knowland has backed a drive to take 175 million dollars from the requested $1,450,000,000 Administration program and channel it through the "government of China" to fight communism.

He has insisted on a guarantee that weapons sent to China should not be charged to a China fund at a higher rate than arms sent to European nations.

Administration leaders publicly indicated for the first time yesterday they will not oppose mention of "China" in the arms bill.

This does not represent any change in their determination to oppose shipment of any new aid to Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist Government, they declared.

They noted that with the recent publication of the White Paper on China, writing off the Nationalist Government as a failure, Secretary of State Acheson stated:

"The United States, for its part, will be prepared to work with the people of China and of every other country in Asia to preserve and to promote their true interest, developed as they choose and not as dictated by any foreign imperialism."

Similar language may even be written into the Far East section of the bill.

Meeting Scheduled

As one indication a compromise of the China dispute may be at hand, Senator Knowland, Senator Smith (R., N. J.), and possibly other Republican Congressmen, were scheduled to meet last night with the three-man State Department committee reviewing Far Eastern policy.

This meeting was arranged some time ago, it was said, and is one of a series of conversations between Congress and the advisory group, composed of Ambassador-at-large Philip C. Jessup, and Raymond Fosdick and Everett Case.

There was some likelihood, however, that Jessup will be present today when the combined Senate committee meets, with the China issue as its first order of business.

If that conflict is resolved today, the committee may complete action on the arms bill by deciding the other major outstanding issue: The amount of military aid to be given Western European members of the North Atlantic Treaty.

The Administration has asked $1,160,000,000 for Europe. The House cut this exactly in half.

Instead of restoring the cut in full, the committee may accept a formula proposed by Senators Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and Dulles (R., N. Y.) for a one-billion-dollar outlay, half in cash and half in contract authority.

Amendment Adopted

At its meeting yesterday, the committee accepted a Vandenberg-Dulles amendment to tie the arms program directly to the Atlantic Treaty, with the declaration:

"Any such assistance furnished . . . shall be subject to agreements . . . designed to assure that the assistance will be used to promote an integrated defense of the North Atlantic area and to facilitate the development of defense plans by the Council and the Defense Committee under Article 9 of the North Atlantic Treaty; and after the agreement by the Government of the United States with defense plans as recommended by the Council and Defense Committee, military assistance hereunder shall be furnished only in accordance therewith."

Another Vandenberg-Dulles amendment, also adopted, empowers the House and Senate, by concurrent resolution, to "recapture" any weapons earmarked for treaty nations.

The President similarly can cancel weapon shipments to countries if the arms would not promote "self-help, mutual aid, and collective capacity to resist armed attack contemplated by the treaty . . ."

Other Sections Approved

Previously approved sections of the bill permit either Congress or the President to cut off assistance to any nation.

The committee wrote into the bill an amendment by Senator Russell (D., Ga.) limiting the amount of weapons in excess of this Nation's mobilization reserve, which are to be included in the program, to 450 million dollars.

These "excess" weapons are charged to the program at only "rehabilitation" cost—about 77 million dollars. Weapons taken from this Nation's reserve would be charged to the program at original or replacement cost. The House adopted a similar amendment.

Iler Appointed Vice Chairman of FSA Chest Drive

Henry C. Iler, chairman of the Employes' Compensation Appeals Board, has been appointed vice chairman of the Federal Security Agency's Community Chest campaign, it was announced yesterday.

Iler

Iler will serve under Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing, FSA campaign chairman. The appointee is a trustee of the United Community Services of Washington and is a member of the governing board of the Federal Bar Association.

The board of which he is chairman hears appeals of injured and occupationally disabled employes of the Federal Government.

'Sufficient' Arms Aid Requested by France

Paris, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—France today urged the United States to put teeth in the Atlantic Pact by furnishing "rapid and sufficient" arms aid to its member nations.

A note addressed to all members of the defensive alliance, said its individual and collective defense clauses could not become effective until all member nations were adequately armed.

Lodge Urges Europe To Unify Armies

Cherbourg, France, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Senator Lodge (R., Mass.) suggested today that western European armies be united into a single defense force.

He said American military aid would be far more effective if it went to a single unit rather than to three or four independent armies.

Lodge arrived here to confer with Western Union defense chiefs as an unofficial observer for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

'Hopes' to Wed Ingrid, Film Director Says

Rome, Aug. 25 (AP).—Roberto Rossellini, Italian movie director, today said he hopes to marry Ingrid Bergman after her divorce is final.

The statement was made to Miss Bergman's personal representative, Joseph Steele, in response to a query by reporters. Rossellini declined to talk directly with a reporter.

The balding, 43-year-old director of Miss Bergman's newest picture expressed his wish to marry the 34-year-old Swedish star, but denied he had announced any marriage plans.

has been made in each direction. It stated that all countries have increased industrial output; taken steps toward stabilizing currencies; and stimulated and increased trade among western European countries.

But the report added this sober observation:

"As the year drew to a close, however, there were indications of a slackening in the rate of progress, particularly in the export trade, which gave warnings of difficult problems that must be solved before the goal of economic independence can be attained."

The agency listed no specific reasons for the slowdown in recovery nor did it cite any country where progress has bogged.

5 Pct. Budget Cut Ordered by British

But Must Rest

Churchill Recovering From Cold

Nice, France, Aug. 25 (AP).—Winston Churchill was reported on the road to recovery today from a cold he caught while swimming in the Mediterranean.

Lord Moran, physician to King George VI and the 74-year-old wartime Prime Minister, issued an official bulletin that allayed fears Churchill might be seriously ill.

"Mr. Churchill contracted a chill while bathing," said the bulletin.

"Lord Moran was sent for and he says Mr. Churchill is much better this morning but will require a few days of rest and quiet."

The statesman weathered two bouts with pneumonia in 1943 and 1944 and has beaten bronchitis and other ailments.

He got news during the day that he had won his first horse race. His French-bred Colonist II, favorite in a field of six, won the 1-mile Upavon Stakes for 3-year-olds at Salisbury, England, and a purse of about $1192.

London, Aug. 25 (AP)—Britain today launched a double-barreled attack on its economic crisis.

First, the Treasury told all department heads to trim for a £150,000,000 ($600,000,000) cut in next year's budget.

That means an average of 5 per cent less than under the £3,000,000,000 ($12,000,000,000) budget for the fiscal year which began April 1.

Of the current budget, Britain's defense spending will account for about a quarter. So the armed forces are expected to be a big target in the economy move. Another target may be the expensive national health scheme.

Export Drive Discussed

The second attack on the economic problem went into high gear with talks on how to sell more goods for dollars. Paul G. Hoffman, head of the European Cooperation Administration spoke first at a private luncheon of an Anglo-American committee on productivity. He arranged to meet government leaders later at the U. S. Embassy.

He will pursue his inquiry into expansion of British exports Friday at a luncheon with the Dollar Export Board. Sources close to the ECA chief said his meetings with British leaders have been "frank and honest, with no punches pulled."

United States Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas has invited a group of top British leaders to dinner tonight to meet with Hoffman. They include Prime Minister Attlee, Foreign Secretary Bevin and Board of Trade President Harold Wilson.

The government economy order came from Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

'Urgent and Emphatic'

Cripps' advice to department heads was "urgent and emphatic," an informant said.

In Washington, President Truman said he was hopeful something will be accomplished in the coming British-Canadian-American financial talks. The talk of recriminations between the United States and the British, he said, have all been in the newspapers, and nowhere else.

The British Government informant said London's economy drive did not result from any American pressure.

Strasbourg 'Experiment' Pleases Spaak

Strasbourg, Aug. 25 NYHT.—Paul-Henri Spaak, president of the European Consultative Assembly, was enthusiastic today about the progress of the infant assembly, declaring "the experiment . . . has surpassed everything I expected of it in the way of positive results."

For its future, he said economic unification is the way "the organization of Europe" should be begun by the Council of Europe. A single European currency and a standardization of European social security laws were essential, he suggested.

Spaak said he believed the assembly must envisage the admission of Germany "with a fairly short time" but he was not in favor of pressing this matter if there was any opposition because the assembly should not be faced at the beginning with issues which tend to divide it.

Snarls Open Peace Parley

Moscow, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—An all-Russian "conference of peace partisans" opened today to the accompaniment of explosive press attacks on the United States and individual Americans.

Some 1500 persons, delegates from all over the Soviet Union and their numerous foreign guests, attended the opening session in the House of Columns.

A two-point program was adopted—a report on "the struggle for peace against warmongers" and a proposal for the election of a Russian committee on peace.

Historian Boris D. Grekhov, in the keynote speech, said:

"Among the millions of people in the Soviet Union not a single man is to be found who opposes our peace policy. Peaceful, creative labor is the sole basis of life in the Soviet Union."

Prof. W. E. B. du Bois, American Negro historian; the Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, "Red" Dean of Canterbury, England, and Pietro Nenni, Italian left wing socialist leader, were among the foreigners present.

Dean Hewlett told the conference he could not believe Britain would fight the Soviet Union and that he found an "immense" peace sentiment in the United States.

Broker Finds $25,000 On Mass. Highway

Wareham, Mass., Aug. 25 (AP).—An odd looking package in the center of a highway attracted the attention of David Lumiansky, New Bedford insurance broker and prize fight matchmaker.

He stopped his car and picked it up. It contained $25,000 in bills.

Lumiansky reported to police. If no one claims it in a year, it's all Lumiansky's, police said.

Prague Reds Fear Disturbances

Prague, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—An unprecedented Communist order of the day asked national security police tonight to set up "barriers of vigilance" against religious disturbances during the coming week.

Czechoslovakia begins its fifth anniversary of the abortive Slovak uprising against the Nazis in 1944 this weekend, when Communist President Klement Gottwald goes to the Roman Catholic stronghold of Slovakia. He speaks on Monday.

Roman Catholic Slovak peasants battled Communist police with scythes and clubs last June to protect their priests.

The order told police to remember the "historical connection" between the church and the Nazi occupation—when a Roman Catholic priest, Father Josef Tiso, was installed as puppet of Slovakia—and the current dispute between the church and the Communist state.

Poland Warns Catholic Church

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Polish government semi-official organs said today the Roman Catholic Church in Poland must break its "political" ties with Rome and the Western world as the price for being allowed to continue its "internal life" without interference.

The official Polish news agency, PAP, quoted articles outlining the government's position.

The government - sponsored Catholic organ Slowo Powszechne said the Polish clergy must adapt its policies to "contemporary (Communist) Poland, and must break off with the hopes of present Anglo-Saxon political circles, be these circles in Washington, London, or Rome."

Under these circumstances, the paper said, the government "would not interfere with the internal life of the church, whether in the doctrinal or in the organizational field."

For All Germany

Soviet Zone Press Urges Trade Unity

Berlin, Aug. 25 (AP)—The Soviet-controlled press of the city's eastern sector broke out today with a rash of editorials suggesting economic unity for all Germany.

The principle is not new in the Soviet propaganda machinery but is considered significant when revived in the press.

German anti-Kremlin Communists contend they have information Russia will spring a proposal for German unity at the fall session of the Big Four foreign ministers.

Two factors stood out in the new Russian approach:

1. Officials of the Soviet sector of Berlin said an "understanding" is possible in the ruling of the city;

2. The Communist - dominated People's Council of the Soviet zone disclosed that east and west German economics authorities are dealing again for a trade treaty. A communist leader said good results might come out of the trade talks.

The Russians also seemed to be easing off their attacks on the west German republic founded at Bonn.

By the United Press

State Department officials yesterday accused Russian authorities in eastern Germany of holding two American students as "hostages" for the return of three Red army deserters.

The Soviets have ignored repeated American assurances the alleged deserters are not in United States hands, they said.

Soviet liaison officers told American officials in Berlin on August 3 that two Americans had been picked up in the Soviet zone without proper credentials. Efforts to obtain their release have failed.

The Russians identified the students as "O. L. James and P. H. Selser." They presumably referred to Warren Oesner of Palm Beach, Fla., and Peter Sellers of Radnor, Pa., missing in Germany since July 29.

State Department spokesmen said their identity has not been established definitely.

They said a Soviet liaison officer told United States officers August 20, return of the two could be speeded up if the United States would turn over three Russian deserters.

Mason Seems Assured Of FTC Reappointment

President Truman said yesterday that he probably will reappoint Lowell Mason to the Federal Trade Commission. A reporter had asked him at a news conference about Mason's future.

Mason's term expires September 25. A Chicagoan, he was appointed to the commission in 1945. That appointment was to fill a vacancy due to the death of a commissioner, and to complete the unexpired portion of the term. A regular term is for seven years.

Red Satellites Attack Failed, Yugoslavs Say

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 25 (U.P.)—Belgrade newspapers said today that Russia had taken over the direction of the Communist attack on Yugoslavia because her satellites had fallen down on the job and their propaganda was backfiring.

The Communist party newspaper Borba declared the basic issue in the Yugoslav-Russian dispute is "whether espionage and propaganda . . . urging the overthrow of the state structure by means of force do not constitute an impermissible antidemocratic mixing in the internal affairs of this country."

The only "guilt" of Tito's government, Borba said, is that it did not submit to attempts to dictate to her and make her a satellite.

Yugoslav Aid to Greeks Cut, U. N. Unit Says

Lake Success, Aug. 25 (AP)—The United Nations special committee on the Balkans said today Yugoslavia has reduced her aid to Greek guerillas and may have halted such aid completely.

France, Argentina Complete Work on New Trade Pact

Buenos Aires, Aug. 25 (AP)—France and Argentina completed work today on a bi-lateral trade agreement providing exchange of goods valued at 35,000,000,000 francs ($105,000,000).

The signing is expected to take place soon.

The agreement follows a British-Argentine two-way trade pact which brought a U. S. State Department protest. The United States has urged multi-lateral trade pacts in the interests of world business recovery.

The new agreement envisages balanced trade between France and Argentina.

Warsaw Church Shut On Report of Miracle

Warsaw, Aug. 25 (AP).—A Russian Orthodox church, one of two in Warsaw, was closed today after pilgrims had gathered to see a reported new "miracle" of the Virgin Mary weeping.

One report said a statue of the Virgin had started crying, while another said a picture of the Virgin was weeping.

An officer in charge of a detachment of 200 policemen said the church was closed because of its dangerous condition as the result of war damage.

Chinese Reds Are 140 Miles From Canton

Canton, China, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Communists were reported threatening points within 140 miles northeast of Canton tonight, but a Chinese Nationalist spokesman said they wouldn't dare to go far because of government gains on the western flank.

Unofficial reports said the Reds led by one-eyed General Cheng were thrusting at Klennan (Chiennan), Lungnan and Tingnan, all within 140 miles of Canton on a 35-mile arc.

[The United Press said the Chinese Communists isolated the big port of Amoy on the Fukien Province "invasion coast" today and its capture appeared imminent. Amoy and Foochow are on the Formosa Strait opposite Formosa. Foochow fell last week.]

(At Manila, Vice Admiral Oscar C. Badger said today the evacuation of American citizens from Canton by the Navy "is now concluded.")

Secluded Nuns To Go Outside

Vatican City, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Vatican has initiated a revision of the cloistered religious orders to allow the hitherto secluded nuns to go out in the world and spread the Roman Catholic faith, Vatican sources said today.

The change was undertaken at the request of church authorities of many countries and will be completed in about two years. Nuns will be permitted to take up outside church activities, such as teaching, and convents will be made accessible to visitors.

It is planned to equalize the economic burdens of the various orders, some much better off than others. Nuns will be allowed to transfer from one convent to another for reasons of health.

Nuns who desire to continue withdrawn from the world will be able to do so.

Germans Demand Americans Get Out And Let Them In

Nuernberg, Germany, Aug. 25 (U.P.)—Representatives of three million German "occupation victims" demanded yesterday that American officials give them back their homes.

The Society of Occupation-Damaged Germans," meeting at Fuerth, adopted a 10-point resolution demanding that United States soldiers and civilians be housed in barracks to release German homes and asking full payment for furniture and other items in place of the present 10-to-1 discount.

One speaker said it was "intolerable" that one American couple should occupy a 10-room villa while German families with many children were "jammed" into single rooms.

Scott Heads Iron Unit Of ECA Paris Office

The Economic Cooperation Administration yesterday announced the appointment of David H. Scott as chief of the iron and steel branch of the Paris headquarters.

Scott, on leave from the Oliver Iron & Steel Corp., Pittsburgh, will succeed Kenneth E. Brown, who is returning to Bethlehem Steel Export Corp., after a year's leave.

Finn Charges Strike Aims at Reparations

Helsinki, Finland, Aug. 25 (U.P.)—Premier Karl A. Fagerholm charged today that Communist strike leaders hope to delay war reparations shipments to Russia and force Finland to pay "high penalties."

The Premier declared the Reds still hope to bring about a general strike before Parliament meets next Thursday, despite the failure of many of the walkouts they have called so far.

Four unions—the transport workers, the loggers, the builders and the food industry workers—still are on strike despite their expulsion yesterday from the National Labor Federation. Fagerholm estimated the number of strikers was "probably under 25,000"—about 40 per cent of the unions' claimed membership.

The Socialist Premier said the government would take no drastic action against the strikers.

"We cannot force people to work if they do not want to," he said. "We hope, however, the people will understand the aims of the Communists."

6 German Delegates Were Nazis, U. S. Finds

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 25 (AP). Six delegates elected to the new West German Parliament from the state of Hesse had former Nazi connections, a United States Military Government survey disclosed today.

All were candidates of the Free Democratic Party, a right-wing group which ranked third in the August 14 voting.

How to use spring lamb in summer menus

Lazy appetites have a way of perking up in a hurry when there's lamb on the menu. So if you're looking for new ways to serve this uniformly tender meat, take a few tips from us. These recipes always score high.

BARBECUED BREAST OF LAMB

Cut breast of lamb into pieces for serving and marinate for several hours in tomato or barbecue sauce. Drain and place in a single layer in a drip pan; season with salt and pepper. Do not add water or cover. Roast in moderately hot oven (400° F.) for about 1 hour or until well-browned and meat is done, turning occasionally. Lamb ribs are delicious prepared in the same way.

LAMB POT ROAST

Brown pot roast of lamb in hot drippings in heavy kettle. Add 2 cups cooked tomatoes, 1 chopped onion, salt, pepper and 1 bay leaf. Cover tightly and simmer for about 1 hour. Add whole carrots and new potatoes, cover and cook until vegetables are tender, about 20 to 30 minutes.

SKEWERED LAMB

Cut lamb slices into 1-inch squares and string on skewers alternately with chunks of pineapple or orange slices. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, and pan-fry in hot fat until meat is tender, and well-browned. Or broil under broiler until well-browned, basting frequently with melted shortening or drippings.

LAMBURGERS

Season ground lamb with salt, pepper, and a pinch of curry powder. Add grated onions to taste. Shape into large, flat patties and fry or broil. Serve on toasted buns with lots of catsup.

LAMB POT PIE

Select lamb stew, neck slices or breast of lamb. If breast is used, cut into cubes. Place lamb in water to cover, season with salt and pepper, and add bay leaf and sprig of thyme if desired. Cover tightly and cook until tender, about 1½ hours, adding more water if necessary. Remove lamb from stock and make stock into gravy. Place lamb and gravy in well-greased casserole, and top with baking powder biscuit rounds. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) for 15 to 20 minutes, or until biscuits are browned.

B-36 Probers Clear Defense Secretary and Air Force Officials

Counsel Joseph Keenan yesterday made it plain they would pursue the first subject thoroughly.

Keenan plans to go over the document with Worth to trace the sources of some of the discredited charges it contains.

"The area of infection may be wider and deeper than we know," he added.

Earlier, Vinson declared:

"When we get through, you'll see plenty of people had something to do with it in the Navy Department."

Worth, the 49-year-old wartime Navy commander and former reporter and fiction writer, took full blame for the document attacking Air Force chiefs. He said no one had collaborated with him in its preparation, though he had asked and received from others information which went into it.

In this connection, he named Glenn L. Martin, Baltimore plane builder, and Commander Thomas Davies, Navy pilot who flew the Truculent Turtle on a record-breaking flight across the Pacific.

Martin, Worth said, had asked him to prepare the memorandum reciting adverse rumors and other material about the B-36. Martin submitted it to Senator Tydings (D., Md.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, the suspended Navy official said.

Earlier he testified that Representative Deane (D., N. C.) had requested him to compile the data for Jonathan Daniels, who at the time was considering an offer of an appointment as Secretary of the Navy.

Daniel issued a statement flatly denying this yesterday.

The Navy court of inquiry charged with finding out whether anyone else in the sea service was involved in preparation of the Worth document consists of:

Adm. Thomas Kinkaid, commander of the Eastern Sea Frontier; Vice Adm. Donald B. Beary, president of the Naval War College, and Rear. Adm. Glenn B. Davis, commandant of the Potomac River Naval Command.

The court will meet here Monday at 10 a. m. Officials last night could not say whether it would meet in the open or behind closed doors. Capt. Sanford B. D. Wood will serve as Judge Advocate and Lieut. Malcolm J. Bradbury as counsel.

Symington acted swifty to ease interservice feeling caused by Worth's admission he had written the anonymous memorandum. He wrote Secretary Johnson he has complete confidence in the "character and integrity" of the Navy high command.

Though "deeply shocked" by Worth's testimony, Symington said it has not shaken his trust in Matthews, Kimball and "all those fine officers" of the Navy who are "doing so much for national security."

Johnson forwarded the letter to Matthews, with the observation that he shared Symington's "confidence" and considered the latter had shown the "right spirit."

Floyd Odlum, whom Worth had called "unscrupulous" and charged with trying to "take over" the defense forces, was heard by the committee yesterday afternoon. He declared "there is not one rivet of politics in the B-36" and categorically denied all the charges and insinuations in the document and in a House speech by Representative Van Zandt (R., Pa.) which closely paralleled it.

After the session, Van Zandt told reporters the hearings have "cleared the air," just as he had hoped. He said everyone mentioned in the "ugly rumors" he had aired were exonerated and "that is exactly as it should be."

Van Zandt voted, along with other members of the committee, to indorse the following statement made by Chairman Vinson:

"There has not been, in the judgment of the committee, one iota, not one scintilla, of evidence offered thus far in these hearings that would support charges or insinuations that collusion, fraud, corruption, influence or favoritism played any part whatsoever in the procurement of the B-36 bomber.

"There has been very substantial and very compelling evidence that the Air Force has selected this bomber and procured this bomber solely on grounds that this is the best aircraft for its purposes available to this Nation today.

"As of this time, I feel that the Nation should know that the Secretary of the Air Force, Mr. Symington, the military leaders of the Air Force, and the Secretary of Defense have come through this inquiry without the slightest blemish—that these men continue to merit the complete confidence of the American people in their past actions and in the future."

Names Navy Officers

Worth was called to the stand as the hearing opened yesterday. Keenan asked him to name everyone with whom he had been in contact since the day before.

The Navy aide said the following officers had called him Wednesday night: Comdr. Harry Cross, Capt. Peter G. Hale, Capt. David McDonald, Capt. J. L. Pratt, Capt. Roy Simpler and Comdr. Tom Davies.

All asked him how he felt and whether they could do anything for him, Worth said. He stated he said they could do nothing.

Then counsel wanted to know what newspapermen he had talked to about the B-36. He replied he'd seen Hanson Baldwin, military editor of the New York Times; Jim Lucas, military writer for Scripps-Howard, and Jerry Greene of the New York Daily News.

Keenan next questioned Worth at length about his statement the day before he had told his boss, Undersecretary Kimball, a few days ago that he was the author of the mysterious document. Worth acknowledged he had been in error about this, but said there had been "no intent to deceive."

Kimball Testifies

He said he had told Kimball that a naval officer had told him Chairman Vinson had said that he (Worth) had written the document. Worth testified that Commander Davies had given him the information and said that Commander David Martineau, Navy Capitol Hill representative, had been the officer Vinson had talked to.

Secretary Kimball later testified that Worth had told him Monday that his name was mentioned on the "Hill" in connection with the document. He said he had replied that, if so, Worth might be called to testify.

Didn't you ask him what he knew?" demanded Vinson.

Investigation Launched

No, said Kimball, he had been busy. He revealed that earlier he had launched an investigation to find out who had written the document, but that it had revealed nothing.

Symington, declared the Undersecretary, had told him in April that an anonymous document attacking the Air Force was circulating on Capitol Hill and that some Navy officers might be behind it. Kimball said he'd told Naval Intelligence to investigate.

He'd asked Worth about it, and had been told he was quite sure no high-ranking naval officer was involved, he said.

Worth later asked if he could give assurance of immunity if he found out who did it, but the Undersecretary said this was not possible. Later, Naval Intelligence reported they were unable to find out anything about the matter, Kimball said.

Keenan asked Kimball if he'd ever inquired whether or not Worth had ever been in a sanatorium. The Undersecretary said no. Later, Keenan said the question had been "exploratory" only, based on the document.

Meeting Is Reported

Van Zandt questioned Worth about their meeting at the Capitol in an effort to show they'd talked only very briefly and that he did not know Worth wrote the document. The suspended Navy aide agreed with the former, but said he believed Van Zandt knew he'd written the document.

The Pennsylvania Congressman said the main reason for the meeting was not to give him the memo, but to deliver a letter from the editor of Reader's Digest. The latter, he said, disclosed that top Air Force officers had collaborated with William Bradford Huie in preparing several articles attacking Navy admirals and advocating primary reliance on the Air Force.

Keenan then took Worth over his now famous document, point by point. He asked him where the information had come from, and on what facts his statements were based. Worth acknowledged most were based on rumor.

Tells of USAF Order

At one point, the latter said that either Commander Davies or Captain Simpler had told him about a USAF order to cancel B-36 production that was being drafted but was later withdrawn.

Davies, Worth said, had told him about the log of Symington's plane showing frequent visits to Odlum's ranch near Palm Springs, Calif. These allegations were denied by the Air Force.

Davies, said Worth, accompanied him to Baltimore in April to get material from Glenn Martin for the document. Later he met Martin at the Statler to give him the memorandum.

Odlum took the witness chair after the noon recess. He told the committee his huge Atlas Corp. had bought control of Consolidated-Vultee in 1947, but found they'd "made a mistake."

Operating costs were higher than anticipated and the company's bank loans were in default, he said. Convair lost 12 million dollars in 1948, but now is in the black, Odlum went on. The company has lost money on the B-36 to date, he said.

He said he met Symington first at a prize fight at Madison Square Garden several years ago and didn't see him again until July, 1948. The Air Force Secretary by then had made speeches backing the B-36 as an ace bomber. The anonymous charges had insinuated that the Air Force was about to cancel its B-36 order until Odlum and Symington cooked up a deal for a huge aircraft trust to be headed by the latter.

The document charged also that Odlum had donated between $1,500,000 and $6,500,000 to President Truman's 1948 campaign through Louis Johnson, then head of the Democratic finance committee.

The financier said he'd put up less than $5000 for the campaign—his usual contribution during presidential campaigns for the past 20 years.

Vinson asked Odlum if he had been a "Tuesday or Wednesday Democrat."

"I supported Mr. Truman when all the experts said he had no chance," he replied. "I saw such a courageous fight being put up, I came to Washington to stand up and be counted as no fair-weather Democrat."

Worth Called "Stooge"

After categorically denying all charges in the document and Van Zandt's speech, Odlum took a verbal sock at the Congressman and Worth.

He termed the latter a "stooge" who had helped potential enemies and said Van Zandt could have avoided "all this trouble" by checking his facts "with me."

Then Worth began his recantation—which one reporter compared to a "Russian trial." He admitted he had no information to back up his charges and insinuations.

Keenan took him over them all. Did he believe Lieut. Gen. Curtis LeMay was honest in recommending concentration on the B-36? Yes, replied Worth.

Were Kenney, Vandenberg and the other top officers honorable men and honest in their judgment?

"Yes."

"Is the Air Force safe with these men in command?"

"Yes."

"If there was any mistake, it was one of honest judgment?" continued Keenan.

"Yes."

'I Regret That'

How about what he said about Symington's planning to resign to head an aircraft trust?

"I regret that," Worth replied, "I think now that that was wrong."

"Are you still of the opinion that the B-36 orders were obtained through political influence, chicanery or corruption?" persisted the prosecutor.

"No," was the reply.

"Do you realize the heartaches this anonymous document has caused?"

"Yes."

"Do you realize the disservice you have done the American people?"

"Yes, I do."

"Do you still consider Mr. Odlum an 'unscrupulous' man?"

"After hearing his testimony, I don't think he's unscrupulous," Worth replied.

Others Testify

After Keenan concluded, he announced that he and James Gillin, the Republican associate counsel, agreed with the committee that the charges had been completely exploded.

But he asked that anyone having any knowledge of the case see or write him at Room 414, Old House Office Building, or call Extension 2000, on the Capitol exchange.

Before quitting the committee heard:

Col. John W. Sessums, deputy Air Force research chief, who denied he ever saw an order to cut back B-36 production. The document said he blocked such an order.

Harvey C. Tafe, Consolidated-Vultee Washington representative, who said he had never asked Sessums to hold up such an order, as charged.

Edwin L. Weisl, Odlum's attorney, who denied an allegation his firm was an intermediary in the negotiations on the reported cutback plans.

Autos Voted For Maimed of 2 World Wars

By the United Press

The House yesterday approved a bill to provide free automobiles to all blind or amputee veterans of World Wars I and II.

Automobiles are now provided only for World War II amputees.

The bill, sent to the Senate for acceptance of a minor amendment, was one of six affecting veterans and their welfare approved by the House.

The chamber sent to the White House for President Truman's signature a bill authorizing the Veterans' Administration to grant special housing loans to paralytic veterans. Such loans now are made only to amputees.

It approved and sent to the Senate a bill permitting veterans taking building trade instructions under the GI bill to work on actual construction projects on public school grounds. They now can work only in school workshops or laboratories.

Representative Earl Chudoff (D., Pa.) blocked action temporarily on a bill authorizing construction of a Booker T. Washington Hospital in Franklin County, Va., for use by Negro war veterans. He objected to passing it by unanimous consent because it was a "segregated" project.

the committee inquire further into the issues involved in those cases where the five AEC commissioners failed to vote unanimously."

'Job Done Thoroughly'

"The Joint Committee has, in all, devoted upwards of 10 meetings to problems growing out of personnel security," McMahon said.

"Of 34 cases brought specifically to the committee's attention, 14 or more have been discussed in considerable detail, and much additional meeting time has been spent considering the standards that should be applied in evaluating the commission's personnel security decisions.

"Even further, summaries of all the 34 specific cases have been made available to individual committee members for some time.

"I feel that the committee, as regards personnel security cases, has already done its job and done it thoroughly. Moreover, in the investigation as a whole, the committee has spent nearly three months and has held 44 separate sessions.

"Except at recent meetings, when lack of attendance indicated recognition that all significant matters had previously been covered, the committee members have worked diligently and conscientiously to make the investigation full, fruitful and just.

"I want to express my appreciation of this contribution, made at a time when competing demands upon the members' attention have never been more pressing.

'Complete, Fair Opportunity'

"I believe that in accordance with the principles which I enunciated at the start of the investigation, all parties concerned have had complete and fair opportunity to develop the facts and to present their respective cases."

The committee's immediate task, now, McMahon pointed out, is the writing of a report to Congress on the investigation.

McMahon said those present at yesterday's meeting, although not a quorum, unanimously concurred in his decision to close the hearings. Hickenlooper did not attend.

That Twin's Toni Revealed Work of Professional, Too

The Federal Trade Commission yesterday gave at least one reason why it's so tough to figure out which twin has the Toni.

The cold (wave) fact, said the commission, is this:

"The coiffure of the twin who received the Toni wave and both the wave and the coiffure of the other twin were all effected by a professional hairdresser."

The Toni Co., Chicago, has entered into a stipulation with the commission, it was announced, to modify its advertising so as to eliminate representations that the Toni twin's $2 wave was done by herself or by an amateur.

Compton Reports Progress Is 'Well Advanced' On Missiles With 'Few' Hundred Miles Range

By the United Press

Dr. Karl T. Compton, chairman of the Research and Development Board, last night reported "well advanced progress" in development of surface-to-surface guided missiles with range of a "few" hundred miles.

Speaking on the fourth of five special defense broadcasts over the Columbia Broadcasting System's Nation-wide network, Compton said the Nation's top scientists also are working on surface-to-air, air-to-air and air-to-surface guided missiles.

In missile terminology, "surface" means that the weapon is fired from, or aimed at, an object on the surface of the earth or sea—a military base, or ship for example. "Air" refers to missiles fired from or at aircraft.

Compton said an effective air-to-air missile may well wipe out any advantage that jet fighters made over long-range bombers.

He said 500 million dollars a year is being spent on some 13,000 research projects, on which work about 2300 scientists, engineers and research administrators.

Brannan Sends Subsidy Plan 'Out on Road'

By The Associated Press

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan sent his farm price subsidy proposal out on the road yesterday in the hope that farmers will give it a warmer reception than it got in Congress.

He is looking toward next year's session, and the 1950 and 1952 political campaigns.

His salesmen are key Democratic Party officials from 16 Midwestern and Western States, here for a meeting of the Democratic National Committee. Brannan gave them a pep talk yesterday morning.

Brannan said he is pretty sure the farmers will approve his plan as soon as they understand it.

He advocates dropping the Government purchase and loan programs. The perishables would be sold for whatever they would bring in the market. If the average price received by farmers fell short of a previously set "fair return" standard, the farmers would get Treasury checks for the difference.

Unless House and Senate get together on a new farm bill, the Aiken law passed by the Republican Eightieth Congress will go into effect next January 1. This authorizes flexible price supports, ranging from 60 to 90 per cent of parity. Parity is a price caculated to give farmers a fair return in terms of things they have to buy.

The House voted to repeal the Aiken law and continue for another year current price supports at 90 per cent of parity.

The Senate Agriculture Committee closed out hearings yesterday on a proposed compromise plan. It would provide supports at 75 to 90 per cent of parity for six basic crops, and 60 to 90 per cent for others.

Fee Cut to Aid Amvets Deal For Housing

A real estate firm aiding a veterans group to purchase the Federally owned Potomac Heights housing project near Indian Head, Md., has agreed to cut its fee, a veterans official said yesterday.

Michael J. Styles, national housing expediter for Amvets, said the firm has altered its agreement with Amvets Post No. 4, located in the development, and thus was able to lower its fee from $100 per unit to $25. An attorney also aiding the project likewise will accept a lower fee than first agreed upon, Styles said.

Styles said he expects the cooperative veterans group, a nonprofit organization, to obtain its formal option on the 483-unit development early next week from the Public Housing Administration. He said the group then will have 90 days in which to sign up veterans as tenants for at least 60 per cent of the units.

The real estate firm, Allen & Rocks, already has signed up 407 potential owners, according to Ralph Rocks. Many of them now are tenants in the Government-owned project.

But another group of tenants has filed a petition with the PHA and with the Senate Banking Committee protesting the proposed sale. This petition, signed by some 225 family representatives said to be living in the project, declared the tenants were being told they would have to put up the $50 purchase deposit or be forced to move.

It was pointed out by a committee aide yesterday that the new national rent law requires agreement of 65 per cent of those living in a project before it can be turned into a cooperative and tenants evicted.

Styles, in defending the co-op project, said Amvets has been trying to keep the big housing area in the hands of veterans. He said the vets would pay only $930 for a one-bedroom house, $1250 for two bedrooms and $1500 for three. For those who do not have the necessary down payment, about $200, Styles said a Washington bank has agreed to make a loan at regular interest rates.

In the petition of protest it was stated that many present tenants are servicemen who frequently are shifted to other posts on short notice. Styles said the co-op would have sufficient reserve to buy out any purchaser's equity without a loss to the purchaser.

VFW Elects New York Man As Commander

Miami, Fla., Aug. 25 (U.P.)—Clyde A. Lewis, 36-year-old bomber pilot veteran of World War II, was unanimously elected commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars today and Chicago was selected as the 1950 convention city.

Lewis

Lewis of Plattsburgh, N. Y., became the first veteran of World War II to head a major veterans organization.

Date of the Chicago meeting will be decided by the VFW council next month.

Lewis became commander by acclamation according to the VFW tradition that the senior vice commander succeed to hte commandership.

Charles C. Ralls, 45, Seattle, Wash., lawyer and also a World War II veteran, moved up from junior vice commander to senior vice commander. The convention will end Friday.

Robert B. Handy, jr., Washington, D. C., was unopposed for quartermaster general, entering his thirtieth year in the post.

Russians, Iranians Reported Shooting

Tehran, Iran, Aug. 25 (AP).—A military informant said today Russian and Iranian troops exchanged fire for about five hours last Sunday when Soviet soldiers attacked an Iranian army post.

The clash occurred when a considerable number of Russian troops made a foray into Khorasan province in northeastern Iran, the informant said.

According to another usually reliable source, the Russians reportedly wiped out an Iranian army post at Sari Aslan, near Naftlijeh in the Gorgan area, before returning to Soviet territory.

Judge Rejects Reds' Demand For Mistrial

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Federal Judge Harold R. Medina today denied the demands of defense counsel for a mistrial in the eight-month-old Communist conspiracy trial.

At the same time, the court refused to disqualify Juror Russell Janney, 65-year-old best-seller author and theatrical producer, whom the defense accused of anti-Communist bias.

Medina announced his decision to the packed courtroom after having the two motions under advisement since yesterday.

Judge Medina then said that since the defense had entered its motion for a mistrial he had been besieged by a flood of thousands of telegrams from all parts of the country.

Pointing out that it was "utterly improper for others by any means to seek to influence the judge," Medina added:

"I will not be intimidated. Those things are wrong and should be stopped."

The defense demanded a mistrial on the ground that Janney, author of the novel "Miracle of the Bells," had demonstrated bias against the 11 defendants in private conversations with an actress and singer, Miss Carol L. Nathanson.

It also produced a clipping from the Macon (Ga.) Telegraph of last February in which Janney was quoted as saying in an interview:

"Communism breeds intolerance. People who want communism should go to Russia to live."

Eugene Dennis, one of the defendants who is serving as his own attorney, protested Judge Medina's remarks about the flood of communications he had received in an attempt to influence his decision.

Trial Recessed Witness Just Became Mother

New York, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—The last witness at the Communist conspiracy trial today walked slowly to the stand and sat down weakly. He spoke so low no one could hear him.

Judge Harold Medina interrupted the testimony of Edward E. Strong, a member of the Communist Party Philadelphia, to ask with concern:

"Do you feel all right, Mr. Strong?"

The witness nodded weakly.

Defense Attorney Richard Gladstein conferred with his colleagues and then rose to tell the court: "I've just been told that Mr. Strong's wife had a baby this morning."

Judge Medina turned to the witness and said, "Mr. Strong, you get right off that witness stand and go home."

Judge Medina then recessed the trial a half hour early. Strong will be called later.

The Gallup Poll:

Most Voters Say Red Cannot Be Christian

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 25.—Can a man be a good Christian and a Communist at the same time?

Pope Pius, in the Catholic Church battle against Communism in Europe, has laid down the dictum that Christianity and Communism are irreconcilable. Some Communists say, however, that Communist theory is very similar to the teachings of Jesus Christ.

An overwhelming proportion of Americans, both Protestant and Catholic, agree with the Pope's position in the matter.

Nearly 8 out of every 10 persons in a coast-to-coast survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion offer the view that a person cannot be a good Christian and hold a membership card in the Communist Party at the same time.

Here is the vote:

"Do you think a man can be a good Christian and at the same time be a member of the Communist Party?"

Yes	10%
No	77
No opinion	13

The survey found little difference among individual groups in the population.

Here is the vote by religious preference:

	Yes	No	No Opin.
Protestants	9	78	13
Catholics	10	81	9

A very large majority of people questioned in surveys have expressed the view that the Communists would destroy the Christian religion if they could. The "cold" war between the United States and Russia has an element of a religious war in it.

In 1947 the Institute conducted a national survey on the question:

"Do you think Communists would destroy the Christian religion if they could?"

The vote follows:

Yes	72%
No	15
No opinion	13

U. N.'s Cornerstone Lacks Only a Date

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—The cornerstone for the new United Nations headquarters going up on Manhattan's East Side is ready to lay—except for one thing. It doesn't carry a date.

Mr. Truman is booked to lay the cornerstone at dedication ceremonies. So far, U. N. officials haven't been able to get together with the President on a date for the event.

And since the stone must bear the date corresponding with time of the dedication, builders don't know whether to carve the year 1949 or 1950 on the stone.

Neons Shine, Chrome Glitters On Open House Night in Tomb

St. Petersburg, Fla., Aug. 25 (AP).—A little red brick mausoleum in Greenwood Cemetery here is attracting considerable attention nowadays.

The last resting place of Mrs. Beulah Acklin, it is open to the public. It's furnished like a living room. There are two chrome pipe chairs, ash trays, a wire recorder outfit, electric lights, religious mottos, and a register in which more than 1800 visitors have written their names.

Fluorescent red and yellow lights are hung in the corners. Mrs. Acklin's first name is outlined in blue neon script letters six inches high in back of the casket.

Roy Acklin, 54, formerly a mail carrier, built the monument. He visits it almost daily.

Each Wednesday night Acklin holds open house.

Of the wire recorder, he says: "So many people come here I have to explain over and over again. So I made a record of my words. When a bunch of people come in I turn on the recorder and save my voice."

Of the electric lights, he says candles are often used on caskets; he just substituted neons.

Mrs. Acklin died May 15, 1948. She was 52 years old.

The tomb, about 15 feet square, cost the owner $1700.

Acklin said he was not mourning but paying his respect to his wife's memory in an attempt to fulfill his wife's wishes not to be buried underground or cremated.

Acklin explained the mausoleum as the attempt of a little man to rob death of some of its sting.

"I wanted it cheerful and friendly," he said, "not a cold damp place where the fear of death lingers, where people might talk in hushed or horrified tones."

Oil, Coal Seen Challenged by Farm Output

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 25 (U.P.)—An Israeli scientist said today that new agricultural developments may some day change notions about the supreme importance of oil and coal and thereby help bring world peace.

The statement was made in a paper distributed to scientists attending the United Nations Conference on Conservation and Use of Natural Resources.

It was prepared by Ernest David Bergmann, executive director of Israel's world-famed Weizmann Institute of Science, founded by Israeli President Chaim Weizmann.

The paper laid particular stress on a fermentation method whereby starch or sugar can be converted into a mixture of three substances "on which most of the modern processes of the petroleum-chemical industry are based."

"It appears possible . . . at least in principle," Bergmann said, "to convert sugar . . . into the same fundamental products into which petroleum can be transformed by cracking processes."

School Reception to Include Art Works at Falls Church

Water colors by 21 leading American artists will be exhibited at a public reception next Wednesday for the Falls Church school board and the city's school superintendent.

The reception, sponsored by Falls Church Mayor Albert Orme, will be held at 8 p. m. in the Madison School. Parents of all school-age children have been invited.

Artists represented in the exhibit will include Waldo Pierce, Lyonel Feininger, Reginald Marsh, Charles Burchfield, Edward Hopper, and Zoltan Sepeshy.

Mrs. Blanche [illegible]eat, principal of the Madison School, said the paintings were lent by the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in Richmond. The paintings will remain on view in the Madison School from 3:30 to [illegible] p. m. on Thursday and Friday, and 9 a. m. to noon, on Saturday, through September 3.

Pickets Can't Escape T-H Ban by Following Firms Trucks in Cars, NLRB Examiner Says

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A National Labor Relations Board examiner yesterday called for a halt to union strategy devised to get around the secondary-boycott ban of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Trial Examiner Hamilton Gardner found that a group of AFL unions had violated the act by sending observers in cars to follow the trucks of an employer they regarded as "unfair."

Involved in the case were AFL carpenters, teamsters and the Building and Construction Trades Council of Orange County, Calif., and the Santa Ana Lumber Co.

The union autos trailed Santa Ana trucks between 100 and 200 times from the premises of the Santa Ana firm to the company's customers. The automobiles in effect were a picket line, the examiner ruled.

Furthermore, the examiner held, "the actual following of company trucks to customers' premises was calculated to be an attempt to demonstrate that something was wrong in the labor relations obtaining at Santa Ana . . .

"It was meant to impart a definite kind of information which would have the desired effect on the employes—many of them union members themselves—of those with whom Santa Ana dealt."

Examiner Gardner found also that the unions further had violated the secondary-boycott prohibition by placing the company on the unfair list of the Building Trades Council and by urging employes of six other companies to refuse to handle Santa Ana's goods.

He recommended that the board order the union to cease their illegal conduct.

Both Sides Cry 'Monopoly' in Hawaii Strike

By The Associated Press

Both sides in the paralyzing Hawaiian longshore strike swapped charges of "monopoly" yesterday.

After an employer's representative had accused the CIO Longshoremen's Union of un-American monopoly, the union replied that it would "cooperate completely" if Congress wants to make a monopoly investigation in the Territory.

But the union whose strike tied up the island's ocean commerce said in a statement that such an investigation should cover "the Big Five monopolistic control of the entire economy of Hawaii."

The statement followed an announcement by Senator Robertson (D., Va.) that the Senate Banking Committee will consider next Wednesday whether to send a subcommittee to Hawaii after Congress adjourns to investigate the union's economic power.

The union assailed testimony of President Randolph Crossley of the Hawaiian Fruit Packers, Ltd., and first vice president of the Hawaii Employers Council, that the longshoremen's union is in a position to stop almost all economic activity of the Territory.

Crossley appeared yesterday before Robertson's group which has been studying economic monopoly power. So far it has dealt principally with the coal industry and John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers.

3 Men Indicted In $60,000 Fraud On Tax Refunds

New Orleans, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—A Federal grand jury indicted three Baton Rouge (La.) men today for filing unnecessary income tax returns. The trouble was, the indictment said, that they collected $60,000 in refunds.

United States Attorney J. Skelly Wright said they filed returns in fictitious names. To the returns, they attached forms, showing the taxes "withheld."

The withholding forms, Wright said, were signed by the defendants with the names of well-known business firms. He said they collected $25,000 in refunds on returns filed in Louisiana and $35,000 on returns filed in Mississippi and California.

Under Internal Revenue laws, Wright said, the Government made "refunds" immediately, based on the "employer's" report of taxes withheld. The refunds were mailed to the addresses of the defendants, Wright said.

Steel Profits Still Gaining, Union Claims

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—American steelmakers are headed for another record-breaking year, the CIO Steelworkers Union testified today before the President's fact-finding board.

In its closing hours of rebuttal against the companies' pleas of falling prices and inability to raise wages, the union cited new figures it said have just become available.

The three-man board, set up in hope of averting a national steel strike, will recommend a settlement between the steel industry and the union. The steelworkers are demanding a 30-cent-an-hour package of wage, insurance and pension benefits, with the strike deadline September 14.

Otis Brubaker, research director for the union and its fifth rebuttal witness, took the stand late today to present what was termed new figures for the first half of 1949.

He said they had become available since the union opened its case two weeks ago.

Net profits for the 19 leading steel companies in the first half of this year were $301,300,000 as compared to $194,900,000 in the first six months of 1948, an increase of 54.6 per cent, Brubaker said.

The eight largest companies all showed increases ranging up to 95.8 per cent for the period, the economist said. He reported that U. S. Steel, the industry's giant, had an increase of 76.2 per cent.

The witness also said that the profits for the first half of 1949, when projected to an annual rate, indicated that the companies were earning profits at a level 15.6 per cent higher this year than their all-time record rate set in 1948.

Trujillo's government disclosed today a munitions plant has been set up in the Dominican Republic because United States State Department officials in 1947 refused him permission to buy United States war surplus arms to meet an invasion threat.

Buenos Aires Strike

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Aug. 25 (U.P.)—Operations in the busy port of Buenos Aires were virtually at a standstill today due to a strike of some 10,000 longshoremen. They were joined by the officers and crews of Argentine ships, tugs and barges.

Senate Overrides Economy Advocates, Votes $668,000,000 for Public Power Lines

By The Associated Press

The Senate yesterday overrode an economy move and opponents of public power line construction in passing a 668-million-dollar Interior Department appropriations bill.

Passage came on a voice vote after the Senate had beaten down:

1. A series of amendments by its Appropriations Committee deleting funds for Government power line building in the Southwest, the West, and the Rocky Mountain area.

2. A motion by Senator Douglas (D, Ill.) to refuire the Appropriations Committee to cut the total appropriation back to the House-approved 577 million dollars.

The bill must now be sent to a conference committee for settlement of House and Senate differences.

As passed by the Senate, the bill carries $595,262,257 in cash appropriation and $73,051,700 in contract authorization. This compares with $536,461,908 in cash and $41,112,500 in contract authority voted by the House and $616,380,020 in cash and $59,375,000 in contract authority requested in the President's budget.

By votes on the Senate floor, the Senate added $4,576,346 in cash and $3,065,095 in contract authority to the amounts recommended by its Appropriations Committee. The additions largely were for building of Government power lines to transmit power generated at Government hydro-electric dams.

Tideland Oil Views Given By Companies

By The Associated Press

The petroleum industry threw its weight yesterday behind State control of oil-rich tidelands.

Witnesses for companies now exploring submerged coastal areas for oil and gas told a House Judiciary subcommittee that "every equity" calls for control to rest with the States instead of the Federal Government.

Congress is caught between demands from the Federal Government and the States for control of tidelands mineral wealth.

State rights were recognized until the Supreme Court ruled in the so-called "California case" that the Federal Government holds "paramount rights."

Texas, Louisiana Face Suits

Texas and Louisiana now face similar suits.

The subcommittee gave the Government the chance to have the last spoken word Monday.

Chairman Walter (D., Pa.) said Secretary of the Interior Krug will testify Monday as the last scheduled witness.

Only written statements would be received thereafter until October 1, when the record will be closed, Walter said, adding that no Government official except Krug has asked to be heard.

Compromise Favored

The industry witnesses backed a compromise bill to give the States inland waters, recognize their right to manage the marginal belt within their boundaries, and allow them 62½ per cent of the royalties from mineral leases in the marginal belt or 50 per cent of such revenues produced from mineral extractions on the Continental Shelf.

Hines H. Baker, president of Humble Oil & Refining Co., said that in the cases of Texas and Louisiana lease rights that may have been obtained since the Supreme Court ruled in the California case should be held valid.

Those two States were not involved in the California suit, Baker said, and each has "special defenses" which it would present in court.

Also favoring the compromise States' rights bill were:

H. H. Kaveler, Philips Petroleum Co., Bartlesville, Okla.; E. F. Bullard, president of the Stamolind Oil and Gas Co., and Ernie Pyles, general manager of the Jergins Oil Co., Long Beach, Calif.

Secretary of the Interior Krug will testify Monday as the last scheduled witness.

Curbs on Tin Eased by U. S.

By the United Press

The Government today junked most controls over tin imports and announced that restrictions on use of the metal in cans, bottle caps and similar items will be dropped December 1.

The Commerce Department said the action was possible because supplies appear adequate to meet all needs of industry and the military during the next two years.

Controls over imports and use of tin have been in force since early in the war.

The department said controls will be relaxed to permit a "relatively free import market" for buyers of pig tin of all grades. But importers still must report purchases and sales to the Government.

It said control over distribution of imports and stocks held by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will be continued, but that allocation quotas to manufacturers will be waived for grades containing less than 99.65 per cent of the pure metal.

Allocation orders will continue for higher grades from the RFC stockpile.

The department said its M-81 order, setting up specifications for the use of tinplate and solder in manufacture of cans, will be revoked on December 1, along with sections of Order M-43 placing similar restrictions on their use in bottlecaps and other types of closures for food containers.

Loudoun Rescinds Referendum Plea

By Richard L. Lyons
Post Reporter

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 25.—The Loudoun County Board of Supervisors today changed its mind and decided not to let voters decide whether they want a change in their form of county government.

With one of the six supervisors in the hospital, the board met in special session and rescinded by a 3 to 2 vote a resolution adopted last month by an identical vote.

On July 21, the board agreed to ask the Circuit Court for a referendum on the question: Should the county adopt the county executive form of government?

One Member Abstains

Voting for the resolution in July were Chairman Irvey W. Baker, J. Terry Hirst and D. C. Sands. Opposed were B. W. McKimmey and J. Homer Mock.

J. Emory Kirkpatrick abstained from voting then on the ground that while he personally favored the resolution, most persons in his district of Broad Run opposed it.

The resolution was sent to Judge J. R. H. Alexander. He took no action—for the reason, he told a reporter, the request was not presented to him in proper form.

This week, with Sands ill in Georgetown Hospital, Kirkpatrick and McKimmey called a special meeting of the board for the express purpose of rescinding the resolution.

Kirkpatrick offered the motion to rescind and cast the deciding vote.

He told a reported afterward that he still personally favored putting the question to a vote, but that a number of persons in his district had asked him after the July meeting to oppose it.

The only comment made during the meeting by the three voting to rescind was by McKimmey, who said, "I was elected to represent the people, and my people don't want it."

Before the vote, Baker and Hirst took the opportunity to explain how they felt about the action that followed.

Said Baker: "I'm not surprised at what will develop today. For the last four of five weeks I have seen the handwriting. It has always been my desire that this question be submitted to the people; I am willing to submit to the verdict of the people of Loudoun County."

Said Hirst: "It looks like the news that Sands was in the hospital got to Leesburg, "and a rescue party was got up to get the judge off a limb."

"The judge got our resolution," he continued. "We heard nothing from him. It said in the paper that no proper order was given him, but the law says that we only need to present the resolution adopted by the board. The judge was before the board twice at the August meeting. Seems as if something was wrong he would have said so."

Judge Alexander told a reporter later that the usual procedure in such matters is for an order to be presented to the court for entering.

"I'm not supposed to practice law for the board of supervisors or anybody else," he said. 'It's not up to me to prepare the order." He added that the 'Commonwealth's attorney was legal adviser to the board.

In answer to Hirst's remark about the judge not telling them there was anything wrong with their procedure, Judge Alexander said he had informed the clerk of the board that no proper order had been given him.

He declined comment on Hirst's remark about "getting the judge off a limb."

Would Lose Power

The proposed change would deprive the Circuit Court judge of some of his appointive powers—notably his authority to appoint a board of electors which names school board members.

The proposal also would give the supervisors authority to appoint and set salaries for most county employes—authority now held in Richmond. And it would set up a county executive to administer and coordinate county affairs.

This was the second time in recent years that an attempt to put the question to a popular vote had failed. During the war, Hirst said, a group of county voters petitioned Judge Alexander for a referendum on the question of government change.

The request was denied then, he recalled, on the ground that with servicemen voting the number of qualified voters in the county could not be accurately determined. Signatures of 10 per cent of the total number were needed on the petition.

Baker conceded the matter is now dead as far as the board of supervisors is concerned.

But he said he believed today's action would help his cause by "stirring up" citizens to the point where they will take the matter into their own hands and act by the alternate method of a petition of voters.

County GOP Asks Action on Vote Machines

Immediate action by the Prince Georges County Commissioners on a proposal to use voting machines in the county's 1950 general elections has been demanded by a Republican policy-making committee.

Accusing the commissioners of indecision on the voting machine question, Committee Chairman Carlyle J. Lancaster yesterday said the board had been asked to act by next Tuesday, its regular meeting date.

Although the Maryland State Legislature early this year authorized the county to use voting machines, repeated queries to the commissioners have produced only a reply that the matter is "under advisement," Lancaster said.

"The commissioners say they have not reached a decision because they will have to consult the county board of electoral commissioners," Lancaster declared. "Certainly there is no need for further delay when both groups have their headquarters in the same building—the county courthouse in Upper Marlboro."

The committee, recently organized, is composed of four representatives of each of the three Republican clubs in the county. It acted, Lancaster said, after meeting with John R. Fletcher of Cheverly, chariman of the Republican State Central Committee for Prince Georges, according to Lancaster.

Besides demanding action on the voting machine question, the committee agreed to ask the election commissioners to establish a deputy office in Hyattsville for voters in urban sections.

Secularism Called Biggest Peril to U.S.

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

Secularism in this country is stronger now than at any time in history and constitutes "much more" of a threat to American democracy than communism, a Jesuit priest declared here yesterday in a sharply worded interview.

The priest is the Rev. Thomas S. Bowdern of St. Louis, 56-year-old director of the department of social education and the summer school of Catholic Action of the Queen's Work, now at Georgetown University on a tour of the Nation.

Father Bowdern marshaled this wide-ranging array of characterizations of the Nation's present life and times:

1. "For the first time in our history, treason is really a problem, as the Judith Coplon and other trials witness."

2. "We are confronted also with a wave of 'treason in married life,' a growing infidelity. People are planning their next marriage before the present one is scarcely consummated."

3. "We're getting to a point where everyone's parlor is practically a saloon. You can't walk into anyone's home in Washington any more without your host feeling he has to give you hard liquor."

4. "In public life, we are approaching to a dangerous degree the place where welfare of country is sacrificed to man's greed. The 5-percenter thing is a current example, where people are trying to make—what's that phrase—'a fast buck' with poor old Joe Public as the victim."

5. "Our literature, our comics and our movies are pervaded by the same kind of pagan living, in which all problems are solved by either violence or sex. How much can our sexual passion stand before we just explode and start raping each other?"

On the last point, Father Bowdern, who is celebrating his silver anniversary as a priest, said that while "I don't like censorship any more than anyone else," he favored immediate State laws establishing standards of decency for such means of communication as printed matter and movies.

'Still Have Some Time'

If these don't work, he said, he then would favor Federal legislation.

"Secularism" is described in one Webster's definition as "any view of life, education, etc., or any policy or program referring to such, based on the premise that religion and religious considerations, as of God and a future life, should be ignored or excluded."

"It is stronger than ever in our Nation's history," said Father Bowdern. "It is much more of a threat to us than communism because it comes from the inside. If we lose our Christian faith, we lose our democracy. We still have some time—but not as much as we used to have."

Loan Action Due Saturday In Arlington

The Arlington County Board is expected to take final action Saturday on arrangements for a $2,350,000 short-term loan from the Shirlington Trust Co.

Interest rate on the loan, needed to finance operations of the county government and school board until tax receipts come in in December, will be 1¼ per cent—one of the lowest interest rates obtained by the county in recent years. Last year the county paid 2½ per cent on a similar loan.

Details of the loan arrangements were disclosed Tuesday at a meeting of the county school board.

One million of the amount will go to the school board and $1,350,000 to the general county government.

Also scheduled for board action Saturday is a petition for a referendum on a $2,324,000 sewer bond issue. The board, at its last meeting, asked Commonwealth's Attorney Denman T. Rucker to prepare such a petition for submission to the Circuit Court.

Cemetery Row Referred to D. C. Counsel

A controversy between the trustees and grave owners of the Columbia Harmony Cemetery, Inc., one of the oldest Negro cemeteries in Washington, has been referred to District Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West.

The dispute began when the trustees of the cemetery, founded in 1825, notified owners of lots and graves in the cemetery in the 800 block of Rhode Island ave. ne. that available land had been exhausted and a new tract had been purchased near Huntsville, Md., in Prince Georges County.

The trustees said bodies would be reburied and members would retain plot rights on the new tract while the old site, located in a "built-up" area would be sold.

A group was formed called the Lot and Grave Owners Association of the cemetery with O. W. McDonald as president. This organization submitted a petition to Vice President Alben Barkley with 344 signatures objecting to removal of the cemetery.

The Senate District Committee forwarded briefs presented by both sides to the Commissioners, who, in turn, gave the matter to West for study. He indicated legislative action would be required for any change in location, but will submit a detailed study later.

The Oldest Inhabitants, Inc., adopted a protest against the proposed move at a meeting in June.

2 D. C. Playgrounds Plan Programs Today

Programs will be held at the Georgetown playground, 3030 Q st. nw., at 2:30 p. m., and at the Chevy Chase Community Building, 5601 Connecticut ave. nw., at 7:30 p. m. today.

The afternoon program at the Georgetown playground will include a variety show and a wading pool frolic. Children 3 to 7 years old will model fall school clothes in a fashion show on hte lawn of the Chevy Chase Community Building.

Motorists Warned on Parking On Land Owned by District

District Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, a driver himself, recommended yesterday that city officials warn motorists of possible police tickets for parking on city land.

West raised the matter at the Commissioners' meeting after hearing that a score of motorists were summoned by police last week for parking cars on 55 feet of city land adjoining the Sears, Roebuck & Co. parking lot on Maryland ave. ne.

The motorists complained the tract was unmarked and they considered it part of the firm's lot.

The city heads called on District Surveyor Francis Healy for an explanation and he informed them the lot was left over when the city purchased more land than was necessary for improving of Maryland ave. ne.

The Commissioners then considered authorizing use of the land for parking, but were warned by West that parking beyond the building line is prohibited. They thereupon directed Traffic Director George E. Keneipp to at least post "No Parking" signs on the area.

New York Avenue Church Board Takes Stand On Traffic Lane Planned in Front of Building

Trustees of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church will meet early next week to decide whether to oppose a traffic channelization project that would cut across land in front of the structure.

A. C. Oliphant, president of the 10-man board of trustees, said blueprints have been furnished by the District Highways Department to the trustees on the project at the intersection of New York ave. and H st. nw.

The channelization would open a part of H st. nw. to two-way traffic for the first time in several years and cut a lane through National Park Service land fronting the church to permit East-West traffic along H st.

One of the principal concerns of the church group, Oliphant explained, is whether the project will interfere with the erection of a new edifice on the site of the present church. Plans have been prepared for the construction.

Some members have also asked whether the street project will make it hazardous for persons entering and leaving the church, or result in much noise during services, Oliphant said.

Deputy Director of Highways Samuel R. Harrison said the project will take about 10 days to complete, but will not be started for a month while other work in the area is finished.

He explained the project was approved several months ago by a coordinating committee of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, U. S. Army Engineers, District and other representatives.

Previously a city coordinating committee of officials from the Highway and Vehicles and Traffic Departments recommended the project, Harrison said.

Von Mannstein Called 'Criminal' at Trial

Hamburg, Germany, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—The chief prosecutor today branded former Field Marshal Fritz Erich von Mannstein a ruthless criminal who used Soviet war prisoners to clear mine fields.

Sir Arthur Comyns-Carr made the charge in his opening statement before the British military court trying von Mannstein.

Polio Panic

A bit of advice issued the other day by Dr. Kenneth S. Landauer, medical care director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, falls into the don't-get-panicky class. Parents, he urged, should not try to flee an area of high incidence. At home they have better control of the contacts their children make, the food they eat, and the regularity and adequacy of the rest they get. Travel, on the contrary, means food prepared by others, tiring and irregular hours, with the twin dangers of chilling and overfatigue, and perhaps remoteness from quick medical attention.

And if polio does strike? It is, of course, a fearful disease. But panic won't help cure it. Prompt medical advice, carefully followed, is the best safeguard against death or permanent crippling. It is not a guarantee. The expected mortality rate is 5 to 10 per cent, according to the American Medical Association's Nation-wide averages. Severe crippling will come from 15 per cent of the cases, mild involvement from another 25 per cent. Half of all those stricken can be expected to recover fully and without any aftereffects.

This, of course, is cold statistical consolation in any particular case. The anguish in a stricken family is not to be assuaged by a recital of the mathematical chances. Nor is there comfort in the national total of cases so far this year, which number almost twice as many as last year at this date. And 1948 ended with 27,680 cases altogether, not far below the 30,000 record year of 1916. The District and surrounding area have not suffered more this year than last. Let us hope to be spared through the rest of the year, too, and let us continue the fight against polio until it is won.

Finnish Test

Anxiety about Finland is in part allayed by the firmness shown by the Finnish government and the measures taken by the Trades Union Federation against the strikers among the lumber and the dock workers. The economic excuse for the labor unrest is the rise in the cost of living as a result of the devaluation of the Finnish mark on July 5. However, this is a pretext, for wages are pegged to prices, and, in addition, both the timber and the dock workers are well paid by Finnish standards.

This information lends further credence to the allegation of the Finnish government that the strikes are Communist-inspired. An ominous aspect had been given to the lumber dispute by the cooperation of the dockworkers. It is a fact that dockworkers in different parts of the world have gone on an offensive. In Britain there has been trouble, in Canada, the strike in Hawaii is still raging, Finland is now hit, and the omens are for a tie-up in Italy. A pattern seems to be in evidence, and it may be that another call to sabotage has been sounded in the Kremlin.

At any rate, the Finns are holding firm, in spite of the drip-drip of radio propaganda from Russia charging that the Finns are in the grip of a "police terror." They are not easily intimidated, even by the colossus which shares their 1000-mile border, and there is probably less fear of the Russians in Finland than in Washington. That is the source of Finland's strength—of its immunity to incorporation by Soviet Russia. The Finns are in too much of a geographical box to permit more than the moral support of the American people, but that they have, we venture to say, in the fullest measure.

Middle-Income Housing

Good sense prevailed in the House yesterday in reconsideration of the antidiscrimination amendment which threatened to kill the entire middle-income housing bill. This bill is a necessary adjunct to the public housing law recently passed. It would stimulate private home construction for families in the $2000-$4000 income bracket by providing Government mortgage insurance and other aids. But the measure was imperiled by the ill-considered passage Wednesday of the Marcantonio amendment which would have imposed a $5000 fine on anyone excluding a person from housing because of race, creed or color.

The ostensible purpose of such antidiscrimination moves is laudable, but the sincerity behind this one may be questioned. Patently discrimination will not be ended by a legislative maneuver, and the fact that this particular proviso applied to private builders as well as to agents of the Government would have made it completely unpalatable politically. Passage of the rider in the first place can be put down to a combination of absenteeism in the House and Republican obstructionism—and usually most of the Republicans shun Mr. Marcantonio like the plague.

As finally passed by the House yesterday, the middle-income housing bill is a good one, liberalizing many provisions of present legislation, but shorn of the Marcantonio amendment as well as the dubious clause providing loans to housing cooperatives. The one regret is that the price of elimination of the Marcantonio rider was also the removal of the Monroney amendment to make direct Government housing loans to veterans in areas where they are unable to obtain GI loans. In many parts of the country, particularly in small towns, veterans find few bankers to take GI loans. This amounts to a constriction on the GI Bill of Rights and an impediment in the way of veterans seeking to acquire homes of their own. We hope the Senate will correct the House deficiency by insisting that the veteran loan provision be retained.

Think Piece

If you find us a little less profound and penetrating today than usual, a little less zealous in setting this unhappy world to rights, a little less positive in saying what should be done about Marshal Tito's steel production problem, or General Vaughan's friendships, or Mr. Griffith's baseball club, less inclined to speculate why the name of Comrade Molotov has been missing from the news since early in June, it is all because of Sir Heneage Ogilvie, the famous English surgeon.

Sir Heneage, in an article in the British Medical Journal, that has just come under our eye, tells us that thinking is a bad habit when carried to excess, and likely to result in stomach ulcers and high blood pressure. The reason people think so much is that thought is far less expensive, in the physiological sense, than physical activity. "The body," says Sir Heneage, "cannot be driven beyond a certain point without rebelling and ceasing to function"; the mind, however, can go working on and on "with no measurable metabolism or consumption of energy."

If we could be just satisfied to think and think and to let it go at that, probably no harm would be done. Indeed, this sort of purposeless thought may be what the philosophers mean when they speak of "contemplation," which they assure us is the highest form of pleasure—at any rate until the creditors close in. But most of us are capable only of the kind of thinking that seems to lead somewhere. Thus thought becomes a stimulus to further effort and so, as Sir Heneage puts it, "the bearings of the machine melt." Thus it is mainly the placid and lazy folk not given much to either work or cerebration who escape the "stress diseases," as the doctor calls them, that are peculiar to our civilization.

So all day we have been trying resolutely not to think about anything. The trouble is that after a certain period of life—and Sir Heneage is talking throughout about persons of middle age—there isn't much to do besides thinking, except to sleep. We were just at the point of telling the printers to get the paper out themselves and going home to bed, when we happened to notice an item about Mr. John J. Healey of Beverly, Mass.

At the age of 92, it seems, Mr. Healey is as vigorous and lusty as Father William in the parody. When asked the secret of his health and longevity, Mr. Healey said that it comes of never having poisoned his system by sleep. Mr. Healey hasn't gone to bed since the year 1919; and even before that never remained in bed for more than three or four hours at a time. Now, he says, he has wholly cured himself of the vice, except for occasional dozes in a porch rocker.

So after reading about Sir Heneage and Mr. Healey we decided that working, thinking and sleeping are all equally bad habits. But since we had to find some way of occupying the hours, we struck what seemed to us a reasonable compromise, with the result that you perceive.

German Sore

Among the services that ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman has performed in Europe is his blunt advice to the Germans to quit their agitation against dismantlement. The whole trouble about dismantlement is that it was done so long after hostilities had ended and that the British were so tardy when the decision had been made. The original agitation against the inter-Allied agreement on dismantlement was not German, but American. There was a storm in Congress, expressed in ECA legislation, and in deference thereto one of Mr. Hoffman's first jobs was to ameliorate the agreement, though it had been achieved after much painful negotiation. The revision was done by the Humphrey Committee, and eventually the recommendations were substantially accepted by the governments concerned. The High Commission has some leeway, but, as a practical matter, not much.

The dismantlers, particularly the British, were roundly abused by all parties during the recent electioneering in Germany. Indeed, antidismantlement seems to have been the keynote of most of the speechmaking, especially by the Social Democrats. The Germans will keep up the agitation as long as they know there is any difference of opinion on dismantlement in the Allied countries. The plainspokenness of Mr. Hoffman, therefore, was altogether salutary. If the people of the occupying powers help the Germans to keep the issue open, they will be doing a disservice to the authority of the Allied High Commission—at a time when it needs all the firmness it can muster. The High Commissioners have a mountainous problem on their hands without having their own people encourage nagging on the part of German politicians. It ought to be obvious that nothing could be worse than to see the High Commission yield to this kind of pressure, for, given the German temperament, pressure would be piled upon successful pressure ad infinitum. Success of the new policy toward Germany is to be measured not by concessions to mere pressure-politics but by the realization on the part of the German people that the Allies intend to combine military protection with the incorporation of Germany within the European family.

Defense Cutbacks

Secretary of Defense Johnson has taken a first step toward cutting down the costs of the military establishment. About 135,000 civilian employes will be dismissed within the next few months (a good many thousands have in fact already lost their jobs) and a considerable number of reserve officers will be put on inactive duty. These cutbacks in employment in shipyards, air force installations, and elsewhere will, of course, mean hardship for many deserving people. The dismissals come, too, at an unfortunate time, with the Government under pressure to provide more jobs for the idle in areas where localized unemployment is serious.

Nevertheless, the Government cannot allow waste and duplication in its military establishment merely to provide jobs, or, as Secretary Johnson put it crisply, to set up a "Defense WPA." Any such approach would make it impossible to cut Government costs, no matter how burdensome or excessive they might be. All Government economy programs designed to save substantial sums of money necessarily entail heavy reductions in personnel. At the same time, by lightening the tax burdens of the people, such economies leave more surplus income in private hands available for purchasing and investment, thereby providing more openings in private industry for jobseekers.

In its report on the national security organization the Hoover Commission pointed out that huge military forces and enormous peacetime military budgets put a severe strain on taxpayers and consequently make it necessary to maintain a firm control over military expenditures to insure that costs "shall be commensurate with actual needs without damaging or destroying our national economy." Since the military budget for the current year is expected to amount to approximately a third of total Government expenditures, it is imperative in the interest of the national economy to effect such reductions in military costs as can be brought about without impairment of our national defenses.

The economy step just taken—which is expected to save half a billion dollars yearly when completed—is only a beginning. Further reductions in outlays and personnel will be required to enable Secretary Johnson to realize his goal of a 13.4-billion-dollar budget in the next fiscal year. When the performance budget provided for in the recently passed Unification Act has been set up, it should be possible to establish firmer controls over spending, eliminate the wastes inseparable from loose accounting practices, and cut more millions from the hypertrophied military budget. It is, however, encouraging that Secretary Johnson, in face of considerable pressure to delay, has had the resolution to start housecleaning without waiting for the consummation of this long overdue budgetary reform.

British Wage Freeze

The General Council of the British Trades Union Congress is asking the delegates to the TUC's annual conference, to be held early in September, to support the government's wage-freeze policy. With millions of trade unionists clamoring for wage increases, this is a courageous stand on the part of the council. If the resolution is approved, as, according to reports, it probably will be, it will greatly strengthen the hands of the government and may soften the acerbity of foreign critics who maintain that the British trades unions are indifferent to or unaware of the seriousness of the crisis that confronts their country.

To be sure, the council opposes any lowering of wages, any lengthening of hours of work, or any contraction of the social services. No doubt it is too much to expect that spokesmen for organized labor would indorse policies that would lower living standards and probably result in unemployment. On the credit side, however, is the interest expressed by the council in plans to increase industrial productivity and lower production costs. Unfortunately, the council's attempts to impress the unions with the importance of improved production techniques have not been very successful. For while some unions are said to be willing to cooperate with management in plans for increasing efficiency, the majority are fearful that the result would be loss of jobs.

The greatest weakness of the Labor government lies in its tie-up with trade unions traditionally opposed to policies that reduce costs at the expense of jobs. To convince the unions that, in the long run, increased productivity is the only method of making the British economy self-sustaining and consolidating the gains of labor is a desperately hard undertaking. At least the council recognizes its obligation to take the leadership in a move to overcome this kind of shortsighted hostility to industrial innovations. If it succeeds in its efforts to persuade the unions that this is no time for wage increases, it may be able to concentrate on the even harder task of converting them to a belief in the benefits and the necessity of increasing labor's productivity. This is Britain's real hope.

Irish Ghosts

Bill Brinkley's August 20 story which relates how a priest freed a Mount Rainier boy from the grip of the devil brought back to mind many of the tales I had heard as a child in the south of Ireland. According to the conversations I listened to while we sat before a turf fire in my grandmother's kitchen, the clergy had to wage a full-time battle to free the souls of sundry local Irishmen from varieties of demons, and to guard from demoniac force those souls not yet possessed.

One particularly fascinating legend told about a priest who was out on a sick call and was drawn off the road to a high wall by the sound of enchanting music. His vision was confronted with a great ball of fire which took the shape of Satan and then disappeared. Naturally the soul of the sick person was thus snared by the Evil One before the priest arrived to provide the last rites.

Since the Irish are a people whose piety and willingness to defend the faith cannot be brushed lightly aside it was believed that the Angels of Darkness made especial efforts to divert them from the paths of sanctity and holiness. The prevalence of ghosts in every old house, shrieking banshees on the outside walls who mourned the passing of a soul, and mysterious knockings which heralded the death of a loved one in some distant place, might have shaken the tranquility of any other race—but not the Irish.

The reason given for the failure of the satanic onslaught was the effective counterattack by the clergy, ably supported by signs from heaven in the form of miraculous appearances and events. The banshees and the ghosts, hallowed like the leprechaun by tradition and popular acceptance, were allowed to remain, but the unholy spirits who attempted to wrest the Irish soul received short shrift. Those sons of Innisfail voluntarily dealing with a demon were simply relegated to the outer darkness along with members of Loyal Orange Lodges and gombeen men.

Getting back to the boy in Mount Rainier who was freed from the devil, Bill Brinkley states that during the time the devil was in possession the youngster mouthed Latin phrases, although he had never studied Latin. Evidently the malignant spirit has a background in the classics. An Irish devil, possessed himself by a fierce national pride and a memory of gigantic struggles with saints like Columbia and Kevin, would have discoursed in Gaelic.

Robinson And Robeson

Paul Robeson damns the American system because its fabric includes the thread of racial discrimination. Robeson claims the "American right" to speak, but exercises that right "as a Communist"—and because the fabric of communism contains no thread of tolerance, nothing Robeson says has meaning to me.

Jackie Robinson damns racial discrimination; but as he criticizes, as is his right and duty, a specific phenomenon which offends him, he demonstrates at the same time his devotion to the context of the American system. Robinson speaks as an American should speak to Americans for Americans.

Paul Robeson addresses himself to the "race question" as a "selected agitator," a man carefully chosen by the strategy board of the Communist conspiracy to fan the glowing embers of racial feeling into flaming hate and revolution. To assuage resentment, mitigate mistrust and promote better understanding between races is the last thing Robeson and his Communist sponsors want.

Robinson speaks in the character of Jackie Robinson, American. He forthrightly proclaims his determination to fight for full citizenship status for himself and other colored Americans. He makes it clear, however, that he does not intend to make common cause with Communists, nor to permit them to make common cause with him. It is clear to me that Robinson seeks not to pervert democracy but to extend and improve it.

Home Rule Denial

The savage inhabitants of Washington, D. C., must have been guilty of a particularly heinous crime against civilization, to be held in perpetual political eunuchry by a triumphant Congress.

Since the end of World War II, the conquered peoples of Germany, Italy, Austria, Vichy France, and Japan have been encouraged to choose the kind of government they want, and to elect officials to represent them.

Not so in this modern-day capital of the world, whose denizens are presumed by an omnipotent and omniscient National Legislature—itself elected by free citizens—to be too unenlightened to govern themselves.

If one dared look beneath the surface of many high-sounding arguments against home rule, I am sure he would find an animus in the determination of certain interests to keep District affairs "under control."

"Ban On Giveaways"

Anent your August 22 editorial—it would defy all the laws of logic to ban giveaways. The name "giveaway" refutes all arguments relating to gambling.

If it isn't legal to give, what is legal? As far as entertainment goes, I see little or no difference between these shows and most other orchestra and singing programs. Some laws sanction horse racing, which in truth is nothing but a cover for gambling.

Radio listeners would be out of luck if it were not for all sponsors who use the radio to advertise their products. Ban the big advertisers and the radio stations would have to fold up their tents and silently steal away. Viva giveaways!

Transit Radio

I am one person who favors the radio being used in some of the new streetcars and buses of the Capital Transit Co.

For those who like to sleep as late as possible in the morning, and consequently have little or no time to listen to the radio before leaving for work, the transit radio is an opportunity for them to hear the latest news regarding current events and anticipated heat waves. The transit radio program will also include appropriate musical selections and, of course, the ever present price of admission, the commercial.

There are some who criticize the transit radio rather vehemently. For these riders I suggest that a short wait, after refusing a vehicle offering radio, will bring another car or bus offering only the soothing jabbering of fellow passengers.

"The Vaughan Story"

Marquis Childs' column, "The Vaughan Story," which appeared in your paper August 16, attempts an appealing, though hardly convincing defense of General Vaughan. The facts as he presents them may be true, but they do not palliate the general's actions.

Mr. Childs has likened the President's military aide to a good natured, friendly dog, but the simile is far from appropriate. Even a dog can smell a rat, and is reputed to have a sixth sense that warns of impending danger. If, in the course of protecting his master, he snarls at a few suspicious characters instead of wagging his tail, the dog is still considered man's best friend in spite of, and perhaps because of, this discrimination.

General Vaughan, on the contrary, was undiscerning and oblivious to potential danger. He was so busy doing favors for all and sundry, and being patted and admired in return (as Mr. Childs suggests) that he did not consider the implications his actions might engender, or the awkward position in which he might place his chief.

Possibly the general has merely been indiscreet, but the role he plays must certainly demand discretion before valor, or even before loyalty to old friends.

Military Pay Stall

I'm through trying to convince myself that my husband is anything but foolish to continue as as an officer in the Marine Corps. The lack of adequate pay is the main reason and hope grows fainter that Congress intends to remedy that. Instead, service personnel have actually taken a pay cut—the income tax exemption was removed the first of the year. Then recently post exchange and commissary sales were sharply curtailed.

The big question to me is—are the military services so unimportant to the country that Congress can afford to have the outstanding officers and enlisted personnel leave for better careers because the pay is not sufficient to meet the requirements for ordinary living? I can still be wearing trousseau clothes and my husband 10-year old civilian suits but in line of duty for his country he must be correctly and adequately equipped with a great variety of expensive uniforms and other equipment. For this he was once in the dim past given $250!

There is little or no transportation provided for officer personnel and families on this base—the transportation permitted under allotted funds being given rightly to enlisted men. A car is a necessity and our 9-year old trap will probably not make another change of station. If you serve in the Fleet Marine Force, your chances of being away are great—in the year we have been stationed here my husband has been gone eight months. This means he has a mess bill to pay—by no means covered by the $2 subsistence allowance and requiring more actual cash outlay than if his food were being provided at home. Each tour away we borrow more money to cover the bare living expenses.

At first, when the children asked why their father had to be away so much, I tried to answer in high-sounding phrases so they would think he was doing something wonderful—such as "working for your Uncle Sam" or spreading goodwill" or "protecting the peace and our home." And now when they ask "but why, Mommie?" I can't answer. Why should we continue under such conditions? Evidently he just isn't deemed important enough to command adequate pay.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Democratic Purge

THE DEMOCRATS are behaving these days the way the Republicans used to behave. Order and calm and regularity prevail. The signals are carefully arranged in advance and the players move like clockwork when the quarterback calls them off.

That has just been illustrated here in the meeting of the Democratic National Committee. In the past a proposal to fire rebellious Southern Democrats would have precipitated a quarrel that would have lasted well into 1950.

But the committee kicked out the Dixiecrats without a ripple of dissension. The old-timers with nostalgic memories of the era when Democrats shouted imprecations at each other in public went away disappointed. After all, it was only 25 years ago that the Democratic Party in that marathon session in Madison Square Garden seemed bent on suicide with the South. The North argued for one method and the South for another.

There are lots of reasons why the Democrats should meet with the solemn unanimity of a conclave of old guard Republicans in, say, 1925. Success and prosperity are powerful persuaders. President Truman wanted the Dixiecrats put out and the committee did his bidding.

While that is not the whole story, it is most of it. The retiring chairman, J. Howard McGrath, laid the groundwork for it. William M. Boyle, jr., the new chairman, was a willing collaborator.

A GOOD argument can be made that the step was inevitable in any event. The Dixiecrats, and in particular Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, already had left the party. All that remained was to ratify their departure.

Nevertheless, there were important influences within the party in favor of a compromise. Other Southerners were for taking the rebels back and smoothing over the quarrel of last fall. They argued that it would make for harmony and Southern support for controversial legislation, excepting, of course, the Truman civil rights proposals.

But even if McGrath and Boyle had wanted to compromise, which they didn't, it would have been impossible. Once the President gets set on a course, he can be as stubborn as the donkey that is the symbol of the party. And the President will not soon forget the threat of the Dixiecrats to keep him from reelection.

In his speech accepting the chairmanship, Boyle sounded as though he were nominating his great and good friend, Harry S. Truman, for another term in the White House. He told the faithful that the President would not falter until he had carried through his program—which was to bring peace and security to the American people in the second half of the unhappy twentieth century. That is a large order even for a man who comes of such long-lived stock as the President.

BOYLE has been demonstrating lately that he can go to bat for the President's program on Capitol Hill. He worked hard to help line up the Senate vote to restore cuts in appropriations for public power. The appropriations had been chiseled out in committee through the influence of the power lobby and Boyle persuaded several Senators to back the President in the floor fight. The Administration won that fight.

Incidentally, there is some resentment in Democratic headquarters that the official whose department is most involved in the power fight, Secretary of Interior Julius Krug, should be vacationing in Wisconsin while the contest was on. A dim view was taken last fall over Krug's remote-control participation in the presidential campaign.

But in spite of the unpleasant headlines made by his military aide, Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, the President reflects the confidence of his party. The party treasury is in healthy shape, thanks to contributors who wanted to get on the bandwagon after last November's victory, and thanks, too, to the institution of the Jackson Day dinners.

A successful Democratic conference in Des Moines was carefully planned to appeal to the Midwestern farm vote. A similar conference is to be held next month in San Francisco to try to consolidate the party's position on power, reclamation, and so on in the Western States.

In his speech Boyle spoke about the party being turbulent and turbulence being one of "the symptoms of a living, growing organism." But in actuality the old turbulence, the storm and strife of another day, were not apparent. Success, as the Republicans demonstrated, can bring a kind of complacency that finally spells defeat.

Taylor's Literacy

Mr. Marshall Andrews in his August 1 article on "Presidential Aides" is quite unfair in characterizing President Zachary Taylor as almost illiterate. While it is true he had only a slender education, yet he cannot be classed as illiterate, or almost illiterate. If Mr. Andrews will consult the volume of letters of Zachary Taylor in the Manuscripts Division of the Library of Congress, I am sure he will revise his opinion.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

Asia—Summing Up: III

A GREAT effort by the United States is required to prevent Asia succumbing to Soviet power, which would certainly be the prelude of a third world war. But no effort will be enough unless we know, not only that we do not want a Communist Asia, but what kind of Asia we do want.

In considering this question, it is useful to recall what has happened in Indonesia. Last summer, after years of backing and filling between the Dutch and the Indonesian nationalists, the State Department made up its mind. The United States would bet on the Indonesians.

Consider the consequences of this decision. The Indonesian nationalist leadership originally had a strong pro-Communist tinge—indeed, a number of the leaders had attended the Kremlin's schools in Moscow. But as soon as it was made clear that the United States was willing to bet on the Indonesians, the Indonesians promptly bet on the United States.

Even while they were fighting the Dutch, the Indonesian nationalists crushed a Communist bid for power in their own ranks. They stood the Communist leaders, including two newly arrived from Moscow, up against a wall and shot them.

Moreover, the Indonesian nationalists committed themselves to anticommunism while American policy in China was crumbling in ghastly failure, and while communism clearly seemed to be riding the wave of the future all over Asia. In short, they bet on the United States when the United States looked like a very bad bet.

THIS SUGGESTS the almost magic power which the United States, for all its failure in China, is still capable of exercising in Asia. But American power has magic only when, as in Indonesia, it is married to what is certainly the basic political force in Asia today—Asiatic nationalism. And precisely the same thing is true of Communist power.

Fortunately, the Communists have not always been clever. Last year, in the opinion of India's brilliant premier, Jawaharlal Nehru (and other competent observers), the Soviets made a miscalculation which may be fatal to all their plans for Asia. The Kremlin clearly decided that the time had come when Asia was ripe for the seizing. Through Calcutta, the Kremlin's orders went out to the Communist parties—"take direct action."

Accordingly, the Communists attempted by violence to wrest control of the nationalist movement in Indonesia, went underground as guerillas in Malaya, started riots and violence in India and Siam, and, spurning the frantic efforts of the left wing government to appease them, took up arms in Burma.

Except in Indo-China, where they already controlled the nationalist movement, this meant that the Communists came into direct conflict with indigenous nationalism throughout southeast Asia and India. Consider the result: everywhere throughout this vast area Asiatic nationalists are fighting or suppressing Communist movements to which they were once sympathetic or allied.

THIS VAST miscalculation by the Kremlin has given the United States a supreme opportunity in Asia.

Dramatic evidence that the full weight of American power is to be thrown on the side of Asiatic nationalism would dramatically alter the whole political atmosphere in Asia overnight. This evidence can be supplied if the money and the great power which are essential to do the job are granted.

Truman's Name Used by Vaughan to Help Maragon Fly to Italy After War

Mundt later identified the former flight sergeant as Walter E. Rhodes, jr., of Baltimore.

On June 12, 1945, six days after Bennett's return from Europe, deep-freeze units were shipped out of Milwaukee to Mrs. Harry S. Truman and General Vaughan. These and five other freezers, according to earlier testimony, were paid for by Bennett.

Maragon went to work for Bennett that same summer—1945.

The story of General Vaughan's friendly efforts on behalf of Maragon and Bennett, which involved getting them into war-scarred areas barred to ordinary American civilians, was unfolded at the most sensational hearing yet held by the Senate subcommitee investigating 5-percenters, or influence peddlers.

The picture that emerged was one of Vaughan, sitting at his White House desk, and giving a generous amount of his time to Bennett and Maragon. Four of the letters he wrote to Mrs. Shipley were read into the record. Besides these there were telephone calls. Once, trying to get Bennett into the British zone of Germany, Vaughan refused to take a "No" from the Army here, and had Mrs. Shipley cable his request directly to the American Embassy in Paris.

President Truman's name was brought into the proceedings on two different occasions.

Edwin W. Pauley, California oil millionaire and at the time head of a reparations commission, wrote a letter November 2, 1945, to Henry F. Grady, who was about to lead an American mission abroad to supervise an election in Greece.

Pauley's letter began:

"This will introduce Johnny Maragon, who is not only a good friend of mine,but also the President's. He is extremely anxious to accompany you to Greece on your new assignment . . . "

Maragon, who was born on an island west of Greece 55 years ago, went with the Grady commission, and was put on the State Department payroll for $5600 a year.

William P. Rogers, committee counsel, said that while Maragon was in Greece being paid by Uncle Sam, he also was on the payroll of Bennett's perfume company.

Maragon Attends

Rogers said Maragon managed to do some work for Bennett in Greece.

Maragon walked into Room 357 of the Senate Office Building while the hearing was in progress yesterday. He stood up against a wall for a while, and then took over a chair at the press table.

Attired in a gray suit, and sporting a fancy green tie, he appeared to be anything but excited or upset. He smiled when the photographers discovered his presence and began aiming their lenses at him.

George A. Chadwick, jr., a Washington lawyer, had told the Senators earlier that Maragon, in a dispute over money, had reached across his desk and "attacked" him.

Maragon was to have testified yesterday, and a long line of would-be spectators was outside the small committee room before the hearing started. The testimony of others took longer than was expected, however, and he was not called. Chairman Hoey (D., N. C.) announced that he would be called at the session which begins at 10 o'clock this morning.

Vaughan Asks More Time

General Vaughan, Hoey announced, had asked through an attorney (not identified) that he be given more time to prepare his testimony. Hoey said the White House military aide would not testify until Tuesday morning.

General Vaughan was standing at his customary spot, with the other aides, right behind President Truman at the news conference yesterday afternoon. He was not the jolly Vaughan of other days.

The first of Vaughan's letters was read into the record yesterday by Francis Flanagan, assistant chief counsel of the Senate Investigations Subcommittee. It was the "To-whom-it-may-concern" note for Bennett, and had been found in the Verley Co., files.

Dated Before End of War

It was dated May 1, 1945, a week before the war ended in Europe and only 15 days after Vaughan had become the White House military aide. It read:

"This will serve to introduce Mr. David A. Bennett, owner of the Albert Verley and Company of Chicago, Illinois, who is contemplating travel in Europe.

"Mr. Bennett is a prominent business man of Chicago and is entitled to the courtesies of American officials abroad."

Senator Mundt asked if there was any record to show that Bennett was an "American official." Counsel Flanagan said that, no, he seemed to be nothing more than president of the Verley Co.

Senator McCarthy observed that, at the time Bennett and Baptiste flew back and forth across the Atlantic, there was a tremendous demand for space on Army planes. For one thing, he said, the planes were needed for wounded soldiers.

Flanagan said that the records showed that Bennett, on his return, brought back and paid a duty on 41 kilos of perfume essence valued at $53,405.

At this point, Senator Mundt told how the former Army flight sergeant felt when he saw Bennett and Baptiste on the plane.

Three other representatives of the Verley Co. flew to Paris on July 14, 1945. They were Maragon, Harry Hoffman, an advertising man, and Emmett King, an attorney. The record showed that they obtained their passports in a "routine manner," and went over with the Air Transport Command.

Maragon, on his return to LaGuardia Field on July 31, got into trouble with the customs officials.

Introduced as evidence was a letter from J. W. Roberts of the New York customs office, which gave an account of what Senator McCarthy and Counsel Rogers have called Maragon's attempt at "smuggling."

Highlights of the letter were:

Maragon had a package, containing two Paris dresses which he valued at $48, addressed to "Miss Truman." (They were never delivered to Miss Truman.)

Maragon also had a package addressed to George Drescher, then chief of the White House Secret Service detail. He said this package contained "four bottles of champagne."

When the customs opened this particular package, they discovered that it contained orange oil with a domestic value of $2225.

Maragon, while the package was being examined, tore from it a piece of paper bearing the name of Drescher. Recovered and put together later, the paper appeared to be either a letterhead or envelope bearing the words "From the White House—Washington, D. C."

Maragon at one point "identified himself by exhibiting . . . a White House pass."

Roberts, the customs official, said in his letter that Maragon claimed that the orange oil was champagne in the belief that it would get by without examination, "bearing as it did the name and address of a Government official attached to the White House."

He said it was a violation of Section 497 of the Tariff Act, and that the oil was accordingly seized.

Three days after this incident—that is, on August 3, 1945—General Vaughan wrote a letter to the State Department on behalf of Maragon. Addressed to Mrs. Shipley, it said:

"Mr. John F. Maragon, executive for the Albert Verley Co. of Chicago, is arranging to visit the Continent, including the northern part of Italy, for the purpose of reestablishing negotiations for essential oils for the above company.

This was the letter that bore the notation about President Truman being "personally interested" in Maragon's trip, with the reference to Col. S. agreeing that he was 1 D.

Counsel Rogers explained what "1 D" meant. He said that the Joint Chiefs of Staff had laid down an order under which civilians had to have military permit to go through "an area of active operations." Northern Italy was then classified as such an area, and Maragon was given a 1 D permit.

This, Rogers explained, covered "persons whose travel is authorized by the President."

Senator Mundt said he thought this permit was obtained for Maragon "without the knowledge of President Truman."

Counsel Flanagan said that a study of the records showed that Maragon, on this trip, was given a "cargo priority" which permitted him to take 348 pounds of "sample" perfume oils to Paris on an ATC plane. He said the shipment was "indorsed" by General Vaughan.

At this point, the hearing swung to Maragon's brief career as an "administrative assistant" in the State Department. This was the title he held from January 5, 1946, to March 14, 1948, while he was with the Greek Elections Mission.

The letter which Oilman Pauley wrote on Maragon's behalf, saying "Johnny" was not only a good friend of his but "also the President's," was written on White House stationery.

It was brought out, through a memorandum written by Loy Henderson of the State Department, that Vaughan also indorsed Maragon for the State Department job, urging on his behalf that he spoke Greek and would be able to help out in the physical arrangements when the mission arrived in Athens.

The question of Pauley's identity arose at the hearing, and Senator McCarthy broke in with the quip:

"Senator Mundt says he was a dealer in grain," a reference to subsequent revelations about Pauley's big-time operations in the commodities market.

Maragon made his third trip to Europe for the Verley Co. in the spring of 1946, this time with his boss, David A. Bennett. Again Vaughan helped out.

On May 31 of that year, Vaughan's secretary, Ruth Anderson, wrote a memorandum to Mrs. Shipley. Attached was a passport application for Bennett, who wanted to visit France, Italy and Switzerland. Vaughan hoped it would be expedited. The memorandum also asked Mrs. Shipley to "dig up" Maragon's old passport and indorse it for the same countries.

In the summer of 1948, Vaughan was again writing to Mrs. Shipley on behalf of Bennett and this time there was to be a temporary snag.

The White House letter, dated July 29, 1948, said:

"I am writing in the interest of Dave Bennett, 440 West Superior st., Chicago 10, Ill., whose passport number is 7574.

"Mr. Bennett has reservations on the Queen Elizabeth sailing the 6th of August and will go to London and Paris. Mr. Bennnett is desirous of permission to visit a business associate of his who is ill in the hospital in the British zone.

"The man's name is Hans Erich Steche and his address is Landes-Krauken-Austalt Unterstedt, Rotenburg, Hannover (23). I would appreciate your sending this request forward with instructions that the needed permission when granted be sent to Mr. David Bennett, care of the American Embassy, Paris."

But the "needed permission" was not forthcoming, at least not at the Washington end.

Lieut. Col. J. D. Scott, of the Military Permit Branch of the Civil Affairs Division of the Army, wrote a memorandum to Mrs. Shipley on August 4, 1948, which said:

"His (Bennett's) travel cannot be favorably considered as the U.K. (United Kingdom) authorities do not allow travel for this purpose."

Mrs. Shipley enclosed Colonel Scott's memorandum in a letter to Vaughan the next day, and said:

"As it is noted that Mr. Bennett has reservations for August 6 you may wish to send a wire to the ship for him so that he will not expect to find his permission awaiting him in Paris."

General Vaughan, from all indications, did not send a wireless to Bennett out on the Atlantic.

Instead he asked Mrs. Shipley to send a message to an American military officer attached to the United States Embassy in Paris. This was cabled on August 12 and was marked "urgent."

It read:

"Attention Lt. Sakouta. Please issue on request military permit David A. Bennett, president Albert Verley Co., business visitor, desires entry U.K. zone. This information from General Vaughan, White House Presidential aide."

The cablegram was signed "Marshall," and below it the initials R. S. (Mrs. Shipley).

A murmur arose in the committee room when the name of the then Secretary of State George C. Marshall was heard.

Senator McCarthy said that if he had received the message he would have assumed that it came from General Marshall.

However, Counsel Rogers explained that all cables sent out from the State Department bore Marshall's name, "as a matter of form."

The first part of yesterday's hearing was taken up by testimony about Maragon's activities as a representative of persons who were buying surplus property.

In this connection, there was introduced still another of Vaughan's letters putting in a plug for Maragon. This one, dated January 14, 1948, and written on White House stationery, was addressed to Maj. Gen. Clyde L. Hyssong, central field commander for Europe, whose headquarters were in Paris.

The letter to General Hyssong said:

"This will introduce my good friend John Maragon, who is representing George Dawson & Co., and who is interested in purchasing materials from the Foreign Liquidation Service.

"Any assistance that you may be able to render Mr. Maragon will be greatly appreciated by me."

George Dawson, it was brought out, was a Britisher who had been associated with Alan Braithwaite, head of Trans-American Traders, Inc., which bought and sold surplus property.

George A. Chadwick, Washington lawyer, treasurer and director of Trans-American, told of Maragon's work for the outfit. He said he paid Maragon $723.15 in expense money, and that Braithwaite paid him $4288 for "services rendered."

Maragon's trip to Paris in early 1948, with a letter from General Vaughan introducing him to General Hyssong, was mentioned, and then Chadwick told of a suit he had recently filed against Maragon based on something that happened in the French capital.

The suit, filed here, contended that Dawson gave Maragon 1,700,000 French francs (equal to $8,032.50) and asked him to get them exchanged for currency of other denominations. The money, the suit alleged, was in 5000-franc notes, and that time the Bank of France was calling in all such notes.

Dawson asked Maragon for the money that night, the suit said, but Maragon didn't give it to him.

Chadwick, on the witness stand, said negotiations had been going on ever since about the money. He said that Maragon insisted that the money belonged to him and had been paid to him "as a fee for a job."

He said he talked to Maragon in his office here, and that Maragon showed him a copy of an "alleged note" explaining that the money was a "commission." He said Maragon claimed that the original had been signed by Alden Braithwaite, head of Trans-American.

Chadwick said that he asked Maragon for the original of the note. When Maragon gave him a vague answer, he said, he started to make his own copy of Maragon's copy.

"He reached across my desk and grabbed for it," said Chadwick, "but he didn't get it. Then he came around my desk and attacked me."

Chadwick, a smaller man than Maragon, held up the piece of paper he had been reading from, and said his encounter with Maragon explained why it was "rumpled."

Maragon's answer to the suit calling on him to return $8,032.50 to Dawson, together with interest and court costs, was filed here Tuesday by Attorney Joseph Sitnick. It denied all allegations.

Another witness at the hearing was Herbert W. Bertine, formerly in charge of sales for the War Assets Administration in the New York region.

He told how Maragon helped Trans-American Traders to buy $42,000 worth of surplus property—turbine generators, rectifiers, and panels.

Counsel Rogers asked Bertine if Maragon had told him about being paid. The witness told of a telephone conversation he had with Maragon, after the sale, and said:

"He advised me that he was not a member of Trans-American Traders, or an employe, but that—as he put it—he was out trying to make a couple of bucks and hoped to obtain a commission."

The committee has been trying to show that Maragon was wrong when he testified, at an executive session, that he never got any money for negotiating Government business. Senator McCarthy has demanded that he be indicted for perjury.

Maragon Son Avows Pride in His Father

Richmond, Va., Aug. 25 (AP).—John Parker Maragon, 19-year-old son of John F. Maragon, key figure in the Washington "5-percenter inquiry, says he is "mighty proud" of his father.

"I am proud of the runaway immigrant kid from a little Aegean island and also mighty proud of the fact that I am the ex-bootblack's only son," young Maragon, a sophomore at Hampden-Sidney College, wrote the Richmond Times-Dispatch today.

He described his father as "a fine, middle-class gentleman of 56" with "a pleasant personality and hands as big as a fielder's mitt. Fingers like bananas. Possibly from whipping that rag as a bootblack."

"Simply because John is not of the Groton-Harvard crowd it seems to be necessary for the snobs to emphasize that he must be a low creature because he is now opulnt, but was once a Greek bootblack," the letter states.

"We used to be proud of the fact that in the United States there was no aristocracy of birth, but rather equality of opportunity under a system of private enterprise.

"How far have we moved from reality that we hold it against a man that he started life as a bootblack, managed to move up the ladder and used his intelligence, rather than inherited wealth and family prestige to get along?

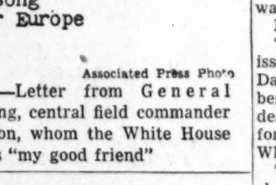
"But John Maragon did have background. On the small Greek island in the Aegean where he was born (not Malta), John's father was mayor of the little town.

"I have seen no names of 'Greek bootblacks' on the list of traitors, conspirators, spies and wreckers of their country, but the Ivy League and imitation Oxford accent have contributed more than their share, and as the story unfolds, it is increasingly evident that those who are too refined to be useful are not always too decent to be unpatriotic."

Young John, who lives with his parents at McLean, Va., is working this summer as a freight handler at a local airport.

Beran in Good Health

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 25 (AP).—A Roman Catholic official said today Archbishop Josef Beran is in good health and unshaken in his determination to oppose all government attempts to gain control of the church.



ANOTHER VAUGHAN EPISTLE—Letter from General Vaughan to General Clyde L. Hyssong, central field commander for Europe, introduces John Maragon, whom the White House military aide referred to as "my good friend"

House Approves Hike In Pay for 17,000 on VA Hospital Staffs

The House yesterday came up with a big surprise by approving a bill to raise the salaries of 17,000 doctors, dentists, and nurses in Veterans' Administration hospitals.

Approval was by unanimous consent. The bill, sponsored by Representative Allen (D., La.), had been reported out of the House Veterans Committee only two days ago. The report on it wasn't available when the House acted.

The Allen bill was drawn up to dovetail with the Administration's executive and classified pay raise bills. The average VA medical employe would get a pay boost of more than $200 a year in it. The increase would be $400 in the lower nursing grade, which was boosted to a $3400 minimum and $4200 maximum.

Pay boosts would be substantial for top officials. For example, the chief medical director would be raised from $12,000 to $16,000; the deputy would get $15,000; assistants from $13,000 to $14,000, and up to 20 division chiefs could be paid between $11,500 to $12,500.

Meanwhile, the House Rules Committee reported out two pay bills affecting thousands of Federal employes in the Washington area. One provides a $150-a-year flat increase for postal workers; the other would increase classified employes' an average of $113.

The committee acted after the necessary signatures to a House petition had been obtained to force the legislation onto the floor.

STORY: After the big layoff of civilian employes in Army, Navy, and Air Forces was announced the other day, this "toast" was heard around the Pentagon:

"Here's to Unification,
Now Army and Navy won't nod.
And Air Force speaks only to Johnson,
And Johnson speaks only to God."

PEOPLE: Jonathan Daniels, the North Carolina publisher and former FDR assistant, is reported to have support for appointment as chairman of the Civil Service Commission. He turned down the Navy secretaryship earlier this year . . . At Treasury, John K. Carlock has been appointed assistant general counsel succeeding Karl R. Price, who joined the legal staff at Internal Revenue. Hugo A. Ranta is the new assistant to the general counsel, and Donald A. Hansen heads the legislative section of the general counsel's office . . . Jesse M. Donaldson, jr., son of the Postmaster General, has been appointed assistant chief postoffice inspector, a job his father once occupied. He succeeds Richard Eggleton who will be inspector in charge of the New York City area.

NOTES: September 6 is the last day Civil Service will accept applications for its Grade 2 and 3 general clerical examination. Apply soon if you're interested . . . The House Civil Service Committee yesterday approved the Senate bill to allow automatic promotions for employes in Postoffice's mail equipment shop here.

GWU: This new anti-Communist CIO Government Workers Union reports major membership gains at the expense of CIO's left-wing United Public Workers. Locals in Milwaukee, Chicago, Cleveland, Salt Lake City and Fairmont, W. Va., are reported to have broken away from the ineffective UPWA to join GWU in the past several weeks.

William Mirengoff, GWU cochairman, said: "It has become increasingly evident that rank-and-file members who still remain in UPWA have little sympathy with the left-wing ideologies of their national leadership." If UPWA is either expelled or withdraws from the CIO—as is expected—Mirengoff predicts very few members will stick with it.

WAR ASSETS next week will be moved to Alcott Hall, which is behind the main Navy Building . . . Barton Hall is being done over for use of the military agencies . . . The National Association of Federal Career Employes has opened offices at 712 Jackson pl. nw. Its phone number is Republic 7750. A chapter at the Gun Factory here was installed last night. The group claims a national membership of more than 100,000 . . . Officials of the important National Civil Service League will confer with the President today on the appointment of a new chairman of the Civil Service Commission. Nicholas Kelley, president; Winston Paul, chairman of the executive committee, and James R. Watson, executive director, will see the President.

Marshall Hts. Slum Area Studied by 3 Senators

Lawmakers Feel Redevelopment of Section in Full Is Only Solution

Three Senators yesterday made an on-the-spot study of Marshall Heights in Southeast Washington and returned to the Capitol convinced that a complete redevelopment job there is the only answer.

The 180-acre tract, on which 93 per cent of the dwellings have been declared below minimum health standards, was slated to be the city's first slum clearance project until the House refused the necessary funds last spring.

On the tour were Senators Sparkman (D., Ala.), chairman of the Senate Banking Subcommittee on Housing; Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) also a member of the Banking Subcommittee, and Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Acting Engineer Commissioner L. E. Cox, Willian Cary, jr., District director of health engineering, John Nolen, jr., planning director of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and other city officials joined the legislators on yesterday's tour.

Would Retain 'Freeze'

After the trip, Sparkman said the present "freeze" on any further capital improvements in the area should remain in force until Congress is given "another chance to look into the Marshall Heights situation."

The "freeze" order was put into effect last spring after the Commissioners had approved a redevelopment plan, pending a congressional slum clearance appropriation that later became snagged in the House.

An amendment in the new national housing act also blocks use of Federal funds on the Marshall Heights project.

But both Sparkman and Ferguson said yesterday they did not believe the prohibitive amendment would be binding on the next session of Congress. They both pledged to lead another fight for Marshall Heights funds next January.

Ferguson said he was "amazed" to find such a large area within the District without sewer and water facilities. The situation there, he said, "simply emphasizes the need for an early decision on how to tackle the problem."

Installation Urged

Marshall Heights residents, many of whom have objected to a city redevelopment program in their area, have been urging the Commissioners to install water and sewer facilities. District officials, on the other hand, insist that the rough terrain and street layout there make any extensive work almost impossible from an engineering standpoint.

Senator Flanders agreed, saying, "The normal development of Marshall Heights by installing sewers and water systems looks impossible because the cost to residents of putting in the necessary retaining walls and pipe connections would appear to be prohibitive."

Sparkman again promised that his Banking subcommittee would hold public hearings this year to determine the best way to approach the Marshall Heights project, as well as to map out a city-wide program of slum clearance and public housing.

District Area Reports 3 New Cases of Polio

Three new cases of polio—one in the District and two in neighboring counties—were reported yesterday.

In Washington a 5-year-old girl of the 5200 block of Manning pl. nw. was admitted to Children's Hospital Wednesday. Her case was diagnosed yesterday as the District's thirty-ninth polio case this year.

The 1948 District total on the corresponding day last year was 45 cases.

Arlington's ninth polio case this year, a 3-year-old girl living in the 4100 block of 37th st., was reported yesterday. The child had been admitted to Children's Hospital Wednesday.

A 6-year-old girl of Fairfax County was ill of polio yesterday at Children's Hospital, where she had been admitted the preceding day. Her home is in the Shirley Gate Park development on the Old Braddock road about a mile west of Fairfax. She is the county's sixth case this year.

102 Area Polio Cases Are Reported in 1949

One hundred and two cases of polio have been reported by Greater Washington health authorities so far this year.

District—39.
Prince Georges County—28.
Montgomery County—14.
Arlington County—9.
Alexandria—6.
Fairfax County—6.

JUDGING RING—Ayrshire senior yearling heifers are paraded before judges at Montgomery County Fair yesterday

Montgomery County Fair Draws 2500

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

Beneath clear, sunny skies about 2500 farm people, Four-H Clubbers and interested city folk looked over the first Montgomery County Fair in 21 years as it opened yesterday at Gaithersburg, Md.

Visitors examined an estimated 360 cattle, 104 chickens, 21 sheep and 170 swine on display. And they rode on the ferris wheel, ate food prepared by farm wives, and admired the latest in farm machinery.

During the three-day fair ending Saturday night, $7500 in prizes will be awarded exhibitors of everything from Holsteins to canned tomatoes.

Yesterday saw the judging of Jersey, Ayrshire and milking shorthorn cattle; of poultry, and of household exhibits.

Award for the junior championship bull went to W. H. Hill & Son of Woodbine, Md., who also took top honors for the senior champion and grand champion bulls.

In the Jersey cattle class, the junior champion bull was shown by Glenellen Farm of Frederick County. N. S. Stiles & Sons of Rockville boasted the senior and grand champion bull. Junior champion female award went to Allie Messer of Gaithersburg, and John Stiles & Sons of Mount Airy, Md., took top awards in the senior and grand champion female class.

Winning Four-H Club exhibitors of Jerseys were Stanley Stiles of Rockville in the junior champion class, and Carol Mills of Gaithersburg in the senior and grand champion class.

Among the dozens of blue ribbons awarded in the household department was one to Mrs. W. W. Griffith of Laytonsville for an antique crazy quilt exhibited at a Rockville fair 50 years ago.

In poultry, Harry Kirk, Silver Spring, scored with the champion cockerel, champion pullet and champion trio of all breeds.

Study Ordered On Uniform Gas Rates for Area

3 Public Utility Bodies Confer on Possibilities for Action in Future

Growth of nearby Maryland and Virginia has prompted a long-range study of possibility of establishing uniform rates for gas in Greater Washington.

A conference was held in the District Building yesterday in office of James Flanagan, chairman of the District Public Utilities Commission, which initiated the project, with representatives of the Maryland Public Service Commission and the Virginia State Corporation Commission.

The group agreed that the staffs of the three regulatory bodies would begin a comprehensive study of the problem and report results to each commission for further consideration and later joint discussion among the three boards.

Flanagan said that at present Virginia has the highest gas rates, with Maryland second and the District last. Gas is supplied by the Washington Gas Light Co. of Maryland, Inc., and the Rosslyn Gas Co. in Virginia, both subsidiaries of the Washington Gas Light Co., suppliers in the District. The Washington Gas Light Co. has an application up before PUC for a rate increase.

The PUC chairman said the project has no effect on the pending application and the firm has not been consulted on the proposal.

The project has been under discussion for several years, he explained, but recent census reports showing the rapid growth of nearby areas helped stimulate the undertaking. He pointed out that there is already a close relationship between the District and the Maryland commission on electricity rates.

Present at the meeting yesterday were the following delegations:

Maryland—Commissioner Frank Harper, General Counsel Charles D. Harris, Chief Engineer Hugh H. Hunter and Rate Clerk W. Joseph Towes.

Virginia—Commissioner H. Lester Hooker.

Washington—Commissioner Flanagan, Commissioner James Lauderdale, Assistant Engineer Commissioner Kenneth Whitesell, Assistant Corporation Counsel Lloyd B. Harrison, Executive Auditor V. A. McElfresh and Chief Engineer F. A. Sager.

Gaming Raid's 'Coincidence' To Be Probed

The case of two men under gambling charges was continued in Municipal Court yesterday because the prosecutor decided to look into what he called "quite a coincidence" in circumstances leading to the arrests.

Police Lieut. Roy Blick, vice squad chief, had said the men were arrested Wednesday when the front door of a second-floor apartment at 1436 Park rd. nw. was opened from the inside just as vice squad men reached the top of the stairs, revealing $150 on a table.

Though without a warrant, Lieutenant Blick and his men entered on the basis of seeing the evidence through the door, he said. They charged Edwin H. Trundle, 41, of 321 Madison st. nw., and Samuel E. Briles, 41, of 2809 15th st. nw., with operating a lottery, possessing numbers slips and setting up a gaming table.

Assistant U. S. Attorney J. Warren Wilson yesterday obtained from Judge Aubrey Fennell a continuance of the case until September 7 so he could look into the "coincidence" of having the door to a second-floor gambling establishment open just as detectives reached the top of the steps, he told reporters.

Lieutenant Blick defended the action of entering the apartment without a warrant, declaring that when the door opened, the men inside recognized the policemen. If arrests had not been made then and he had waited to get a warrant, he said, he would have lost the alleged numbers men.

Boy Sought In Chase of 'Hot-Rod' Car

An 18-year-old "hot-rod" driver who outmaneuvered 10 Maryland police cars in a wild 30-mile chase at midnight Wednesday was sought by Prince Georges County authorities last night on a total of 13 traffic charges.

The youth, whose identity is known to police, escaped afoot into a wooded area near Green Meadows when he had to abandon his auto after it caught fire.

Prince Georges County Police Pvt. Emmett Gray, driver of the only police car able to keep pace with the "souped-up" jalopy, yesterday swore out two warrants against the youth, charging him with driving on a revoked permit and exceeding 70 miles per hour.

When the "hot-rod" driver is apprehended, Gray said, these additional charges will be filed: passing a stop sign (three counts), passing a red light (three counts), turning off his lights to evade arrest, reckless driving by colliding, reckless driving by endangering the life and limb of others, leaving the scene of an accident and failing to obey the command of an officer.

The colliding charge sprang from his running the jalopy against an embankment at the end of the chase.

The chase, which started on Defense hwy., when the "hot-rod" was spotted by Prince Georges Corpl. Reginald Austin, eventually involved cruisers from Prince Georges, the towns of Greenbelt and Mount Rainier, and Maryland State Police. Speeds at times ranged to 95 miles an hour.

When the chase finally ended, police took into custody two frightened juveniles—a boy and a girl—who had gone along in the "hot-rod" for the ride. They were turned over to juvenile authorities, who released them to their parents.

Police said last night the driver had not returned to his home in Brentwood since leaving the car at Green Meadows.

D. C. Approves Site Purchase For 2 Schools

Expenditure of almost $300,000 for land for two Negro junior high schools was approved yesterday by the District Commissioners.

The city heads approved the purchase of 46 lots at 1st and Pierce sts. nw. at a cost of $298,250 as the site for the new Terrell Junior High School. The amount was originally set by a condemnation jury and was approved by the District Real Estate Committee as in line with expert testimony.

The present Terrell School's auditorium has been closed since May, 1948, because it does not meet fire safety requirements. The structure, built in 1890, has had an over-capacity student body for several years.

The second purchase was 4352 square feet owned by Clara T. Slaughter, 1206 R st. nw., near Pomeroy rd., Douglas pl. and Stanton rd. se., at $655. The lot is part of the site for a yet-unnamed junior high school. Purchase was recommended by the City Real Estate Committee.

Car Hurts Woman Sitting in Home

A 70-year-old woman suffered two sprained ankles yesterday when an automobile backed across her feet which were sticking out of the door of her house.

The woman, Mrs. Mary Johnson, 927 Desmond ct. sw., was injured, police said, when an automobile driven by James Washington, 20, of 450 9th st. sw., backed slowly past her doorstep. Mrs. Johnson was sitting inside the house, they said, with her feet projecting into the street which has no sidewalk.

Bill Giving 3 More Judges To D. C. Blocked in House

House economy leaders yesterday blocked passage of a bill to add three judges to the 10-man Municipal Court here.

The measure came up in the House under a unanimous consent agreement by which one objection sends the bill over for later consideration.

One of the objectors, Representative Rich (R., Pa.) told his colleagues:

"There are too many judges on local golf courses, and not enough in the judicial chambers. The District doesn't need any more judges."

Representative Gross (R., Iowa) also raised a dissenting voice on the same grounds of "no need."

Chairman McMillan (D., S. C.) of the House District Committee, joined by two other committee members, Representatives Harris (D., Ark.) and Jones (D., Ala.) tried to save the measure.

McMillan cited the "terrific backlog" of cases now on the Municipal Court docket. He said lawyers presently must wait sometimes 18 months before they can bring up their cases. He said he would ask reconsideration of the judgeship bill on the next District day in the House when unanimous consent is not necessary.

The House also failed to pass another District measure to permit restaurants and hotels to sell alcoholic beverages, except light wine and beer, to customers on credit.

Objection to this liquor bill was raised by Representative Granger (D., Utah) who said the legislation would extend "special privileges to certain hotels."

Fetes' Merger In '50 Studied

Plans to merge the Falls Church birthday party and the Falls Church festival next year were under discussion yesterday by officials of both groups.

"Our thinking is that next year we should combine our efforts and make it a bigger and longer affair," Henry J. Krages, co-chairman of the festival, said yesterday. Similar sentiments were voiced by Frank Malice, president of the Falls Church Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored the birthday party.

The birthday celebration on August 13 netted about $1500, Malice said.

The festival, held August 18 through 20, took in about $4200 in gross profits, but last-minute expenses will bring the net receipts down to about $2000, Krages estimated yesterday.

Six Candidates Enter Race For Arlington School Board

Six candidates will appear before the Arlington School Board nominating convention September 6-7.

Two of the six candidates will be selected by the convention to run on a nonpartisan ticket in the November elections for two School Board vacancies.

Col. Crawford Dies at 68 of Heart Attack

Col. Lawrence C. Crawford, 68, retired Army officer and a Washington insurance broker, died following a heart attack yesterday at his home at 4600 Broad Branch rd. nw.

Col. Crawford

Colonel Crawford's Army career was terminated by tuberculosis in 1920. A few years later he settled in Washton, established an insurance business and became an active figure in the city's civic affairs.

He was for many years chairman of the traffic committee of the Washington Board of Trade. years on the budget committee of years on the Budget Committee of the Community Chest.

As a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, he instituted, in the late 1920s, he annual Lincoln Day ceremonies at Lincoln Memorial.

Since President Roosevelt established the practice of attending the ceremony, Colonel Crawford accompanied him and his successor, President Truman to the memorial every year.

Colonel Crawford was born in Brunswick, Me., the son of Gen. and Mrs. Medorem Crawford. He was educated at the University of South Carolina and first joined the Army as a private in 1901.

He served overseas in the Coast Artillery in World War I. He had the rank of major at the close of the war and was promoted to colonel before his retirement.

A member of the insurance firm of Crawford & Thren, Colonel Crawford maintained offices in the Washington Building, 15th and New York ave. nw. He was a chartered life underwriter, a member of the Insurance Club of Washington and of the Army-Navy Club.

He is survived by his wife, the former Doley Turtle of Pensacola, Fla.; a daughter, Mrs. Frederick Moss, 5242 42d st. nw.; a brother, Col. Medorem Crawford, Roseburg, Oreg., and two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Bronson, Hartford, Conn., and Miss Dolores Crawford, 2501 Q st. nw.

Graveside funeral services will be held at 3:30 p. m. Monday at Arlington Cemetery.

Hoskinson Services Set For Saturday

Funeral services for Harry Hoskinson, 72, a founder of the Sanitary Grocery chain—now Safeway Stores, Inc.—who died Wednesday in Sibley Hospital, will be held at 10 a. m. Saturday at his residence, 3410 Garfield st. nw.

Mr. Hoskinson

Burial services will be private in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

A native of Darnestown, Md., Mr. Hoskinson, attended Rockville (Md.) Academy, was graduated from the Spencerian Institute in Washington and entered merchandise business in Burnt Mills, Md. About 1909 he returned to Washington and together with the late Edward Yonker was associated with the late John Letts in the founding of the Sanitary Grocery chain here.

When the chain, which included Piggly Wiggly stores, was merged with Safeway, Mr. Hoskinson remained with the new organization until a heart attack prompted his retirement about 1933.

He then devoted his attention to various civic and philanthropic interests and to the family farm at Gaithersburg.

He was a member of Rotary Club, University Club and the board of trustees of the Methodist Union, and president of the trustees of the Methodist Home for the Aged. He was a member of Wesley Church. He was also president of Cedar Hill Cemetery Corp.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Carrie Walker Hoskinson; two daughters, Mrs. Florence A. H. Hummer of Madison, Wisc., and Mrs. Helen M. H. Jones of Washington; a son, J. Henry Hoskinson, 2800 Woodley rd. nw., manager of operations for Station WMAL-TV, and three grandsons, Francis Lee Hummer, pr., Harry Hoskinson Hummer and J. Henry Hoskinson, jr.

R. W. Johnston Dies; Retired U. S. Employe

Robert W. Johnston, 58, retired senior examiner of the Budget Bureau, died of a heart attack in the Hotel New Yorker, New York City, Wednesday night. He was vacationing in New York City at the time.

A native of Dorchester, Mass., Mr. Johnston came to Washington to work for the Interior Department in 1908. He served in the AEF during World War I and received a Purple Heart for wounds sustained in the war.

Returning from the war, he joined the Bureau of Internal Revenue. In 1922, after taking a degree from the Georgetown University Law School the previous year, Mr. Johnston left the Government for nine years to work for the Buick Motors Co. here.

From 1931 to 1935 he was back at Internal Revenue and in the latter year transferred to the Bureau of the Budget, where he worked as an examiner in the Estimates Division until his retirement on disability in 1947.

He was a member of the Foundry Methodist Church, the Barrister Lodge No. 48, F.A.A.M., and of the Argyle Country Club. He leaves a brother, Lincoln C. Johnston and a sister, Marie A. Johnston, both of whom lived with him

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday at the W. W. Deal funeral home, 4812 Georgia ave. nw. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

John W. Dunne

Banbury, England, Aug. 25 (U.P.). John William Dunne, 73, who designed and built the first British military airplane in 1906, died yesterday.

In 1938 he published "The New Immortality," in which he held that when a person dies he continues to live in dreams and that the dream world is more real than the physical world.

Mrs. Fannie Cook

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Mrs. Fannie Cook, 52, author of "Boot-Heel Doctor" and other social novels, died today.

Her last novel, "Mrs. Palmer's Money," the story of a Negro family in St. Louis, won the George Washington Carver award in 1946.

Dr. Frank Thone Dies at 58; Science Service Editor

Dr. Frank Thone, 58, of 1424 Chapin st. nw., biology editor of Science Service, died unexpectedly yesterday of a heart attack while in the office of his physician at 1801 I st. nw.

Mr. Thone

A specialist in plant ecology, Dr. Thone joined the staff of Science Service in 1924 after a brief career as a college professor. His assignments as a science writer ranged from the Scopes "monkey" trial at Dalton, Tenn. to the atom bomb tests at Bikini.

He authorized newspaper features on nature and on new patents. In 1946 he received a Westinghouse award for distinguished science writing.

He wrote "Trees and Flowers of Yellowstone National Park" and "The Microscopic World." He was an active member of many scientific organizations including the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Washington Academy of Sciences and the National Association of Science Writers.

Dr. Thone is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary Anna Thone, and a sister, Miss Margaret Thone, both of Des Moines. Funeral services, to be held in Des Moines, were incomplete last night.

One on the Aisle—

Capitol 'Natives' A Cut Above Par

By Richard L. Coe

GENE FORD'S "Going Native" opened its tenth edition yesterday on the Capitol stage and the first performance revealed a revue some cuts above average.

The screen attraction is Margaret O'Brien in "The Secret Garden," a Frances Hodgson Burnett story long popular with children and effectively filmed with Dean Stockwell heading the supporting cast.

The striking thing about "Going Native" is that frequently one forgets that this is little more than a local amateur night. The entire cast, as usual, has been drawn from performers and ambitious youngsters in the Washington area. They have been presented with such care and staging that they make you forget their livelihoods have lain in other channels.

As always in such productions, some performers are outstanding, which is indeed, the purpose of the late Gene Ford's innovation—to give opportunity to the inexperienced to get their stage legs. With the repetitions the week will bring, it's likely some of the performers will come off more effectively than they did at the first public performance. And it's revealing to observe that of the first show's hits, experience did a lot to put them across.

Ken Calfee Scores

There is, for example, as assured and amusing a comic monologist as the Capitol stage ever sees in Maryland University's Ken Calfee. Calfee has been immensely active in campus theatricals and his assurance stood him well on the Capitol's big stage. His act is largely impersonations but he's good at them and his windup a la Victor Borge is as good as they come. Even were the house not loaded with friendly boosters, Calfee would have had his corral of laughs anyway.

James Spear, a magician veteran of last year's edition, returns with some amusing tricks, a cute assistant, Ann Clements, and a genial manner.

Marion Kiotta's soprano scored a resounding hit in "Love Is Where You Find It." Again an assured manner helped the natural talents.

Assurance, too, put across the dancing style of Thomas Pence and Bernard Shur in selections from the ballet music of Gounod's "Faust." These two have a certain style, growing from their many appearances during the past several years in collegiate and community projects. Their metier is hardly in the popular groove, but their assured movements make their difficult art acceptable.

An imaginative stage picture for Charles King's "Dangerous Dan McGrew" is another "Going Native" highlight. This brings into play some of the infrequently used tricks of the large stage.

For novelty there is Janet Cassel disguising the beauty which put her up near the top for the 'Miss Washington" title, to sing two hillbilly numbers, "I Didn't Know the Gun Was Loaded" and "Winkin' at Me." And some swift charcoal sketches by Milo Scott make for variety. Rosanna Mela's voice is announced by M. C. Sam Jack Kaufman as "unusual," which is precisely the term for her strangely cotton-covered chanting to "J'Attendrai." Another Maryland U. lad, David Field, starts the specialties with some comic and difficult didoes on a trampoline. The Sammy Seymour Trio offers cafe atmosphere.

Yes, there are girls, a dancing line of 14 in routines that may be familiar but are well delivered when you consider this is not a Radio City Music Hall group, but individuals whipped into a team for a week of "Going Native."

The overall impression of this tenth edition of a Capitol custom is that it boasts exceptional variety, with no specialists treading on each others' material. There's one each for every phase of variety, which makes for sprightly pace and no awkward comparisons.

You'll be pleasantly surprised how easily "Going Native" entertains you.

"THE SECRET GARDEN." M-G-M release produced by Clarence Brown. Screen play by Robert Ardrey from the novel by Frances Hodgson Burnett. Music by Bronislau Kaper. Photographed, practically in Technicolor, by Ray June. Directed by Fred M. Wilcox. At the Capitol.

MARGARET O'BRIEN and Dean Stockwell, her "leading man" in the Capitol's film, "The Secret Garden"

"THE SECRET GARDEN," the Capitol's feature, concerns how a selfish little girl, a crippled boy and a country lad construct a happy playground in a forbidden spot . . . Margaret O'Brien, Dean Stockwell and Brian Roper play the children, with Herbert Marshall as Stockwell's unhappy father . . . There's a pleasant air of mystery about their hidden paradise which mitigates a naturally sentimental story, and Elsa Lanchester is rich as a Yorkshire woman . . . Technicolor decorates the hidden playspot and the children drawn to "Go Native" will find it particularly akin to them.

TONIGHT: Griffith Stadium hosts the third annual music festival benefiting the National Negro Opera Company's sustaining fund . . . In case of rain, tomorrow night.

Miss Goddard Gives 'Anna' Everything Paulette's Got

By Orval Hopkins

I HAPPEN to have read, some years ago, Philip Yordan's play, "Anna Lucasta." It was tough, tragic and alive. I also saw the play as presented by an all-Negro cast at the Howard Theater this summer. This production, too, was tough and alive, though the play's tragic tones were subdued to make way for an emphasis on its comic strain.

Thus encumbered, I had a little trouble bringing the movie "Anna Lucasta," now at the Warner, into focus. The story seems to be essentially as Yordan wrote it, except that the ending is bright instead of dark. Since Yordan produced the movie and collaborated on the screen play, I suppose this is as he wished it. A good part of the original dialogue is retained, the photography is at least adequate, the players are seasoned hands. But somebody has taken the zing out of this play. I suspect it's the director.

Paulette Is Anna

Paulette Goddard, who plays Anna, has been permitted to believe that if she appears in tight dresses, open down to here, she's done her part. Paulette's a snappy package, no doubt about it, but aside from hanging a cigarette in the corner of her mouth and frisking a curvy hip, she has left her histrionic skills on the hook for this one. Oscar Homolka is a sad and sorrowing father. He looks so much like John L. Lewis I had trouble keeping my eye on the ball. Even John Ireland, normally a favorite of mine, looks bad here, particularly when stacked against the young man who played Danny in the Howard production. John Tate. Broderick Crawford portrays the avaricious brother Frank and would have been fine if they could have slowed him down a bit. William Bishop as Rudolph, and Mary Wickes as Stella worked harder and did better than the rest, I thought.

A Fleecing Plot

The story, you surely recall, is about the unscrupulous members of a family who set out to fleece a young farmer of his $4000 ($800 in the play), using the beauteous Anna Lucasta as bait. Anna and the young man, Rudolf, fall in love, however, something they should have foreseen, the plot falls through, and the happy couple wind up approaching each other with that shine in their eyes.

It's fuzzy. You're never allowed to forget that after all it's only a movie and you got Paulette Goddard, ain't you? The tale has been cleaned up to a painful degree. You are given to understand, for example, in a deadly flashback scene, that Anna is a waitress, not a streetwalker, and that her foot never slipped once, not even that time in her youth. It was all a frameup.

"ANNA LUCASTA." Columbia release produced by Security Pictures. Screen play by Philip Yordan and Arthur Laurente from the play by Yordan. Photographed by Sol Polito. Directed by Irving Rapper. At the Warner.

Auto Titlings Up 32% Here In Four Years

By S. Oliver Goodman

There now are more than 174,000 motor vehicles registered in the District of Columbia, or about one auto for every five persons in the city (including children).

Based on the generally accepted average of about four persons to a family, that would make 7 cars for every 10 families here.

As of last July 31, there were 174,169 motor cars registered in the District of Columbia, according to the Department of Vehicles and Traffic. Latest Census Bureau figures place the District of Columbia population at 863,000 as of July 1, 1948.

Since June 30, 1945, registrations of motor cars here have soared about 32 per cent. When you get into a traffic jam, it only looks like more. Registrations four years ago were 131,591.

The jump in registrations here is about the same as the national average. The Automobile Manufacturers Association reports that slightly more than 41 million cars are now registered in the United States. Of these, the association said, 10 million were licensed in the period 1945 through 1948.

$3 EXTRA VOTED: Directors of Mergenthaler Linotype Co. yesterday declared an extra dividend of $3 a share in addition to the quarterly dividend of 75 cents, payable September 28 to stock of record September 12. Last year Mergenthaler paid a total of $4.25 in dividends. The stock, listed on the Washington Stock Exchange, showed a bid price of $53.50 yesterday.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Mark D. Rorick has been appointed Washington traffic and sales representative of Eastern Air Lines. He served four years in the Navy prior to joining Eastern Air in 1947 . . . Four Washingtonians — William T. Bluemenauer, Richard H. Sinclair, Herman Schwertner and Raymond C. Williams— have returned from the annual two-week Graduate School of Savings and Loan at Indiana University . . . R. W. Rummel has been named chief engineer of Transworld Airline.

Rorick

DIVIDEND: Directors of Capital Transit Co. yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a common share, payable October 1 to stock of record September 9. Similar dividends were voted in each of the first two quarters this year, while only one 50 cent dividend was paid in 1948.

BOTHERSOME: Investment brokers are continuing their battle against the New York State stock transfer tax. Terming the levy an "unwarranted and unfair burden" upon investors in States other than New York, the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., in a current bulletin recommends to its members that they avoid payment of this tax by using transfer facilities outside of the State of New York whenever possible. Washington brokers are backing the NASD campaign and point to this specific example of the unfairness of the New York tax. A Washington investor sells 100 shares of Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., to another local person and the sale is made on the Washington Stock Exchange. Because Peoples Drug Stores' transfer agent is in New York, the Empire State steps in and levies 4 cents a share, or $4 on this specific transaction.

APPLIANCES: July sales of television sets, home freezers, ironers and vacuum cleaners displayed increases over the same 1948 month in Washington and two nearby Maryland counties, the Electric Institute reported yesterday. A lower trend for the month was shown in sales of electric ranges, washers, dryers, water heaters, both regular and combination radio sets and roasters.

ODD LOTS: Auto production this week is estimated at 143,463 units, a slight increase from 140,952 the previous week. Boost was attributed to increased scheduling at General Motors and Studebaker . . . The market for helicopters "just isn't there," report officials of Helicopters, Inc., in announcing decision to liquidate after spending a million dollars on development . . . Field Enterprises, Inc., has acquired the 45-year-old Patterson's American Educational Directory, a listing of schools and educators . . . National Sugar Refining Co. will advance price of sugar 0.1 of a cent a pound on September 1 at the refinery.

Yanks Whip Tribe, 6-3; Bosox Lose

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

AMONG THE problems of the assistant librarian of the Civil Aeronautics Administration a couple of years ago was a 115-pound tyke, a bus boy in the Commerce Department cafeteria. When they'd meet in the halls of the big Government building, meetings contrived by the boy, the plea was always the same: "Help me be a fighter, Mr. Banks."

For months, Assistant Librarian Billy Banks scowled the lad down. "You're too little. Forget about fighting," was his advice to Jimmy Cooper. It didn't work. Banks wound up managing Cooper.

POVICH

The partnership has worked out pretty well. On Monday night at Griffith Stadium, Banks will have Cooper in there fighting no less than the bantamweight champion of the world, Manuel Ortiz. It's an overweight bout with no title at stake, to be sure, but it's evidence that little Jimmy Cooper has come a long way.

No fighter has ever licked Cooper and made it stick. The four men who did beat him in the 30 bouts he has fought as a professional were outpunched by Cooper in return engagements. The only two times Cooper was knocked off his feet, he got off the floor to win his fight. He has been decisioned, but never stopped.

FROM THE OUTSET of his pro fighting career, Cooper was apparently endowed with good boxing sense. That was when he selected Librarian Banks as his manager. Banks was not always such a sedentary type. For most of 10 years he was the flashiest boxer in this area, and he retired as the D. C. featherweight champ.

Banks has had Cooper training for six weeks for this fight with Ortiz. "That's longer than Charles and Lesnevich trained for their heavyweight title fight," he points out. Cooper is up at 4:30 every morning for road work before he goes in the gym. I'm up with him. I wouldn't get out of bed at that hour if I didn't think Cooper was worth it."

He was saying that Ortiz is 32 years old and "we're going to try to make the most of that. All our work has been aimed at putting Cooper in shape, he's 21, to set a fast pace for Ortiz. One that will be too fast, we hope. Cooper's speed and that good left hand ought to keep him out of trouble, away from those body punches of Ortiz's."

Cooper wasn't exactly a green pea all the time he was asking Banks to help make him a fighter. He's been in the Army in 1945-46, fought 26 fights, lost only one, collected the title of amateur champion of Missouri, and was beaten on a split decision for the California State amateur title.

HE ADMITS bashfully that he doesn't always tell the truth, however. "Like when I enlisted in the Army in '45 and said I was 18." He was, in fact, only 16. Army life began dismally for the lad. They assigned him to a heavy labor battalion. And then came deliverance when a notice was posted calling for candidates for the boxing team.

It was a nice way to get out of all that work," said Cooper. Everybody went out for the boxing team, but only a few of 'em stuck. Fighting was easier than working, I figured. And when I won all of my fights the captain began to like me. I was excused from most of the formations, after that."

He was in Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco for nine months, he said. And what sort of duty was that?

"No duty at all. I was a patient. I had some dizzy spells."

Then for nine months he didn't fight? "No, I wasn't that sick. They just told me to relax. While I was relaxing, I had 15 fights."

COOPER'S Washington boyhood was spent within a fungo drive of Turner's Arena, and like the other kids of his neighborhood he was poaching on the roof on fight nights, getting a peek at the bouts. "It was easy. We just climbed up the side and watched from a top window. They didn't bother us much. Sometimes they caught us, though."

And then what happened? Cooper related his version of Turner's Arena justice. "Oh, they just gave us a swift kick in the pants and chased us away from the place until the next time."

World Champion Ortiz is a pretty good fighter, Cooper confesses. He's seen Ortiz fight in California. Is Cooper scared? "Naw, I've had a lot of tough fights. I figure I can fight my way out of trouble if I have to. Jeez, up around Seventh and U when I was a kid, a kid had to fight his way across the street, if he wanted to get on the other side."

Cards Beat Giants; Bums Split Two With Cubs

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals increased their National League lead to a game and a half over the Brooklyn Dodgers tonight, beating the New York Giants, 5-2.

Home runs by Stan Musial and Marty Marion featured the victory.

George Munger, who went the distance for the Cards, hung up his twelfth win. It was his first victory since he defeated the Giants on August 5. Both Giant runs were unearned as errors by Marty Marion and Tommy Glaviano came in order in the sixth to permit Sid Gordon and Joe Lafata to score.

Enos Slaughter drove in the first two Cardinal runs with a double, it followed a pass to Chuck Diering and Musial's double.

Monte Kennedy, went seven frames for the Giants to sufier his tenth loss against 9 wins.

Bums Blanked by Cubs, 4-0; Win 2d Game, 3-1

Brooklyn, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers staved off a ninth-inning Chicago assault to turn back the Cubs, 3-1, in the second game of a double-header today, thus gaining a split for the day. The Cubs won the opener, 4-0, behind Johnny Schmitz.

Jack Banta, who seemed on his way to his first complete game, was shelled out in the Cubs' ninth when the cellar occupants got half of their six hits. Andy Pafko, Mickey Owen and Pinch Hitter Frank Baumholtz singled to fill the bases with only one out.

Erv Palica came in and Bob Scheffing, another pinch hitter, drove the first pitch on a line which Jackie Robinson caught with a short leap, and flipped to Peewee Reese to double Gene Mauch, who was running for Owen.

Schmitz, a long time Dodger nemesis, held the Brooks to four hits in the opener. It gave the southpaw the distinction of winning all four Chicago's victories over Brooklyn.

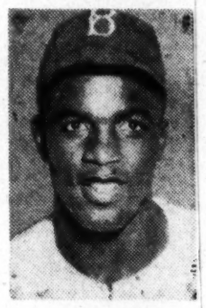
Jackie Tells Own Story

Robinson Arrested, Court-Martialed

By JACKIE ROBINSON
(As Told to ED REID)

IMPRESSED with what they considered to be an honest approach, the men really threw themselves into their work. During maneuvers I was in constant communication with the sergeant I had placed in command. I had a two-way radio in my tank and we always talked things over. He did a wonderful job of explaining things to me and I learned as I went along.

We got along splendidly and everyone worked as a team. Finally, one day, I was called to the quarters of my chief, Colonel Bates.



Robinson

I did not know what was coming, so you could have knocked me down with a feather when he said:

"Robinson, I want to commend you and your outfit on your work down here. You have the best record of all the outfits at the camp and I am singling you out for special mention."

Well, I didn't know what to say. I had gotten to first base on an error and managed to steal all the way home. I decided to tell him the truth.

I DON'T know who was more surprised, I, who had never expected a word of praise for an officer transferred from a horse outfit to a mechanized group, or he, when he heard how I had placed the sergeant in charge.

"Robinson," he finally said, "I don't care how you accomplished what you did, but the fact of the matter is that you still have the best outfit of all down here. That's all that counts. You have found a way to make your outfit tops and that's all I ask."

I left that interview as happy as I had ever been in my life. Colonel Bates was a white man all right, both ways.

Shortly afterwards he asked me to go overseas with him as his morale officer. I told him I would think it over.

Let me explain that I had a chipped bone in my ankle and was on limited duty. I did not have to go overseas if I did not want to go. The Army asked me to sign waivers relieving them of any responsibility in the event of injuries that might occur to me overseas because of the bad ankle. Signing the waiver would cut out a lot of benefits that would normally come to a soldier on duty overseas and I did not know whether I should sign it or not.

I remember that I had not really made up my mind about going when something happened that almost changed the entire course of my life.

I was at the camp hospital where my ankle was undergoing treatment. I was not bedridden and decided to drop down to the officers' quarters at the camp and see the fellows. I got there and found the place empty, so I decided to return to the hospital.

I ran into one of the Negro officers' wives at the club and

New York 3 Games in Front; Mize Hits Homer

Cleveland, Aug. 25 (AP).—With Johnny Mize and Gene Woodling slapping home runs off Bob Feller, the New York Yankees tonight defeated the tottering Cleveland Indians, 6 to 3. The victory shoved Cleveland to six games behind league-leading New York.

Mize showed the Yankees and the 63,522 gloomy fans they made a good move in buying him from the New York Giants. Playing in the American League for the second time, he socked his first Yankee home run over the fence in right field and scored behind Tommy Henrich.

In the same frame, the second inning, the Indians marked up one run, and in the next inning Feller himself tagged Ed Lopat for a homer over the fence in left. It was the first one Feller had hit in eight years.

But the Yankees added another mark in the fourth on Lopat's single that scored Bobby Brown from second. Woodling's fifth homer into the leftfield stands, came in the seventh.

Chisox Drop Bosox 3 Games Off Pace

Chicago, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox pushed the second place Boston Red Sox three full games behind New York's first place Yankees with an 8-3 victory before 24,018 persons here tonight.

Maurice McDermott, Boston's starting pitcher, retired after five wide throws before Walt Masterson suffered his sixth loss.

Trucks' Hit In 9th Edges Nats, 2-1

Detroit, Aug. 25.—Hoot Evers' bad hopping ninth-inning grounder which hit Eddie Yost in the eye paved the way for the Detroit Tigers to nose out the Nats, 2-1, here tonight.

Big Virgil Trucks scored his fifteenth victory against 10 losses by singling Evers across with the winning run after Lloyd Hittle had walked Bob Swift to get at the Tiger pitcher.

Trucks gave up only four hits, one of them Eddie Stewart's eighth homer of the season, and the Nats' only run. Hittle gave up eight hits, three of them by Trucks, and dropped his fourth decision against three wins.

Yost was taken out of the game after being hit by Evers' leadoff hit in the ninth and was replaced at third base by Mark Christman.

The Nats were seeking their third straight victory on their western invasion after taking two straight from Cleveland. Hittle was after his fourth win. He has lost three. Trucks took the mound with a 14-10 record.

After going hitless in the first inning, the Tigers got to Hittle for a run in the second. Hoot Evers walked, took third on Connie Berry's single, and scored on Bob Swift's fly ball to Buddy Lewis.

In their first three innings, the Nats were retired with only one hit, an infield single by Gil Coan in the first. Coan was thrown out stealing.

Eddie Stewart tied the score after two were out in the top of the fourth when he clipped Trucks for his eighth home run of the year, a drive into the rightfield lower deck.

Then Hittle and Trucks settled down to a pitching duel, backed up by some fine defensive play.

After going down one-two-three in the eighth, the Tigers sewed up the game in the ninth.

Evers' sharp grounder took a bad hop and hit Yost under his right eye. Evers getting a single and Yost retiring in favor of Mark Christman. Berry sacrificed Evers to second, and Swift was passed intentionally to get at Trucks.

Rams Rule 7-Point Favorite To Defeat Redskins Tonight

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Occidental College, Calif., Aug. 25.—Whether the Washington Redskins have wasted three weeks, $40,000 in training camp expenses and several-million-word buildup will be partially decided tomorrow night.

That's when the 1949 entry from the Nation's Capital in the National Football League plays its first game, the fifth annual preseason clash with the Los Angeles Rams for the benefit of Los Angeles Times Charities, Inc.

More than 60,000, and perhaps as many as 80,000 fans will move into hugh Memorial Coliseum for the first outing of both teams. The weather forecast is for a cool evening and a dry field, but game predictions are more on the torrid side.

This will be, according to the experts, a game which might make or break the Rams in their battle for patronage with the rival Los Angeles Dons, of the All-America Conference. In this clash the Rams, despite their lacing of the Redskins in Washington late last season, will be out to avenge a 21-10 beating they suffered in the fourth renewal of the Coliseum classic last year.

For the Redskins tomorrow's tiff, in which odds-makers expect them to lose by seven points, is mainly a test of their new head coach and 13 rookies. Morale for the whole season may hinge on the outcome.

It's Billick Whelchel's first game appearance as a professional football coach. It's the first time he's led any sort of major team into action since 1943, when he headed Naval Academy forces. Whelchel will be in charge of a team playing a system, the T-formation, he has never coached before.

Across the field on the Rams bench will be Clark Shaughnessy, a veteran of 30 years of continuous coaching, most of it as a T-mentor. He will know every Redskin play almost before it comes off for the simple reason that it was he who installed it during five years as the Skins' advisory coach.

Just as in 12 previous seasons, most of the Tribe's hope clusters around Slingin' Sammy Baugh and his aging but deadly passing arm. The nimble Texas rancher can boast of 25 seasoned players behind him but it's to the 13 freshmen on the squad that he looks to make the '49 team a really good one.

Eddie Yost Hit Under Eye By Batted Ball

Detroit, Aug. 25.—Eddie Yost, Nats third baseman, was hit under the right eye by a ball batted by Hoot Evers and had to be taken to Ford Hospital.

Manager Joe Kuhel said Yost would miss the rest of the Tigers series, which ends Saturday, and probably longer. Yost suffered a badly sprained leg in June and missed five weeks of the season.

Marx Beaten By Baltimore In Series, 2-1

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 25.—The Marx Jewelers of Washington, D. C., lost their first game in the All-American Amateur Baseball Tournament, bowing 2-1 to Baltimore here tonight.

Washington scored its only run when Dale Summerbell stole home. Baltimore scored its wining run when Al Neville singled and Fred Ravadge tripled.

Webb Shoots Perfect '100', Wins $4000

TALK about making a hobby pay off.

When he was knee high to a grasshopper around his hometown of Roanoke, Va., Ohmer W. Webb hunted deer and pheasant just for fun.

Yesterday, Webb, who now lives here at 7801 Walker Mill Drive, aimed his Ithaca 12 gauge at 100 birds in the Vandalia, Ohio, preliminary handicap trapshoot. He hit 'em all, and carted off more than $4000 first prize money.

It was only the fourth perfect score in 50 years of firing in the preliminary. Tomorrow, the 41-year-old Webb shoots against 1700 marksmen from all over the Nation in the Grand American, top trapshooting event of the year.

THIS was Webb's second crack at the preliminary title. Last year he shot 97 targets out of 100 and won $350. But that was only his first year at trapshooting. He had to turn to trapshooting when his truck contracting business kept him from going down to Roanoke to hunt like he used to.

Webb is training his family to be good shots, too. Fourteen-year-old Ohmer, jr., accompanied his dad to the preliminary, and competed, but he finished out of the money. Mrs. Webb stayed home with the two youngest children, both girls, but she's won her share of laurels, too. She's the Maryland women's champion.

Webb got his perfect score at 19 yards. He barely nosed out Roger Dell, 51-year-old Fergus Falls (Minn.) attorney, by a single target. Dell fired from 20 yards. A field of 1518 participated.

Reds Trim Braves in 10th, 4 to 3

Boston, Aug. 25 (AP).—Lefty Ken Raffensberger's double and Lloyd Merriman's three-base drive to right-center field in the tenth inning tonight gave the Cincinnati Reds a 4-3 victory over the Boston Braves.

During the eighth, Tribesman Tommy Holmes tried to break the 3-3 tie by stealing home and was ousted, for the first time in his eight-year major league career, for protesting Umpire Lon Warneke's unfavorable decision.

Miss Prim Wins First Since Last Winter at Bel Air

Shackleton Nips Foe's Nose, Then Places in Saratoga Cup

Saratoga Springs, N. Y. Aug. 25 (AP).—Doubtless 2nd won his first race in this country as he led from end to end in the ancient Saratoga Cup here this afternoon. The Argentina-bred black horse, for which Greentree Stable paid $109,000 in 1947, turned back seven other marathon runners with decisiveness in the exhausting fixture if one mile and six furlongs.

Belair Stud's incorrigible Shackleton, breaking from outside the gate, was second after "savaging" Mrs. R. L. Gerry's Young Peter during the race, trailing the winner by four lengths. H. W. Fincher's Quemadito, a Chilian-bred, closed well to take third, while Foxcatcher Farms' Rose Beam was a faltering fourth. Young Peter, after being jostled by Shackleton, gave up the chase and finished seventh.

Doubtless 2nd, making his his eleventh start in this country in two years, earned $11,650 and increased his total to $15,300 since leaving his homeland. He paid $19.20 straight and rolled over the long distance in 2:57 2/5, two and two-fifth second slower than the track record. Aboard him was Ted Atkinson, who completed a double, and moved two winners ahead of Gordon Glisson for the riding honors of the meeting.

Shackleton, as usual, refused to break from the stall gate. He backed out of it three times and then squatted in it. This was the cue for starter George Cassidy to place him outside the gate and thus prevent a recurrence of the near-riot at Jamaica, where he refused to leave with the others in the Saranac Handicap.

He broke running, in stride, and was rated back of the flying Doubtless 2nd. Going to the clubhouse turn the first time, however, Shackleton reached over and nipped Young Peter savagely, inflicting a deep cut on his nose. Then he settled down somewhat and came on to finish closest to the Greentree representative. The stewards debated whether or not to disqualify Shackleton for bothering Young Peter and, after a delay of about five minutes, decided to confirm his placing.

A crowd of 14,043 jammed the course, including John Hay Whitney and his sister, Mrs. Charles Shipman Rayson, owners of Greentree Stable, who were presented with the Saratoga Cup by President Skiddy Von Stade in the winner's enclosure.

3 Weekend Races Draw D. C. Sailors

By Happy Walker

IT WILL be all hands to the starting line, as Washington's sailing clans gather at nearby regattas to participate in sailing's busiest weekend, starting today and ending late Sunday.

The National Thistle Championships got the jump on the many scheduled events by staging the first of three days racing yesterday at the Baltimore Yacht Club, the first Thistle championships to hit the East. Little known until National Champion Gordon (Sandy) Douglas of Painesville, Ohio, appeared in the bay area last year, this class has suddenly sprung into wide popularity.

On hand to carry the Washington colors, among some 50 top ranking sailors from as far west as Chicago and as far south as New Orleans, will be Dr. Walter Lawson, fleet leader; Frank Greenman, Frank Marquardt, Prentice Eddrington, George Farrell, Bob Wilson and Carlton Skinner. Up from the West River Fleet will be Bill Heintz, P. C. R. sailing chairman; Walter Windson and Fred Taylor.

OF EQUAL importance in the area is the National Penguin Class races slated for today and Saturday at the Annapolis Yacht Club. Some 25 divisional Penguin championship holders will be on hand as well as our own Joe Krafft, Old Dominion Boat Club; Len Penso, Columbia Yacht Club and Writ Gill, Commodore of Columbia.

The scheduled five races will determine the National Championship with Runyon Colie, Mantoloking (N. J.) Yacht Club, defending his laurels. Paul Tomolin, Sally Blessing and Bob Browning, all Potomac River Sailing Association standouts will be at committee posts.

Drawing the largest entry list of Washingtonians will be the Indian Landing Boat Club's regatta Saturday and Sunday near Annapolis. There will be classes in Chesapeake 20's, Indian Landing 20's, Hamptons, Severn One Designs, Chesapeake 16's, Penguins, Moths and Dolphins.

Highlight of this two-day racing festival will be the Eastern Division National One Design class. It's a foregone conclusion that most of our Washington sailing lads will make the short haul to compete on the Millersville (Md.) highly touted sailing course.

PLANS for the opening President's Cup Regatta aquatic sports event to be held Sunday, September 4, are progressing satisfactorily according to Bill Havens, canoe race chairman. Havens revealed that some 70 to 75 Canadian canoe notables from the Exello Boat Club, Quebec; Island Canoe Club, Toronto; Cartiearsville Canoe Club, Montreal, and other Canadian clubs are entered for the Labor Day weekend canoe races. Several Olympic stars are also entered.

Additional canoe clubs slated to send crews are the Yonkers, the Pendleton, the Sebago, and the Philadelphia from the down-Eastern States.

According to rowing chairman, George A. Herman, registrations so far have been received from 15 of the outstanding shell racing clubs in the East including Penn, Vespers, Malta, Fairmont, Crescent, Undine and Bachelors Barge, all from the Philadelphia area.

The Detroit Boat Club, the New York A. C., the New Rochelle B. C. and St. Andrews School, Wilmington, Del., will round out the crews expected to put on an exciting rowing regatta on Labor Day.

Mare Beats Duke Aumar In Stretch

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bel Air, Md., Aug. 25.—Miss Prime, queen of the minor tracks last year, came back to the races today in regal style. The 5-year-old mare, making her first start since she went lame at Sunshine Park, Fla., last winter, resumed her winning ways.

Carrying the colors of J. N. Barnes, Miss Prime had stretch punch that carried her to a daylight verdict in lthe Churchill Purse, featuring the Thursday program.

Arthur Rogan's Duke Aumar, the pacemaker most of the way, was second with Mrs. L. M. Carver's Mary Ann third in the field of seven.

Miss Prime, winner at a variety of distances during her career, went 5 furlongs today and turned in the fastest time of the meeting, being clocked in .59 2-5. With her legs a question mark, those who backed her collected at the rate of $6.40 for the usual deuce.

Jockey Stanley Austin rode Miss Prime and steadied her within striking distance of Duke Aumar's pace in the early stages. When straightened in the stretch, the mare was asked for speed and she responded by disposing of the leader and won going away.

The victory was the second of the season in five starts for Miss Prime, who had her biggest year in 1948 when she won 14 of 22 starts, was in the money in 21 races and amassed earnings of $13,225 while shooting for minor purses.

Miss Prime was trained and saddled by Mrs. George A. Saportas, jr., who also accounted for the winner of the day's secondary purse, the fifth event. She sent W. G. Myers' Dividandy into action and the filly turned back six other 3-year-olds while in the role of a $2.80 favorite.

Apprentice Dick Lawless rode Dividandy the six and a half furlongs in 1.20 3/5 over a fast track. Mrs. W. I. Lyttle's Conspire was second and B. H. Murphy, jr's Zasta was third.

In contrast to yesterday's long-shot parade, well-played horses won the majority of races today and the daily double paid $11.80 on the 8-10 combination of Swim Girl and Welaunie.

Manuel's In the Money

Ortiz Plans Retirement After Cooper Bout Here and 4-Month Campaign in Europe

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

HE'S all wet, the philosopher who said that all fighters wind up punchy and penniless.

Take Manuel Ortiz, world's bantamweight champion, for example. Ortiz is here to box Washington's Jimmy Cooper in a 10-round nontitle bout at Griffith Stadium Monday night.

Ortiz is 33 years old, a ring veteran of 12 years. He has a few minor lumps on his face, but his eyes are clear and his speech crisp. He's not punchy.

He's going to Europe in two weeks. He'll be there for about four months, and then he's coming back to retire, still holding the title, of course.

Retire in poverty?

NOT if you call his 100-acre farm near El Centro, Calif., poverty. Or the six houses he owns there, or the beer hall or the billiard parlor.

"I feel pretty good, for my age, that is. I must be slowing down a little, but I can still hit. But I don't want to go on fighting forever," he says.

"I've been married for 12 years and have three daughters. Next year there'll be a boy, too, I hope. I want them all to be proud of me, not ashamed."

ORTIZ hasn't always been so well off. He had to quit high school in El Centro when he was 15 to go to work on a farm, like many of the Mexican immigrants on the West Coast. He started boxing in 1937 as a Golden Gloves flyweight, and wound up winning the title in Boston. His older brother, Trini, went to the featherweight finals before losing.

Ortiz took the bantamweight title from Lou Salica in 1942, lost it early in 1947 on a decision to Harold Dade, regained it on a decision eight weeks later and has held it ever since. He's defended his title 19 times, more than any other champ with the exception of Joe Louis.

IN HIS most recent title defense, six weeks ago in Mexico City, where he's a national hero although he was born in El Centro, he stopped No. 1 challenger Nemo Vallero in seven rounds. His manager is Johnny Rogers, who once piloted former lightheavyweight champ John Henry Lewis.

Monday's fight is only his third in the East, but otherwise, he's been a real world champion. He's defended his title in Manila, Honolulu and Chicago. His next fight is in England, and he may box in France before he retires.

Ortiz will work out today at 1:30 p. m. at Turner's Arena and Cooper will spar at 2:30.

Bill Bennings:

At Bel Air:

Dear Folks — Maryland lags far behind the times when it fails to install a consolation daily double pay-off. Illinois, New England, New Jersey and West Virginia tracks are among those who pay a profit to those who have the first winner when their second-race horse is scratched. Cropped up here on the Thursday program. After Swim Girl won the first, Good Bunting, in the second, was found lame and was withdrawn by order of the stewards. Under the present Maryland rules, those holding the Swim Girl-Good Bunting tickets received only their original $2 back. Like the weather, everybody talks about putting in the consolation pay-off in Maryland, but nobody does anything about it. How about some action, men?—BILL.

Peggy Kirk, Polly Riley Play in Western Semifinals

Chicago, Aug. 25 (AP).—Peg Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, and Polly Riley, 1948 Curtis Cup star from Fort Worth, Tex., continue their friendly golf rivalry tomorrow in the semifinals of the Women's Western Amateur Tournament.

The two veterans of the tourney circuit will meet for the fifth competitive time. Both breezed through the quarterfinals today.

Miss Kirk eliminated Dot Ellis of Indianapolis, 8-7 in the most lopsided match of the meet thus far. They halved the first, third and fifth holes and Miss Kirk won the rest, being only two over Westmoreland's 76 standard for the 11 holes needed.

The other semifinal bout sends the Philadelphia champion, Helen Sigel, against Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich. Miss Wall was a western amateur semifinalist in 1947 and 1942 and a runner-up in 1941 and 1943. Miss Sigel, 1948 National runner-up, is making her first bid for the western crown.

The 29-year-old Miss Sigel advanced with a 3—1 victory over Mrs. D. G. Copping of San Mateo, Calif. She dropped a 10-foot birdie 2 putt on the 150-yard 17th to close the match, being even par for the distance.

Miss Wall, two down after five holes, rallied to whip 20-year-old Alice Bauer of Los Angeles, 5—4. Miss Wall made the turn in 40 for a 1-up edge as Alice carded 42. Then she took the 11th, 12th, 13th and 14th holes by exploding three pars and a birdie.

Phillies Win Second to Split With Pirates

Woodcock Opens Drills for Savold

Manchester, England, Aug. 25 (AP).—Bruce Woodcock started training today for his fight with Lee Savold of Paterson, N. J., which is for the British version of the world's heavyweight championship.

Woodcock has been taking it easy since he was injured in an automobile accident earlier this month that forced postponement of his scheduled September 6 fight with Savold.

Schroeder Vs. Sidwell In Opener

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Australia's Davis Cup stock dropped several points today when the visitors named Billy Sidwell—instead of John Bromwich—to play two of the four singles matches against the United States in the challenge round starting tomorrow at Forest Hills.

Sidwell, in fact, was drawn to meet the American No. 1 Ted Schroeder, in the opening match which means that the challengers almost certainly will be down 1-0 by mid-afternoon. Ted blasted the small Aussie 6—2, 6—1, in last year's challenge round.

Tomorrow's second tilt will bring together the two young national champions, Pancho Gonzales for the United States and Frank Sedgman from Australia. Gonzales, back in fighting trim, will be favored to win it, though possibly after a close and exciting skirmish.

Australia will not name her doubles combination until after the first two singles have been played. Bromwich, a doubles giant for more than 10 years, will team either with Sidwell or Sedgman, probably the latter. Billy Talbert and Gardnar Mulloy, who aided in last year's 5-0 rout of the Aussies, will try it again for our side on Saturday.

Right up to the time the names were drawn from the silver cup today by C. V. Kellway, the Australian Consul General, the American players felt they would be facing Bromwich, rather than Sidwell, in the singles. They consider the ambidextrous veteran a dangerous man still in any big match he wants to win.

The Australians, however, were said to have decided that "Brom," at 30, no longer has the stamina to play both the singles and doubles in hot weather such as is promised for the next three days.

Police Oust Marines, 5-4

The D. C. Police Department ousted the Marine Corps Institute from the double elimination City Unlimited Sandlot Championship Tournament, 5-4, on the South Ellipse yesterday when Bill Shelton's ninth-inning single drove in Steve Beach with the winning run.

M. C. I.'s elimination left only unbeaten Northeast Body Works and once beaten Heurich Brewers and Police Department in the tourney. Heurich and Police have it out at 4:30 p. m. today on the South Ellipse for the right to meet Northeast on Monday.

Grid Future For Virginia Highs Bright

With new coaches, new players and new outlooks, George Washington High of Alexandria and Washington-Lee of Arlington yesterday opened football practice for their nine-game slates and their traditional Thanksgiving Day classic.

R. H. (Phes) Woodson from Woodrow Wilson High of Portsmouth, Va., and Kenny Batson, promoted from assistant coach, are at the helm at GW and W-L for the first time. Seventy-five prospects were on hand at GW and 110 at W-L.

There'll be new faces in the lineups of both teams, GW having lost its four regular backs of last year, and W-L having lost its ends and center.

Buddy Everett Reports

All the way from Japan comes reinforcement for G. W.'s backfield. He is 175-pound Buddy Everett, who was with his soldier father in the Far East. Woodson reports that Buddy is fast and might be a good kicker.

Two lads who started in the Washington high schools last year are also expected to help Woodson. They are Tommy Holmes, fleet-footed back, who moved over from Anacostia, and Guard Bob Loratto, a guard from Eastern.

G. W. has 11 lettermen back from last year's team which won 8, lost 1, and tied 1. Among them are Earl Dixon, 225-pound tackle, and Ralph Phillips, 200-pound center, both All-Virginia selections in 1948.

Eberht Good Passer

At W-L, the surprise package is Sam Eberht, 190 pound, 6 foot, 2 inch junior, who moved to Arlington from Greensboro, N. C., just last week. He was a regular at Greensboro High last year, and in yesterday's drill showed W-L the best passing since Billy Hayes graduated three years ago to make the North Carolina University's varsity his first year.

Eberht's punting is also making Coach Batson's eyes pop. Sam is booting 'em up to 65 yards.

W-L has 14 lettermen back from last year's team which won four out of nine games. Veteran backs are Bruce Hillenbrand and Jack Gilfillen, the two top ballcarriers, and Eppie Riddle, John Herrlein, Mack Byrd, sprinter, and Pete McCormick.

D. C. Sailor Takes 1st in Title Event

Baltimore, Aug. 25 (AP)—Frank Marquardt of the Columbia Yacht Club, Washington, D. C., scored an upset today by winning the first of four races to decide the National Thistle sailing championship.

Marquardt's White Shadow defeated Paukie, sailed by defending champion of the Vermillion Yacht Club, Ohio, by 1 minute and 7 seconds.

Highlander, skippered by William Heintz of the West River (Md.) Yacht Club, finished third and Dr. Walter Lawson's Jolly Scot from the Columbia Yacht Club took fourth.

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

GENIE and David, Tuesday night singer and dancer at Michel's, agree that the steps of dances (there are only five basic ones, David contends) and the subjects of songs are the same the world over.

Genie

But the variations come from flavor and style, and knowing the background makes other peoples seem alive to us centuries later. Minuets and pavannes, foreign to our impulses, were open mincing, dances due to necessity—hoop skirts were in vogue then.

Genie, with her guitar, then takes over and sings in any of 10 languages. Pretty young wife of a Marine major, she is just as fond of cooking the dishes of various countries as singing their songs. Old German was taught her by her grandmother, Mexican dishes and songs of the peons she learned while visiting her sister in Mexico. A French teacher and an Italian family friend, supplied other folk songs.

An asset of traditional dances is the village spirit of conviviality. In community dances such as the Greek Syrto, there are no partners, there is never anyone sitting it out.

There is no other capital in the world, Genie and David feel, where there is so much time and peace of mind to delve into the folklore possibilities brought by other countries.

For instance, there are Yugoslavs here who did not even know the dances of other parts of their own countries, which differ according to region. But recently they all went on a Sunday picnic, and taught each other their steps. Next they will be exchanging them with other nationalities that they meet around Washington—perhaps in Michel's.

Not long ago a Greek general stopped in at Michel's and found one of his native dances being performed. He told Michel it was the first taste of American hospitality he had had; not only that we attached importance to their dances, but did them properly!

Fireman Promoted To Sergeant by Commissioners

Fire Department Pvt. Caesar Young, 53, messenger in the office of Commissioner John Russell Young, was yesterday promoted by the Commissioners to the rank of sergeant, effective Thursday, at a salary of $4228 a year.

Young, who has been in the Fire Department since 1919, received the promotion on the recommendation of Fire Chief J. A. Mayhew. The chief wrote that Young showed "exceptional judgment" and "since his assignment" to the commissioner's office "has shown a broad knowledge of departmental practice and procedure, tact and courtesy."

The fireman has received a ribbon decoration for bravery and the thanks of the Fire Department for "exceptional judgment." Young was praised for averting a possible panic and calming a Howard Theater audience on July 29, 1945.

Diplomas Given To Seminarians By Adventists

Six Greater Washington residents were among 32 persons to receive master's degrees in the ninth graduating class of the Seventh Day Adventist Theological Seminary, Takoma Park, Md., last night.

Elder Francis D. Nichol, editor of the church paper, Review and Herald, gave the commencement address at the Adventist Takoma Park Church, Carroll and Willow aves. Dr. D. E. Rebok, seminary president, conferred the degrees.

Among those receiving the master of arts degree were Van O. Blair and Gerald E. Mosier, both of Washington; Maybelle E. Vandermark, Walter Aurelius Ralls, jr., and Horace John Shaw of Takoma Park. William H. Wineland of Takoma Park, received a master of arts degree in religion.

3 Held in Bond For Violations Of Gaming Laws

Roy Johnson, 48, of 618 O st. nw., arrested last Monday at 1519 Marion st. nw., was freed under $1500 bond. He was charged with operating a lottery and setting up a gaming table.

Held under $500 and $300 bonds, respectively, on charges of operating a lottery and possesion of numbers slips, were Mrs. Florence de Vorgna, 41, of 5701 Dix st. ne., and William Henry Jackson, 29, of 314 59th st. ne. They were arrested yesterday at a market operated by Mrs. Vorgna at the Dix st. address after an undercover man made some plays.

City Auto Tag Check Started In Alexandria

Alexandria police yesterday announced they have started a crackdown on city residents who have not bought city auto tags.

Police Chief Edgar Sims said a detail of four men has been assigned exclusively to the night job of ticketing all tagless cars parked in front of residences.

Eighty tickets were handed out Wednesday night, Sims said, and the work will continue until the entire city has been covered.

The police crackdown followed a complaint by City Councilman Marshall J. Beverley Tuesday that too many persons are getting away with flouting the city auto tax ordinance.

Sims said all persons claiming out-of-State residence will be asked to furnish proof they are paying taxes in another State and are exempt from local taxation. Maximum penalty for violating the law is a $300 fine, a three-month jail sentence, or both.

Pharmacy Board President Given Award of Merit

The city's highest civilian award, a certificate of merit, was presented to Dr. Augustus C. Taylor, retiring president of the District Board of Pharmacy, yesterday in recognition of his 45 years service on the board.

Commissioner Guy Mason thanked Dr. Taylor for his "unselfish devotion" to the city board since its creation.

Dr. Taylor, who lives at 1733 Upshur st. nw., helped draft the Pure Food and Drug Act and organize the District Pharmaceutical Association. The 80-year-old pharmacist will be replaced on the board by John E. Donaldson.

Reception Marks Brazil Army Day At the Embassy

A reception was held yesterday at the residence of the Brazilian military attache, Brig. Gen. Edgar do Amaral, and Mme. Amaral in honor of Brazil's Army Day.

Earlier in the day, General Amaral bestowed the Order of Military Merit on three Brazilians: Col. Antonio Bastos, chief of the Brazilian Military Commission; Lieut. Col. Augusto Fragoso, assistant military attache at the embassy, and Lieut. Col. Pires de Castro, assistant chief of the military commission.

JACOB RECK,
Attorney for Plaintiff,
1346 F Street N.W.,
Washington 4, D. C.

IN THE MUNICIPAL COURT FOR the District of Columbia. Jacob Reck, plaintiff, vs. Pauline A. Archer, defendant. Civil Action No. A-27738. Order of publication in attachment (attachment before judgment). The object of this suit is to recover judgment against the defendant in the sum of $582.04, plus interest from July 18, 1949, and costs and to have judgment of condemnation of certain property of the defendant levied on under an attachment issued in this suit to satisfy the plaintiff's claim. It is, therefore, this 15th day of August, 1949, ordered that the defendant appear in this Court on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, after the day of the first publication of this order; otherwise the cause will be proceeded with as in case of default. Provided, a copy of this order be published once a week for three successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post before said day. (Signed.) R. B. KEECH, Judge. Attest: (Seal.) HARRY M. HULL, Clerk. By HELEN F. STRAUSS, Deputy Clerk.

Present Sets to Get Television in Color

Radio Corporation of America said yesterday it has perfected a color television system which will not render present receivers obsolete.

RCA, of which National Broadcasting Co. is an affiliate, made its announcement in a statement filed with the Federal Communications Commission.

The company said with its system, existing black and white television transmitters will be able to send in color on present bands with a small addition to present studio equipment.

The color transmission, said RCA, may be picked up in color on existing receiving sets with the addition of a converter. Or, it added, the same color transmissions may be picked up in black and white on existing sets without any adjustments.

RCA said a television transmitter, using its system, can shift from black and white to color and back at will without the user of an existing set being aware of any technical change.

RCA said it proposes to demonstrate the system in Washington next month, using NBC station WNBW, for the FCC television hearings beginning September 26.

Columbia Broadcasting System has announced it has made an adapter which will enable present sets to pick up its method of broadcasts in color. Columbia uses a mechanical scanner.

There have been no accurate estimates as to how much a color set or a color adapter for use on present sets may cost except the cost will be moderate.

F. P. Lockhart Dies; Foreign Service Aide

Frank P. Lockhart, 68, director of the American Foreign Service Association and State Department Foreign Service official for many years, died yesterday in the George Washington Hospital after an illness of about a week.

Mr. Lockhart

Secretary of State Dean Acheson, informed of Mr. Lockhart's death, issued a statement praising his "long and distinguished career" and added that "his loss will be mourned by former colleagues and friends in all parts of the world."

Mr. Lockhart spent 17 years in the Far East, from 1925 to 1942. He was consul general in Shanghai in 1941 when the Japanese took the city, and was interned until the following year when he was repatriated and returned to the United States on the exchange ship Gripsholm.

While on consular duty at Peiping in 1937, he was present when the Japanese crossed the border into North China over the Marco Polo Bridge.

At Hankow in 1926

He was consul general at Hankow in 1926 during the crucial period of Chiang Kai-shek's punitive expedition against the war lords, which marked the Nationalist leader's ascendancy to power.

Upon his return to the United States he was Chief of the Office of Philippine Affairs until his retirement in 1946.

Following his retirement from the Foreign Service, Mr. Lockhart became director of the American Foreign Service Association and served as business manager of the American Foreign Service Journal. He held these posts at the time of his death.

Mr. Lockhart was born in Pittsburg, Tex., and studied at Grayson College, Whitewright, Tex. He married the former Rudy Hess in 1904. Mrs. Lockhart died three years ago. He owned an interest in the Pittsburg Gazette for many years.

Secretary To Sheppard

Mr. Lockhart came to Washington in 1902 as private secretary to the late Senator Morris Sheppard, who then was serving in the House of Representatives. In 1914 he was appointed assistant chief of the Division of Far Eastern Affairs in the State Department. He was advanced to chief in 1925 and soon after entered the Foreign Service.

Surviving are a son, Frank P. Lockhart, jr., with whom he lived at 4600 Yuma st. nw., an official in the Division of Far Eastern Affairs; a daughter, Mrs. Robert E. Cofer, jr., Portsmouth, Va.; a brother, Burt Lockhart, Pittsburg, Tex., and a grandson, Robert E. Cofer, III.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 11 a. m. at Gawler's funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Burial will be in Pittsburg, Tex.

Mrs. Ujlaki, Pastor's Wife, Is Dead at 57

Mrs. Julia Ujlaki, 57, wife of Dr. Francis Ujlaki, president of the Hungarian Reformed Federation of America, died yesterday at her home, 5455 Broad Branch rd. nw., after a long illness.

A native of Hungary, she came to the United States in 1908 and first lived in Cleveland. After moving to Toledo, she became active in the work of the Hungarian Evangelical and Reformed Church, of which Dr. Ujlaki was pastor. While there she became president of the National Hungarian Women's Guild.

Mrs. Ujlaki moved to Washington with her husband about five years ago.

The body is at the Pumphrey funeral home, 7557 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda. Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. Saturday at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, with Dr. Stephen Szabo of Cleveland, a son-in-law of Mrs. Ujlaki, officiating. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Besides her husband, she is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Paul Lowell of Detroit; Mrs. Stephen Szabo of Cleveland, and Miss Madge Ujlaki of Washington.

Charles T. Ferry

Charles T. Ferry, 64, former organist at Washington churches, died of a heart attack this week at his home in Los Angeles, Calif.

A native of Eureka, Ill., Mr. Ferry was educated at Augustana College in Rock Island, Ill., and studied for a time in Paris. He was the composer of two operas, and of many sonatas, oratorios and other sacred music. He has lived in Los Angeles for the past 16 years.

His only close survivor is his sister, Mrs. Josephine F. Morton, 204 Ridge dr., Brookmont, Md. The funeral was held in Los Angeles yesterday.

Garden Hose Worms Way Into Ground

Detroit, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—A stubborn garden hose that burrowed all by itself down into a back yard was dug up today after policemen quit trying to pull it from the ground.

The officers spaded down 8 feet before they could yank up the disappearing nozzle and the hose. They looked around for the force which drew it into the ground but couldn't spot even a gremlin.

The hose started burrowing its way into the earth yesterday afternoon while 17-year- old John Sanders was washing the family car. John had laid down the 25-foot hose, with the water still running, to polish a bit. When he turned around it was worming its way into the earth.

Bewildered, he called his father, John sr., who weighs 250 pounds, joined the tug-of-war, but the hose kept going down. Mrs. Sanders joined in. The hose continued its subterranean tour.

The Sanders tied it to the car and pulled. A piece of the hose broke off, but it still wiggled slowly into the earth.

Water Department technicians probed the ground around the hose—the only spot in the Sanders' yard where grass would not grow—for a possible broken water main that could pull the hose down. They didn't find anything.

Baffled, police tied the hose to the Sanders car. During the night, the hose pulled the car about a foot.

Some Midwest Heat Due With High About 85

It's almost time to talk about the weather again.

The temperature is perking up around 90 in the Midwest and the Weather Bureau expects some of the heat to sift through to Washington by the time the weekend rolls around.

In moving in, however, the hot air will be modified and blended with the cool air in this area at present, and the forecaster says it won't get much over 85 around Washington.

Until then, however, the weather will be balmy, with that fine Canadian air mass continuing to waft cool breezes in from the north. Today's high should be near 80, with lots of sunlight. It was expected to get down to 62 early this morning.

LAKE JACKSON

Washington's only fresh-water lake—situated in virgin forest in the foothills of the Blue Ridge—31 miles from the Capitol. It is a sensibly restricted lodge colony. It is free from mosquitoes and nettles. The healthful, bracing air and the quiet restfulness of its 500 wooded acres make Lake Jackson the perfect place to get away from the hot, crowded city. Excellent swimming, fishing and boating for property owners only. Incomparably enchanting and desirable. Established 21 years.
Lodge sites are from $300 up. Lodge built to your specifications. Lodges from $3,500 up. Terms.

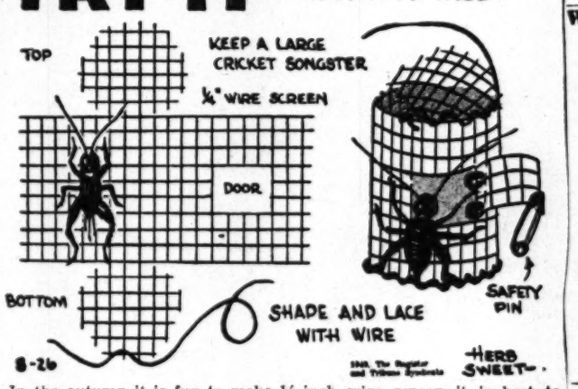
TRY IT — COLLECT CRICKETS IN A TINY CAGE



In the autumn it is fun to make a small cage and keep a chirping cricket in your room. These musicians sing most of the afternoon and far into the night and are apt to be tempted to sing whenever they hear music.

To observe these little fiddlers close at hand you can easily make a small cage by following the pattern shown. You may cut a paper pattern first if you like, shaping your little round box so that it is about two inches high and one and a half inches across. If you use ¼-inch wire screen it is best to cut it with tin snips. Regular screen wire may be used also. Cut a small door and hinge it in position with wire, and try to catch a shiny black cricket under some boards or sod.

Feed it bits of melon and bread but keep the food fresh. Watch the habits of these merry little insects and then let them go again. Be merry as a cricket!

What's The Verdict?

SINKING BARGE

Q. A small company was persuaded to ship some perishable goods by river barge. The company took the precaution of taking out insurance against "all loss and damage to goods during the voyage by reason of the adventures and perils of the river, beginning from and immediately following loading." After the loading, and while the barge was still in the dock, the barge sprang a leak, admitting a couple of feet of water which damaged the cargo. The insurance company denies liability. Is it liable?

A. The policy states clearly that the coverage begins immediately following loading. Loading had been completed when this damage occurred. But the coverage was not against everything; it was only against "adventures and perils of the river." A barge still at dock, sinking because of something wrong with the barge rather than because of something washed against it by the river, is outside the coverage specified. The insurance company wins. F. L. D.

Always at Night

I love you, darling, in the dawn . . . When life is passing by . . . But most of all I think of you . . . When stars are in the sky . . . When shadows touch the garden wall . . . And moonlight walks the sea . . . And when I draw your lips to mine . . . And hold you close to me . . . Because the night is softer and . . . More magical than day . . . And always there are sweeter words . . . We have a mind to say . . . I want you every hour and . . . Each moment I exist . . . But naturally I love you most . . . When you and I have kissed . . . Because the nearness of yourself . . . Is sweet and dear to me . . . And it will last as long as life . . . And every memory.

BARNABY

Barnaby! Is that you? There in the dark—
Mr. O'Malley!
I finally evaded that officious Ausdauer— But what of our pearls? I heard shooting...
I don't know— And Gus ran away.
They seem to be okay... Here, give your old Fairy Godfather a hand—
Barnaby! Look! In the net— Our PEARLS! All ready strung, just as I planned. Look how they shine in the moonlight—
Gosh!

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, AUGUST 26, 1949

Every Girl Has Chance To Be President, Envoy, Truman Tells Teenagers

By Genevieve Reynolds

THIS country's feminine politicos not only can look forward to the possibility of becoming Ambassador, but they have a chance to be President of the United States as well.

That is what President Truman told delegates of the Girls Nation convention yesterday, speaking from the porch of his office in the administrative wing of the White House. "You not only may be able to be an Ambassador," the Chief Executive said to the 96 girls from every State in the Union, "You might have this terrible job which I have; that is, President of the United States."

"And you might get a chance to live over there in that great white jail, with the balcony and everything."

"It's a lot of fun to contemplate (being President)," President Truman continued. "Most of the time it is a lot of fun to do it, but it means a tremendous amount of hard work. You have got to be willing to work not only eight hours a day but eighteen hours a day, and sometimes 24."

Mr. Truman was asked by Miss Mary Mumford of Howard, S. D., if she might be an Ambassador in five years. "I told her that she might," the President said, ". . . but I couldn't make her any promises because that is a year or two beyond the time when my term will expire."

This chat with the President of the United States was the climax of the week-long convention at American University of the Girls Nation, an auxiliary of the American Legion.

As the girls, all wearing their very best dresses, lined up to meet the President, a wave of confusion rushed over them. They couldn't decide whether or not to wear their gloves while they shook hands with Mr. Truman. Most of them finally took their gloves off.

Greatest Thrill

After Miss Ann Draughon of Auburn, Ala., had met the President she exclaimed, "This is the greatest thrill of my life." And then laughed, "but then, I'm a hick. I'm never going to wash my hands."

As one of the girls shook hands with the President she said, "I've noticed your navy blue tie in the movies, but the one you have on this morning is better looking."

Miss Mary Ellen Casey of Oklahoma, president pro tempore of the Girls Nation Senate, was greeted in the receiving line by Presidential Secretary Charles Ross. He had taught her father, John Casey, at the University of Missouri School of Journalism.

Miss Jo a Rankin, Governor of the Girls Nation in Ohio, and only Negro delegate to the convention, said her biggest thrill since she's been in Washington was meeting the President. But she was also thrilled with being with the girls who are a "wonderful, friendly bunch."

Hear Louis Johnson

Earlier in the day the girls went over to the Pentagon to pay a call on Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, who told them of his great admiration for the American Legion.

"Always when the going was tough in '37-'40, when I was Assistant Secretary of War," he said, "the Legion and its auxiliary stood by. If the resolution of the Legion and its auxiliary had been respected by the American people and carried into effect there would not have been World War II."

"A few years ago when I argued for adequate defense, very few except the Legion stood by."

The Defense Secretary went on to say "you can't leave the world alone because the world won't leave us alone. We want all the friends we can have in foreign nations."

He added that his job while we

You May Be Velvet Clad From Top to Toe

YOU'LL LOVE the touch of velvet in your fall wardrobe. This venerable fabric, as soft and silky as a kitten, is staking a tremendous come-back for the winter of 1949-50. At right you see it in a black dinner dress, cut on slim lines, with interest centered at the low-cut back neckline. A wide bertha is edged with lace. You'll find it in the French Room at Jelleff's. The two 3-year-olds frolicking at center were outfitted in the children's department at Best & Co. Little Miss Muffet wears a coat of all-wool Scotch type plaid with green velvet collar and matching bonnet. Her escort's coat is of blue tweed with navy velvet collar. His tweed hat has a band of the same velvet. There is great elegance in the full-length velvet coat at center right. Made by Hansen Bang, it features wide stand-up labels, flared skirt and small bodice. Matching hat with white feathers is by Florence Reichman. Both are from Pasternak's. Velveteen for the junior miss is shown in the coachman's dress at right, which is found in Jelleff's junior department. Double row of buttons and braid trim are effective details on this party dress for the teen and college crowds

This is the fourth of a series of 10 articles on fall fashion trends.

By Peggy Preston

VELVET and its variations are "veddy, veddy" fashion right for fall. The vogue for this delectable family of fabrics is sweeping the toddler crowd and grandma's concert club with equal aplomb.

There's a bit of it somewhere, it seems, in every fashion item. In fact, if you so fancy, you may be velvet clad from top to toe. Hats, collars, blouses, skirts, jackets, coats, handbags, gloves, shoes—all have the magic touch of velvet, soft and subtly flattering.

Prices waver with the quantity and quality you demand. For the luxury-minded there is rich Couture velvet, with a silk back construction, which comes in beautiful jewel tones. Less expensive variations of the theme may be found in Lyons-type velvets. And for those who like the look of real velvet, but not the price, there are handsome velveteens, almost as flexible and soft as the more exclusive article.

The velvet vogue got off to a rosy start this year when someone decided that it lent a certain air to cotton and shantung. Throughout July and August, women noted for their chic were trying black velvet berets with chambray frocks; green slippers with a beige linen dress; or a wide blue sash with a billowing white organdy.

THE MUTED SHEEN of velvet will be seen in every accessory this year. Handbags, shoes, gloves, belts, flowers for trimming, hats and stoles, are some of the items being made up in dark shades of velvet and velveteen

FROM this demure beginning, velvet has gone on to assume bigger and better roles for fall. Christian Dior, using it extensively in his American collection, gave it an unusual interpretation in a blouse to be worn with a tailored tweed suit. Hattie Carnegie put touches of it on tweed suits and coats. Other designers used it to adorn simple sheer wool, crepe or faille dresses.

Full-length coats of navy blue or black velvet, wool-lined for warmth, are made by medium-priced houses, as well as those in the top-price brackets. The fabric has staged such a successful invasion of the evening gown division that it has replaced last year's favorites such as chiffon, taffeta and faille.

Velveteen, a more sturdy member of the velvet clan, is due to be the darling of the junior miss set, ranking alongside jersey and flannel. For dress-up occasions there are black, brown or blue dresses, prettily detailed with braid, ribbon or buttons.

But it is in the classroom that the velvet idea will make its biggest headway. You'll see it, for instance, in a black, braid-trimmed jacket, over a tartan plaid skirt; in a middy blouse with pleated serge; in a cunning cardigan, worn with white jersey blouse and tweed skirt.

High-sheen corduroys in gay, cheerful colors have been made up into jumpers to be worn with a velveteen jacket. Or, on other occasions, the jackets will be of corduroy, the skirt of dark velveteen.

Velveteen Leggings

NOT to be outdone by their elders, the kindergarten kiddies will be wearing velveteen too. Leggings in solid colors are matched with their little tweed and plaid coats. And, in high-styled circles velveteen ear muffs come attached to junior's winter bowler. Little collars and cuffs of velvet, hat bands and muffs are other velvet touches being applied to the costumes for the small fry.

The prettiest and most feminine shoes in many years are being made of velvet. Often one finds them made completely of this fabric. Sometimes the toe is of suede, or leather, the back of velvet. But it is best to step slowly and carefully here, and let the fabric, not the line of the shoe tell the story. It is at its best in a simple, unadorned opera pump in a soft, muted shade of green or blue.

If you would climb on the velvet bandwagon for fall, you can do so without a great outlay of money. If an all-velvet costume is too expensive, resort to accessories. Wear a velvet hat and stole with a wool dress. Match shoes and handbag with a crepe dinner gown. Or, better still, buy a yard or two and whip up an apron to tie around a basic dress of taffeta, wool or faille.

About Refinishing Maple Floors

Could you tell me how to refinish maple floors? We have a large house and all the lower floors are maple which are smooth but the old finish (clear shellac) has worn off in places. We are thinking of renting a sanding machine and sanding off the old finish but we do not know what is best to use for refinishing. Should we put on a filler and what kind of finish is best to apply over a filler if one is used? We do not want to darken the floors, as they are very pretty color as they are.

A Subscriber

Because maple is a coarse grained wood, no preliminary filler needs to be used before finishing. After the floors have been sanded smooth, and before applying the finish, wipe up all fine dust with a cloth dampened with turpentine.

To retain the present color you could use clear varnish, white shellac or wax or a combination of these. Also, there are on the market floor finishes known as "seals" which penetrate the surface fibers of the wood and when it then becomes hard, forms a very durable finish. These "seals" are applied by wiping on with a cloth or by brushing. Two coats of "seal" should be applied to maple while a more open grained wood, such as oak, requires three.

Floors finished with varnish, shellac or a seal are more durable if they are given several thin, well rubbed coats of wax after the finish has thoroughly dried. Waxing prolongs the life of the finish because the wax will absorb the oil and protect the finish under it. Also, wax can be easily removed and renewed at heavy wear spots.

I have a three-cornered tear in a brown suede jacket and I should like to know how to mend it. I hesitate to use the type of mending tape requiring heat or to do hand sewing. Also, how can I do a home cleaning job on this jacket?

E. G. H.

If this is a small tear, it can be repaired by attaching a piece of leather under the tear on the wrong side with leather cement. If it is large it may be better to overhand the edges together on the wrong side, making a very tiny seam. After sewing, the seam may be flattened by covering with a piece of paper and pressing quickly with an iron set at a temperature for pressing silk. Or, if the leather is soft the seam can be flattened by pounding lightly on the wrong side of the seam with a hammer.

To clean a lightly soiled jacket, dust it with dry cleaning powder, rubbing the powder into the nap to absorb soil and then brushing it out. Or, instead of cleaning powder you could use cornstarch which has been dampened with carbon tetrachloride. This method is particularly good for collar bands.

If you wish to do a general all-over cleaning job, use an oil base mild soap to wash it. Use little water and apply the soap with a brush, working up a good suds as you brush. As the suds become soiled, wipe them away with a just damp cloth and continue applying soap until the suds remain clean, then thoroughly rinse it. Go over it several times with a cloth wrung out of clear water to remove every trace of soap. To dry, lay wet leather on unprinted absorbent paper with a heavy pad of newspapers under it. Pat on top with dry absorbent towel to remove as much of moisture as possible. Allow to dry slowly away from heat. Before completely dry, work between hands to soften and

Tobe' Says:
Ottoman Is Aristocratic

I think ottoman is one of the most aristocratic fabrics that has ever been used in dresses. It is really a de luxe faille with heavy satiny ribs.

Ottoman makes wonderful suit dresses because it tailors beautifully, yet the fabric itself is so handsome that it gives an entirely simple suit great elegance.

Of course it is used for other dresses too—as the new princess coat dresses and even cocktail frocks.

But to me it is the smart suit dress that shows off the full beauty of ottoman.

Market Memo . . .

Ducks Are Good Buy

DUCKS are getting the spotlight this week in several local groceries, where the plump little birds are the featured poultry. They're good eating, be the weather hot or cold . . . nice for a change, too, from more routine fare.

Roast duck, basted with orange juice and cooked at moderate heat, is a delicious hot dish. But if you'd rather serve the rich, flavorful meat in cooler fashion, try it in a salad made of equal parts cold, diced duck, canned grapefruit sections, and finely chopped celery. Mix with French dressing and chill 30 minutes in the refrigerator. Apple and duck go together well in hot weather, too. Dice both, mix with mayonnaise, serve on lettuce, garnished with orange segments.

CHUCK ROAST is also a special in many stores. You should get a good buy, here, for a great deal of grass-fed beef is reaching the market now and it sells for lower prices than the corn-fed kind. It's of excellent flavor, but requires more moist, slow cooking.

PEACHES remain the biggest item on the fruit market, with pears as a runner-up. The peach crop in the northeast section of the country is one of the best we've ever had. The Nation's crop this year is a rousing 75 million bushels. It was only 65 million last year. Make the most of 'em, for the peak time will soon be past.

FROZEN COFFEE CONCENTRATE is a new and surprising addition to the frozen foods family. It will go on sale in Washington on a "test" basis next Monday, available in a limited number of stores. You thaw it out (it's in containers like orange juice concentrate), then add a teaspoonful to a cup of hot water. A 6-ounce can makes 30 cups. You can keep the defrosted concentrate in the refrigerator for daily use.

Have Peaches Next Winter—Freeze Them Now

By Lucia Brown

PACK 'EM IN SYRUP: Sugar syrup, with a little ascorbic acid added, is ideal for use in freezing peaches. Here Mrs. Dorothy Green fills a carton with peaches and syrup to within half-an-inch of the top, aided by a special stand and funnel

WHAT fruit could be more satisfactory for puting-up purposes han he peach?

It makes wonderful preserves, jams, pickles, and butter. It can be spiced, gingered, or canned in a number of ways. And now that freezing is here, it has proven beautifully adapted to the cold treatment.

Frozen peaches come to the table with a near-fresh flavor when they are packed away correctly. Recent tests by the Department of Agriculture show they are better put up with syrup than in dry sugar. Darkening is a problem, of course, but one that is easily overcome by the addition of a little ascorbic acid to the syrup.

As little as a half teaspoon of ascorbic acid to a quart of water and three cups of sugar is needed to keep seven pints of frozen peaches from darkening.

Make the syrup in advance—the day before if you wish—and chill in the refrigerator before packing the peaches. For syrup, dissolve the suger in the water and bring to a boil. Simmer two or three minutes, remove from fire, add ascorbic acid and chill.

Here are the steps for packing the peaches away:

(1) Start with well-ripened, freestone fruit, at just the right stage for good eating.

(2) Dip the ripe, sound peaches about 15 to 30 seconds in boiling water to loosen skins. Use a strainer, frying basket, or cloth bag for the dipping. The riper the fruit, the less scalding needed.

(3) Chill peaches immediately in cold water for 15 to 30 seconds after the hot dip. This stops the cooking action.

(4) Pit peaches and slip peel from halves. Handle fruit quickly so it won't darken. Halve, quarter or slice the peaches into heavily paraffined cartons, containing cold syrup.

(5) Fill cartons to within ¾ inch of top. Cover pieces completely with the cold syrup. Close packages immediately and label boxes.

(6) Freeze peaches promptly after packing. If any delay is necessary, put filled, labeled boxes into refrigerator to keep cold until all are ready to go into freezer.

(7) Store peaches at the lowest temperature possible, never higher than 0 degrees Fahrenheit.

Chicken and Rice Variation

To give rice a new flavor enriches its value as a meat accompaniment, helps it accent the goodness of fresh vegetables. The chicken stock required in this recipe may be purchased in cans or chicken bouillon cubes may be used. Follow the directions for cooking the rice carefully and you'll find all of the liquid absorbed, all of the rice grains ready to separate obligingly. There's no need for washing cooked rice to "remove excess starch" if the cooking is done properly.

SAVORY RICE

1 large minced onion.
1 minced clove of garlic.
1 cup rice, raw.
Salt and pepper to taste.

Heat fat in a skillet. Cook onion and garlic in the fat until translucent, then add the rice. Cook the rice until it has a golden color, adding more fat if necessary. Put the rice mixture and two cups of chicken broth in a two-quart saucepan. Cover with a tight-fitting lid. Set over a hot flame until it boils vigorously. Then reduce the heat as low as possible and simmer for 14 minutes more. Remove the lid and permit the rice to steam dry. Serve in a vegetable bowl. This recipe will serve six persons.

Girl, 24, Wonders How to Get a Statement Of Intent From Eligible Man, 29, Whom She Loves and Who Has Been Dating Her for Months

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl of 24, in love with a young man of 29, whom I have known for more than two years and have been dating steadily for several months.

We see each other four or five times a week and our families and friends consider us practically engaged. But I don't like to be taken for granted and I can't take him for granted; and although he tells me he loves me and we have talked of marriage, he refuses to speak of it in definite terms.

George has an excellent position and there seems to be no obstacle to marriage except that he likes his independence and doesn't want to be tied down. However, he says he thinks we probably will be married some day; but considering the circumstances I think this uncertainty has gone on long enough.

Have you any suggestions as to how I can get him to speak his mind, one way or the other? I don't want to push him, nor do I want to come right out and ask him, for knowing his disposition, I feel that a direct approach might bring disastrous results; and I would rather try diplomacy first. Any help you can give through your column will be much appreciated. V. S.

Don't Most Women Do the Proposing?

DEAR V. S.: So far as I know, a Kinsey-type canvass of the subject has never been made, yet I've encountered much offhand testimony to indicate that a lot of marriage-proposing is done by women, indirectly.

Not that the ladies say right out, "George, will you marry me?" Rather they give chase, with charming finesse, until they've caught the man's interest; then profess only demurely admiring friendship as he warms up, biding a time when he seems most importunate for special favors, whereupon they chastely signify that getting engaged is surely the appropriate next step—which puts the man in the position of having to agree, or drop everything and bow out, redfaced.

Probably seven husbands in every 10 were inveigled into matrimony by this technique, unable to account for the "decision" apparently reached, and vaguely aware that an unseen power had taken them in hand—but for the most part they're not actively unhappy about the denouement, at least at the time; although some would give a lot to back down, if they gracefully could, when the marriage plans begin to speed up.

Anxiety Neurosis Drives Beaux Away

UNFORTUNATELY for your hopes of marrying George, it seems you've been a stranger to finesse in courting him; for the tenor of your letter indicates that your attitude is charged with anxiety, impatience and a sense of injury, when in his company nowadays; and I daresay he is well aware of the question uppermost in your mind, namely: "When are we going to get down to cases about getting married?"

His behavior as described is that of a man who feels pushed already; who is countering implicit reproaches and veiled demands with cautiously resistant diplomacy; and in my opinion, this state of affairs, after a few months' dating, portends that he is not your husband-to-be. It suggests that he is not a sincere, generous, forthright nature; that he is not very much in love with you; and that in wearing anxiety on your sleeve, you've devaluated yourself in his eyes, thus forfeiting any chance of evoking a proposal by coy tactics.

For advice: Your difficulties with George are merely symptomatic of a fundamental problem of emotional insecurity, which drives you to grab too anxiously at suitors, thus invariably cooling their initial interest. Get firsthand help in clearing up the anxiety neurosis, and then good fortune in love will develop naturally. In the meantime, treat George as a handy escort and stop nudging him about marriage. M. H.

Could you help me? I have a day bed with two mattresses, one of which is underneath the top one. The bed is not used much, and both mattresses have a very strong, musty odor, which airing and sunning have not eliminated. Do you know of any cleaning process or home method I may use to eliminate this odor? A READER.

If you will spray the mattresses with a solution which is designed to rid articles of the odor of mildew it would solve your problem. This product can be purchased in housewares departments where moth preventives are sold. Follow the directions which come with the product.

PETUNIA!

And I'd make 'em every day
—If only it was cricket
Just to throw the tin away!

But washing muffin tins is a cinch, Petunia — if you'll grease the whole top of the pan as well as the cups. The baked-on run-over batter will then wash off in a jiffy.

TRUMAN—From P. 1-C

Teenagers Meet President

seek these friends is to keep America so strong that "our one potential enemy" will have no chance.

Mr. Johnson introduced Miss Mary K. Johnson of Pullman, Wash., Secretary of Defense of the Girls Nation. They sat down together while she tried on his glasses so she might look like the "real Secretary."

In a speech in the caucus room of the Senate Office Building following the White House reception, Senator Bourke Hickenlooper traced the discovery and uses of atomic energy.

He showed the girls a piece of uranium to illustrate his talk.

The Senator predicted that it would be 40 or 50 years before here would be any practical uses for atomic energy in competitive industry. However, he pointed out some of the possible uses in the medical field, such as radioactive iodine for the treatment of thyroid.

Later Vice President Alben Barkley administered the oath of office to the entire Senate of the Girls Nation and to Miss Josephine Daniel of Osterville, Mass., president of the group, and Miss Ernestine Smith of Guthrie, Okla., vice president, who were elected Wednesday.

Miss Daniel in turn conducted the swearing-in ceremonies for her cabinet: Miss Mary K. Johnson of Pullman, Wash., Secretary of Defense; Miss Sally Jones of Kirkwood, Mo., Secretary of the Army; Miss Nancy Pumphrey of Wisner, Nebr., Secretary of the Air Force; Miss Becky Lynch of South Gate, Calif., Secretary of the Marines, and Miss Ellen Horn of Alton, Ill., Secretary of the Navy.

In his brief address Mr. Barkley urged the girls to study government and to fortify their convictions against all foreign ideologies and to guard against autocracy and dictatorship.

After One Week in Washington, Joy Daniel Wants to Be a Senator

WHEN pretty, auburn-haired Josephine Alice Daniel of Osterville, Mass., arrived in town as one of 96 delegates to Girls Nation, she had decided on a journalistic career. But the newly elected president of Girls Nation has changed her mind. From now on it's politics and law.

Eventually she hopes to land a seat in the United States Senate. First, however, she's going to become a barrister. "To be any kind of a politician, you must be a good lawyer," she says.

Along with other teenagers from 47 States and the Panama Canal Zone, she has been studying government at its source in a week's citizenship training program sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.

After five days in the Nation's Capital, "Joy" Daniel confesses that the political bug has bitten her. "Humility and sincerity seem the most important qualities for Government service," she observed, adding, "at least that's the way it worked out in Girls Nation."

Students Not Interested

Asked if high school students in general were interested in national Government, she replied, "I'm sorry to say, no."

"Until the end of high school, the majority of students know little and care less about Government," she said. The national Government and its personalities, she explained, seemed too remote and "too stuffed shirt" to most of the high school students.

To stimulate greater interest in the functioning of national Government she suggests that a Friday night film be shown in each school depicting the chief issues and principal participants in the events, each week. In addition she advocates greater publicity for Girls Nation projects.

Hazel-eyed Miss Daniel, who served as governor of Massachusetts Girls State before trying her talents on a national scale, knew the general theories and plans of the Atlantic Pact, the Marshall Plan and other international events before arriving here last Sunday. Since then she's had the details filled in by congressional leaders and State Department officials.

"We've also learned about the Hoover Commission's reorganization plan," she observed. "I don't know why, but seems as if delegates knew less about that than other issues."

Honor Student

Alert Josephine has been a straight A honor student for the past five years at Barnstable High School. A member of the school magazine staff, she has served as its editor-in-chief for the past two years. She plays on the intra-mural basketball and hockey teams as well as the community baseball team. Besides, she's first violinist and cellist in the high school orchestra, sings alto in the church choir.

Last term she was vice president of the junior class and a member of the junior prom committee.

Rings on Their Fingers

Mrs. Kathleen Lanham of Arlington, Va., announces the engagement of her sister, Miss Mary M. Smith to Bernard W. Levine of New York. A November wedding is planned.

White—Wright

Mr. and Mrs. E. Russell White of Springfield, Va., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Emily Matthews, to James Malcolm Wright, son of Mrs. Harry Faville Wright of Tulsa, Okla.

The wedding will take place in Ames, Iowa, on September 3.

Mr. Wright and his bride will make their home in Ames where Mr. Wright is studying for his Ph. D. at Iowa State College.

WHAT BECOMES OF MISS AMERICA?

Is there any future in being named the most beautiful girl in the country?

Does it usually lead to a movie contract, to a life of ease—or to marriage?

For the answer see what some of our past Atlantic City winners are now doing. It's another enjoyable picture story this Sunday in Parade in The Washington Post.

In Bridal Procession

Miss Florence Lorraine Blom was married last evening at the Mansion on 16th st., to LeRoy Dene Wedge, jr., in a ceremony performed by the bride's cousin, the Rev. Oscar Olsen of Wareham, Mass. She was escorted by her uncle, Harry Sherling.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ida E. Blom and the late Olaf Blom of Washington. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Dene Wedge, sr., of Bradford, Pa.

Jansky—Jefferson

The marriage of Miss Jeanette Louise Jefferson, daughter of Mrs. Bernard Jefferson of Urbana, Ill., and the late Professor Jefferson, to Curtis M. Jansky of Washington, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Moreau Jansky, jr., took place on August 14 at the McKinley Memorial Presbyterian Church in Champaign. The Rev. A. Ray Cartlidge of the First Presbyterian Church, Champaign, officiated at the double ring ceremony and Raymond Runk of Newark, Del., gave his niece in marriage.

The bride wore a gown of white embroidered organdy with bouffant skirt, and her veil of illusion was held by a cap of organdy pleating trimmed with clusters of stephanotis. She carried a cascade bouquet of white gladioli centered with a nosegay of sweetheart roses and bordered with stephanotis.

Mr. and Mrs. Jansky will live at Woodside, Long Island. The bride is a graduate of the University of Illinois and was active in the Illini Theater Guild and the YWCA. Mr. Jansky was graduated in June from the University of Illinois, majoring in electrical engineering. He attended the Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., and served in the Coast Guard.

MRS. WILLIAM EUGENE HARWARD, JR. was Miss Gloria Berniece Self before her marriage last evening at Calvary Baptist Church, in a ceremony performed by Dr. Clarence W. Cranford and the Rev. Idris W. Jones. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian B. Self of Washington, the bride was given in marriage by her father. For the ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the church, the bride wore an ivory satin gown with fingertip-length veil of illusion. Both the bride and Mr. Harward, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Harward, sr., of Washington, are graduates of Wilson Teachers College. Following a Southern trip the couple will live in Washington

Harris & Ewing

MRS. RALPH WILBURNE SHORT was Miss Mary Elizabeth Megica before her marriage last evening at National Presbyterian Church. The daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Colston Megica of Washington and San Antonio, Tex., the bride was given in marriage by her uncle, George Hall Gardner. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. William Hopkins of Washington and R. W. Short of Birmingham, Ala. For the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Delmar Dyreson, the bride wore a gown of white marquisette with lace applique. Following a trip to Luray, Va., the couple will live in Washington, where they will continue their studies at American University

Miss Head Engaged To G. W. Ferguson

Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Head of Falls Church, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Lou, to Glenn Walker Ferguson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forest E. Ferguson of Bethesda, Md.

Miss Head will be a senior this year at Mary Washington College where she is vice president of the student body and a member of the senior honorary society.

Mr. Ferguson, a member of Psi Upsilon Fraternity, will graduate in June from Cornell University. He is president of the Inter-Fraternity Council and a member of the senior honorary.

The wedding will take place in June.

To Live in Maine

Mrs. William E. Trapnell announces the marriage of her daughter, Margaret Elenor, to Daniel Pachik of Laurelton, Long Island, on August 20 in the Georgetown Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Benjamin J. Lynt performed the ceremony.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Courtney R. Sunday of Bethesda, Md., and the bridegroom's brother, Edward H. Pachik of Forest Hills, Long Island, were the only attendants.

Mrs. Pachik was formerly with the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations. The couple will make their home in Livermore Falls, Me.

Bill Expects Humidor, Like His Jokes, to Last Forever

During the winter, I can keep my pipe tobacco in good condition by occasionally moistening the humidifier in my tobacco jar.

(Don't advise me to buy a better humidor. This one is only 14 years old and I haven't gotten my money's worth out of it yet.)

YEAH, YOU—SWABBIE

Kennedy Ludlam, the WRC announcer, witnessed an incident the other day that many a sailor would have given a month's pay to see.

It was at a busy 14th st. intersection, and the traffic light plainly indicated that the admiral should not attempt to cross just yet.

But, decked out in the full ceremonials of his rank and obviously anxious to get to where he was going, the Big Wheel started across anyhow.

The cop on the corner blew an angry blast on his whistle—with no result. So, substituting lung power for the whistle, he bellowed:

"Hey, you! Get back on the curb—SAILOR."

OLD SOLDIER

Mrs. Dixie T. Wright of 1028 Connecticut ave. nw. is still trying to unpuzzle a picture caption which appeared recently in one of our Sunday contemporaries. It said:

"Three drum majorettes who collapsed during an American Legion parade in Langhorne, Pa., receive first aid. The parade climaxed a four-day convention at which for the first time a World War II veteran was elected commander. He is Walter Allesandroni, 36-year-old Philadelphia lawyer."

Pretty ancient for a veteran of World War II, but I guess the old boy is in mighty good shape. He stood the rigors of the march better than those young majorettes.

Walter Baumann of 1355 Somerset pl. nw., who is 15 years old, is worried that if the draft boards take 'em at 86, they'll also take 15-year-olds. He says:

"What's more, I'd better write my grandmother, and tell her the news. There's no telling who the WACs will be taking."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Four healthy kittens, assorted colors; 6 weeks old." (Falls Church 2151.)

"Four nice kittens, about 6 weeks old; one white, one black, two black-and-white." (Wisconsin 7219.)

"Black puppy, about 10 months old; her mother was a cocker, her father a traveling man." (Michigan 8332.)

"I am the foster parent of a U. M. who just gave birth to seven puppies; can't keep mother or pups where I live, so I'm boarding them at vet's. Help!" (Hudson 8924 after 6 p. m.)

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

Joseph W. Ebbets of The Plains, Va., and Mrs. Joseph H. Oehmann, jr., of 4505 Walsh st., Chevy Chase, Md., suspect that the printers on one of our afternoon contemporaries have a poor sense of monetary values. One of their recent ads offered:

"Forged carbon steel wrench set, regularly 69 cents—only 89 cents."

OVERSIGHT

On the opening day of the baseball season, I looked in my crystal ball and picked the Red Sox and the Dodgers to win. But I'm beginning to suspect that they'd have made a better "place parlay."

STREET SCENE

Our reporter for this one is George E. Miller, the M st. advertising man:

The trash collectors were making their usual rounds, and the truck was piled high with waste materials.

On top of this immense load sat one of the crew, relaxing for a moment from his labors. Wearily he reached into his pocket, extracted his last cigarette from the pack, and lit up.

Then, oblivious to the pile of trash on which he was sitting, he wadded up the empty pack and tossed it absently into the freshly swept street.

CHEAPER THAT WAY, TOO

Each day I get visibly thinner.
I swallow so many salt tablets

Fact Finders Late on Steel Wage Report

(Editor's Note—While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

The President's steel-wage fact-finding board has privately decided it can't make its report by the August 30 deadline.

MURRAY

Present plan of the three-man body is to ask for a time extension, possibly two weeks. Reason is the unexpected length of the board's public hearings. It had been anticipated this testimony could be concluded a lot more time. As a result, the board has been unable to work on its report to the President.

No difficulty is anticipated in obtaining a time extension. The White House is certain to grant it. Similarly, Philip Murray is believed willing to defer strike action for this purpose. Privately, both sides anticipate the board will recommend a compromise.

The steelworkers demand a "package" increase of 30 cents an hour, including a wage boost, pension and health benefits. Best inside guess is the board will hold with the workers on their claims for a raise, but will sharply trim the amount.

Junketeers

House leaders are having a hard time keeping their rank-and-file in check on expense-free junkets aboard. Usually at this time of the year the boys are scattered far and wide on "official" tours. But the protracted session has stymied this gnawing gravy-train craving. Result, they are very restive.

Interstate Commerce Chairman Robert Crosser (D., Ohio) is under strong pressure from committee members to agree to two junkets. One is to Saudi Arabia, to "study" United States oil interests. Reported conceiver of this plan is the powerful Arabian-American Oil Co. with huge investments in the Middle East. Aramco would house and entertain the junketing Congressmen.

The other scheme is a tour of Europe to examine airline setups and operations. Practically all are monopolistic "chosen instrument" systems. Pan American Airways, which has long agitated for such a policy for the United States overseas airlines, is credited with originating this junket.

Crosser is firmly against both trips, with the backing of Speaker Sam Rayburn and Republican Floor Leader Joe Martin. Rayburn is very blunt about junkets.

Strong Defender

There is another place in Washington, besides the White House, where Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan has strong defenders. It is the Veterans Administration Medical Department.

To chiefs there the embattled White House military aide is something of a hero. He helped when they were desperate. They have never forgotten him for it. This is the story they tell:

In 1946, when Gen. Omar Bradley as VA Administrator was frantically trying to reorganize the moribund medical service, his most urgent need was doctors and dentists. VA hospitals were jammed with ailing and disabled veterans. Maj. Gen. Paul Hawley, medical director, needed 2000 doctors immediately.

Efforts to obtain civilian medics failed. Bradley and Hawley were at wits' ends. Someone suggested they see Vaughan.

"I think I've got the answer," he said, "if the Army and Navy will cooperate. The Army has hundreds of surplus doctors, which it trained and who are clamoring to get out. But it's short of dentists. The Navy has a lot of surplus dentists, which it trained. If we can do some swapping, it will be to everybody's benefit. The Government has a claim on these young doctors and they should be used in this emergency. I'll see what I can do."

Vaughan made good. Going directly to then-Secretary of War Robert Patterson and Navy Secretary James Forrestal, Vaughan arranged a three-way swap. The Navy transferred 700 dentists to the Army and 500 doctors to VA. Similarly, the Army detailed 1000 doctors to VA for two years' service. Thus, the Army got the dentists it sorely needed, VA the doctors it desperately needed, and the Government received some return for the training it had given the medics.
